Mail, Sales Here Setting New Records For Yuletide

Stores Foresee a High In Purchase Total And Dollar Volume; Travel to Be Heavy

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

Christmas preparations and some important new seasonal records were bursting out all over yesterday—just like Washington's "spring" weather.

The Washington Postoffice Department said the 1949 season so far has topped 1948's high for a comparable period in the handling of mail—91 million pieces moved since December 1, against 83 million pieces the same time last year.

The District's major department stores said, "barring a major catastrophe," they would set new records not only for the number of purchases, but for dollar volume as well. This, they said, has completely upset gloomy predictions.

Record Cargo Flight

Washington's National Airport yesterday marked up a high for a single cargo flight from its runways—6074 pounds, carried on an Eastern Airlines flight south.

It also appeared that Christmas in Washington, 1949, might set a mark for the number of residents staying at home. Travel information sources—air, train, bus, and auto—are unanimous in agreeing that, although travel will be heavy, chances are that no new records would be set.

However, all passenger transportation facilities were planning extra sections.

For Stay-at-Homes

An important feature for Washingtonians who stay in the city will be the National Community Christmas Tree celebration on the White House lawn starting at 5:30 p. m. Saturday. The southeast gate of the White House will open to the public at 3:30 p. m.

With Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman presiding, the greetings of Washington to President and Mrs. Truman will be expressed by a District Boy Scout, Virdell E. Munsey, 16, of 4513 Western ave. nw., and a Girl Scout, Lynn Pierce, 10, of 8410 Woodcliff ct., Silver Spring.

Invocation will be spoken by the Very Rev. J. Hunter Guthrie, S.J., president of Georgetown University, with benediction by Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University.

Million Dollar Day Record in New York

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—The New York postoffice had a million-dollar day today for the first time in its history.

Postmaster Albert Goldman said receipts totaled $1,005,859. The previous record was $945,146 on October 14. The highest previous figure for a Christmas season day was $778,184 a year ago today.

Silver Spring To Get Theater For Dramas

Plans for a 1000-seat legitimate theater building, to include a television station, in Silver Spring, have reached the point where New York backers will arrive next month to complete details and select a site.

This was announced yesterday by Charles H. Kopeland, executive secretary of the Silver Spring Board of Trade. The theater will be built near the District Line.

The $250,000 structure, Kopeland said, is to be backed by New York theater people and "big name" television stars, he said, but did not disclose their identities.

At the same time, Kopeland said, ground-breaking ceremonies are planned "early in January" for the new $300,000 Civic Center building in Silver Spring. It will incorporate a banquet hall, ballroom, stores and offices.

Active negotiations for the new legitimate theater have been under way since October with the New York group Kopeland said, although the project has been considered for three years.

Kopeland would not discuss the attitude of the theater backers on segregation in audiences. He said the members are "fully cognizant" of reasons that caused termination of live productions at the National Theater in Washington. Actors' Equity and the Dramatists' Guild have said they will not approve any theater in the Washington area with a policy of audience segregation.

'Struck Work' Clause Given NLRB Stamp

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A widely used union device to get around the secondary boycott ban of the Taft-Hartley Act yesterday got the official approval of the National Labor Relations Board.

The panel, by a 3-2 decision, legitimized the "struck work" clause—sometimes known as the "hot cargo" clause — of union-management contracts.

By terms of the "struck work" clause, the employer in effect agrees that his employes may refuse to handle the work or goods of a struck employer coming through their hands.

The "hot cargo" clause has been in widespread use among many unions, especially the AFL Teamsters and the AFL International Typographical Union.

The clause was attacked as illegal shortly after the Taft-Hartley Act replaced the Wagner Act in 1947. The secondary boycott prohibition of the Taft-Hartley Act makes it illegal for a union to induce or encourage employes to halt work in order to force their own employer to stop doing business with another employer whose workers are on strike.

Dewey Won't Run Again, He Writes Friend in Oregon

Portland, Oreg., Dec. 21 (AP).—The man who managed Thomas E. Dewey's presidential campaign in Oregon last year said today Dewey has written that he will not run again.

John C. Higgins received a letter which said:

"Nothing could arise now or in the future that would lead me to be the nominee for our party in 1952. My decision on this matter is as certain and final as death and the staggering New Deal taxes."

However, he said he believed advancement of "sound, progressive principles by the Republican Party is the only hope our country has of stopping the present drift to socialism in the National Government," and "I shall continue actively to do everything in my power to advance those sound, progressive principles."

Egg Support Price To Be Cut 8 Cents A Dozen for 1950

The Government announced yesterday that it will support producer prices of eggs in 1950 at a national average of 37 cents a dozen. This is about 8 cents less than this year's average farm prices.

This means, Agriculture Department officials said, that consumer prices next year may average 8 to 10 cents a dozen below this year's prices.

Actual retail prices will depend upon production. But, officials said, 1950 egg production is expected to be 2 or 3 percent higher than this year.

Casino Is Closed When It Won't Pay Rival His Winnings

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 21 (AP)—This wide-open town was buzzing tonight over action by the city commission in closing down a gambling casino on the ground it refused to pay off $47,000 won at the crap table by Jack Durant, manager of another club.

He kept the dice for 45 minutes and ran his winnings up to $67,000. The Savoy Club paid him $20,000 in cash but couldn't or wouldn't pay him the rest.

Monkey Infected With Polio Caught, Shot at College Park

A "nasty tempered" Rhesus monkey, infected with polio germs, was shot and killed in the eaves of a College Park home yesterday, four hours after it escaped from a laboratory cage at the University of Maryland.

The monkey leaped from his cage as he was being fed, jumped through a screened window, fled across a nearby field and disappeared down the road near the 5500 block of Calvert rd., College Park. That was at about 10:30 a. m.

Maj. R. L. Reagan, chief of the virus diseases section of the university's Livestock Sanitary Service, said the monkey was inoculated last Wednesday with a diluted solution of polio virus. The monkey was involved in experiments involving the relationship, if any, between polio and Newscastle Disease, a poultry sickness.

Twelve State troopers and six Prince Georges County policemen, armed with shotguns, combed the surrounding areas for five hours with orders to shoot on sight. The animal was spied by two boys on

FBI Probes Plot to Blast UAW Office

Detroit, Dec. 21 (AP).—Unknown enemies of the CIO-United Auto Workers plotted unsuccessfully to dynamite the union's international headquarters last night, the fifth act of violence against the UAW and its officers.

As a result, the union took steps today to defend itself against a wave of terrorism, and in Washington Attorney General McGrath ordered an investigation by the FBI.

Rewards totaling almost a quarter of a million dollars were offered for unknown saboteurs and gunmen. UAW President Walter P. Reuther said he suspected that Communists were behind it all.

Security Measures Taken

Strict security measures were in force today at the union headquarters.

Outside the three-story building last night someone set a charge of explosives big enough "to blow up a city block."

It failed only because a detonator and fuse did not work properly.

Police and union officials linked the crime with the unsolved shotgun attacks on UAW President Walter Reuther and his brother, Victor, and other recent antiunion violence here. Police called in for questioning a former union officer who had been in a number of scrapes, but he was not regarded as a suspect.

"This is apparently part of the same campaign of terrorism which has been directed against our union over the last two years," said a statement from four top UAW officers. "It is being waged by anti-labor, un-American elements."

$25,000 Reward Offered

The union announced a $25,000 reward for the dynamiters. Another $200,000 UAW reward for apprehension of those responsible for the Reuther shootings still stands. Groups outside the union have offered an additional $17,150.

A box containing 39 sticks of dynamite, wrapped in Christmas paper, was found last night on the steps leading to the headquarters basement.

Walter Reuther strongly suspected a Red plot.

"In the last month I've worked harder on the Communists than ever before," he said.

Reuther led the fight for expulsion of leftist unions from the CIO last month. This month he took a prominent part in setting up a world federation of anti-Communist unions.

Police virtually gave up efforts to trace the dynamite today. It is easily obtained at any hardware store, they said. The best lead was the box. It originally contained a soap product manufactured at the Lever Bros. plant at Hammond, Ind.

Tip to Newspaper

Two night employes at the headquarters found the dynamite after a newspaperman received an anonymous phone tip.

Some 75 men were working at the adjacent General Motors research building.

Paul Sifton, UAW legislative representative, said he was working at the headquarters until 9:25 p. m. Two cleaning women and two men employes also were there.

Sifton lives in Washington at 3150 Highland pl. nw., with his wife and two children. He went to Washington in 1936, to the wage-hour administration.

U. S. Objects To Britain's Curb on Oil

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States Government expressed its "concern" yesterday at the abrupt British decision to cut purchases of oil and gasoline from American oil companies.

It also voiced the "hope that some adjustment could be made"—a polite way of suggesting to the British that they impose the cuts more gradually.

Earlier this week the British had announced an embargo on imports of fuel oil from American companies and a one-third cut in imports of gasoline—all for the avowed purpose of saving dollars.

No formal protest was sent to London, but officials here made their attitude plain to Sir Victor Butler, Undersecretary of the British Ministry of Fuel and Power, when Anglo-American negotiations on the oil problem were resumed yesterday.

U. S. Officials Angry

Privately, American officials are angry over the manner of the British action rather than over the curtailment itself.

Nobody here has ever disputed the fact that oil imports constitute the biggest single drain on British dollar reserves. A State Department statement yesterday put the figure at 710 million dollars a year, of which about 340 million results from the activity of American oil companies in the sterling currency area.

In the American - British-Canadian "dollar talks" of last September it was agreed to study ways of reducing this dollar drain without endangering "legitimate" American interests. American Government agencies have found the American oil companies willing to accept payment in sterling where necessary, and to ease matters in other ways for the British.

Resume Discussion

Now the American and British governments have resumed discussions that have been going on for several weeks. What riles American officials is that the British government appears to have taken its latest action without consulting them, and at the very moment when negotiations on the whole oil problem were about to start again.

The feeling in Government agencies is that the British, by acting in this apparently one-sided and arbitrary fashion, may well have stirred up anger in Congress, have produced new ill-will among the oil companies, and may have given a setback to Anglo-American economic discussions generally. The hope here is that London will understand the American attitude and will either retrace its steps or relax its position accordingly.

School Heads Rebuked

Soviet Bulletin Row Revived By Wilson College Protest

A protest by Wilson Teachers College students over "censorship" of publications in the college library yesterday frustrated efforts of the Board of Education to close its books on the dispute over the Soviet publication "Information Bulletin."

A threatened school board rebuke of Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning for removing copies of the Bulletin from school libraries without board approval failed to materialize at yesterday's board meeting.

Board President C. Melvin Sharpe, who had criticized Corning to the press for failing to report to the board, said the superintendent had explained his position satisfactorily and that the question was closed.

It was immediately reopened, however, with receipt of a letter from John McMahon, president of Teachers College student council, which declared students "are upset about the censoring of publications in our college library."

McMahon said that absence of the Soviet publication from the college library had brought to a head student opinion that all legally printed publications should be available.

"Since we are college students and teachers in training, we think that we should know current problems and be able to discuss them intelligently," the letter said.

Decision to petition the board was reached unanimously by the council, McMahon reported.

McMahon said last night that the council was not specifically concerned with the Soviet bulletin but with the fact that only periodicals approved by the Board of Education may be used by the students.

He said that library material is censored despite the fact that $800 a year of student funds is used to purchase magazines and books.

The money, he said, comes from the $23,000 which the 500 college students annually are assessed to supplement the public funds supporting the college.

The college, by a vote of classes, approved a request for a representative group of students to meet with school officers to discuss the problem of censorship and financing, McMahon said.

Walter E. Hager, Wilson College president, said last night that while the Soviet publication had not been placed on library shelves it had been used in the college.

Copies were directed to psychology and sociology classes, where they were scanned in the analysis of propaganda techniques, he said.

Dr. Hager reported only publica-

Vandenberg Predicts Aid Cut; Cool to China Recognition Now

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg yesterday returned to the Capitol and promptly moved into the GOP driver's seat on foreign affairs.

Before an overflow press conference he (1) predicted sharp 1950 reductions in foreign aid, (2) suggested terms for possible future recognition of Communist China, but (3) opposed immediate recognition.

What probably was more important, he gave a broad, new definition of bipartisan foreign policy and put out feelers on extension of the two-party "meeting of minds" to China and the Far East as well as Western Europe.

The long-convalescent Vandenberg predicted Republicans generally will continue to support what he termed "unpartisan" foreign policy, provided they are permitted to contribute "significantly" to the formulation of our course.

In effect, he was issuing an open invitation to President Truman to meet Republicans half-way on our policies abroad. He was

Stalin Takes Bow in Moscow As Mao Leads Chorus of Praise

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Dec. 21 (AP).—Mao Tzetung of China, leader of the latest nation to enter the Communist bloc, paid high praise to Joseph Stalin tonight at the concluding event of the Russian Prime Minister's seventieth birthday celebration. This was a gathering at the Bolshoi Theater.

Mao was lead-off speaker among prominent Communists from a dozen countries. He described Stalin as the teacher and friend of the Chinese people.

(The Moscow radio said Stalin appeared in person at the theater and received tumultuous applause. It was the first time that he had publicly taken cognizance of the Communist furor over his birthday.)

After Mao came Vilem Siroky, deputy premier of Czechoslovakia; Vulko Chervenkov, vice premier of Bulgaria; Matyas Rakosi, No. 1 Communist of Hungary; Gheorghe Gheorgiu-Dej, vice premier of Romania; Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist chief; Tse Den Bal of Mongolia; Kim Do Don of northern Korea's presidium; Walter Ulbricht, deputy premier of East Germany; Dolores Ibarruri of Spain, and Johann Koplenig, chairman of the Austrian Communist Party.

Throughout the Communist part of the world Stalin was hailed as the architect of Russian science and

Lay Appointed To Security Council Office

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

James Selden Lay, jr., a native of Washington, will take over as executive secretary of the National Security Council on January 15, the White House announced yesterday.

He will succeed Sidney W. Souers, who has been one of President Truman's closest advisers. A rear admiral during the war, Souers is quitting as executive secretary of National Security Council, but will continue as a special consultant to Mr. Truman on matters relating to the country's security.

The National Security Council, top defense agency, was created in 1947 and is made up of the President, the Vice President, the Secretaries of State and Defense, and the chairman of the National Securities Resources Board.

Its function is to "advise the President with respect to the integration of domestic, foreign and military policies relating to the national security."

Winter Arrives But Springlike Weather Stays

When winter comes, spring—or at least springlike weather—can be right behind. It will be today, according to the weatherman. He says the temperature will reach into the "middle sixties," under cloudy skies, followed by occasional rain this afternoon or tonight.

Winter arrived officially at 11:24 p. m. last night, when the northern axis of the earth reached its farthest point away from the sun. But the weather here yesterday remained a topcoatless high of 61 degrees at 2:54 p. m. According to the Weather Bureau, that is 7 degrees short of the all-time high record for December 21 in Washington, 68 degrees, set in 1923.

Washington is better off than the western two-thirds of the country. There, snow, sleet, blizzard conditions in some places, and frigid temperatures in others, left no doubt of winter's arrival. Coldest air was just west of the Great Lakes, with 21 below zero at International Falls, Minn.

Even with this cold blast moving slowly eastward, there's no indication that Washington will make good on a white Christmas. It will get a little colder, beginning Thursday night, but the Weather Bureau doesn't see "anything serious" here in the way of holiday weather.

Truman Urges Yule Welcome For Servicemen

By The Associated Press

President Truman appealed to American communities yesterday to make special efforts to welcome members of the armed forces into churches and private homes this Christmas.

The appeal was made through Frank L. Weil, chairman of the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces, who read it over the radio.

Weil asked that programs of "spiritual and moral support and recreational enjoyment" be prepared in churches, USO clubs, Red Cross chapters, community centers, service clubs and veterans posts.

Allies Agree on What Arms' U. S. Will Ship to Europe

By the United Press

Secretary of State Dean Acheson disclosed yesterday that agreements have been reached on what arms the United States will ship to its Atlantic Pact allies in western Europe. Details will be kept secret, however, for security reasons.

He told a news conference "gratifying progress" has been made in clearing the way for actual shipments under the $1,340,000,000 military aid program, which includes one billion dollars for Europe.

He emphasized that the United States won't be able to "satisfy in full" all the arms requests made by the eight pact countries but that all sides are in harmony on what will be done with the available funds.

Previous reports have said that the shipments will include guns, tanks and ammunition for ground forces from surplus United States World War II stocks, plus some tactical planes and light warships.

Says Captive Lands Live in Fear, Deaf To Appeals

Rededicates Nation To Self-Defense At Carillon Rites Held in Arlington

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

President Truman, in dedicating a war memorial carillon yesterday, rededicated America to readiness in self-defense so long as "a mailed fist" receives "the hand we hold out in friendship."

"The earth is deeply divided between free and captive peoples," he told a gathering of diplomats and high-ranking military at Arlington National Cemetery amphitheater. "There is no appeal to the brotherhood of men who live in daily fear of the concentration camp."

But this Nation, "by generous sharing of material goods," has restored to many peoples "faith in themselves, faith in their freedom, faith in the certain triumph of confidence over fear," the President said.

"Just as long as we continue to face our world responsibilities with the courage and realism we have already shown," he added, "we shall deserve to hope—and work—for lasting peace."

Solemnly and earnestly, he made frequent reference to the Deity in his speech at ceremonies sponsored by the American Veterans of World War II (Amvets), dedicating a memorial carillon at the cemetery.

If man could "achieve self-government and kinship with his God throughout the world, peace would not tremble in the constant dread of war," he declared.

In an age of divided peoples when peace must be protected, "we must resort to our own strength to hold aggression at bay," he said.

He departed from his obvious allusion to the threats of totalitarianism to talk of "man's personal independence," which he said is "cramped by the complexities of his economic existence."

It is therefore "the duty of Government to see that each citizen does not lose faith in his ability to provide freely by his efforts for his own welfare."

The $25,000 electric carillon, authorized by Congress at the request of Amvets, was formally presented by the organization's national commander, Harold Russell.

He said the bells will be "a daily reminder" with their "universal tongue of music" of the "overpowering necessity of an understanding which must be achieved, whatever the obstacles, if man is to fulfill his destiny as a human being and the promise of his immortal soul."

Wilhelm Munthe de Morgan-stierne, Ambassador from Norway, spoke on behalf of the assemblage of diplomats representing 48 allies in World War II.

Everybody Works, Duchess May, Too, Windsor Declares

Cherbourg, France, Dec. 21 (AP). The Duchess of Windsor "has received several offers" of jobs, the duke said today as they embarked on the Queen Elizabeth for the United States.

Asked whether the duchess would take a position at a fashion house, her husband replied negatively.

"Nothing is settled yet and, if some arrangement proves possible, it will be in Europe that we will live," he said.

"I know that everybody has to work today. I am writing at present three articles of memoirs which will be published in the United States."

The duke and duchess intend to spend four months in the United States and come back to France in May, if they find a house near Paris. They recently gave up their house on the French Riviera.

Sherman Stresses Need for Carriers

Boston, Dec. 21 (AP).—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of Naval Operations, said today there is "ample evidence" of a reawakening of Russian "maritime ambition."

He added that America's superior force of aircraft carriers must be maintained to keep vital sea lanes open.

Addressing the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Sherman said that Russia has more cruisers in active service than this country, and that Soviet shipbuilding capacity is reported double its 1940 level.

"Although Russia is predominately a land power and air power, there is ample evidence of a reawakening of maritime ambition," the top-ranking naval officer said. "Since 1935, heavy surface ship construction has been in progress and within the past year the number of cruisers and new destroyers in the Russian fleets has increased."

Sherman said the Soviet cruisers numbered 14. The United States now has 13 cruisers in active service and 60 more in its "mothball" fleet.

Sherman gave the Soviet fleet's known strength as three old battleships, 14 cruisers, 110 destroyer types, and about 270 submarines.

In addition, he said, it includes a force of motor torpedo boats, submarine chasers, and inshore patrol craft in peacetime which exceeds the numerical strength of equivalent types in all other navies combined—including the United States.

"Our outstanding superiority over the Russian fleet lies in our carrier force," Sherman said.

At present, the United States has 15 aircraft carriers in active service. In addition, it has 87 in "mothballs," including 62 small escort carriers. According to available information, Russia has no aircraft carriers.

Rival Rally Set

Italian Reds To Compete With Vatican

Rome, Dec. 21 (U.P.)—Italy's Communists invited a test of strength with the Vatican today, calling a mass meeting of landless peasants in Rome on Saturday at the time Pope Pius is scheduled to open the 1950 Holy Year in St. Peter's.

Vatican circles declared the protest rally was "a deliberate action" on the part of the Communsts "to detract from the importance of the Holy Year opening."

The Communist slogan for the rally was "peace and land for Christmas." In direct answer, Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, Vicar of Rome, called on all Romans to give to the world an example of their Christian faith as the Holy Year begins.

"You Romans," Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani said, "in this year of sanctification, must give an example to your brothers who come from abroad as pilgrims so that they will recognize the 'Holy City' and on returning to their homes will praise your faith."

Vatican workmen were busy erecting loudspeakers around St. Peter's Square and placing together the stands which will seat 50,000 for Saturday's ceremony.

Pact Nations Agree on Arms

Britain may get some B-29 bombers.

Acheson said two other hurdles must be cleared before large-scale shipments can begin.

One is the congressional stipulation that joint defense plans must be worked out by the pact nations and approved by President Truman before the bulk of the arms can go abroad.

The pact council—top body in the 12-nation anti-Communist treaty machinery—may meet here early next month to approve formally the defense plans already worked out by military leaders, Acheson said.

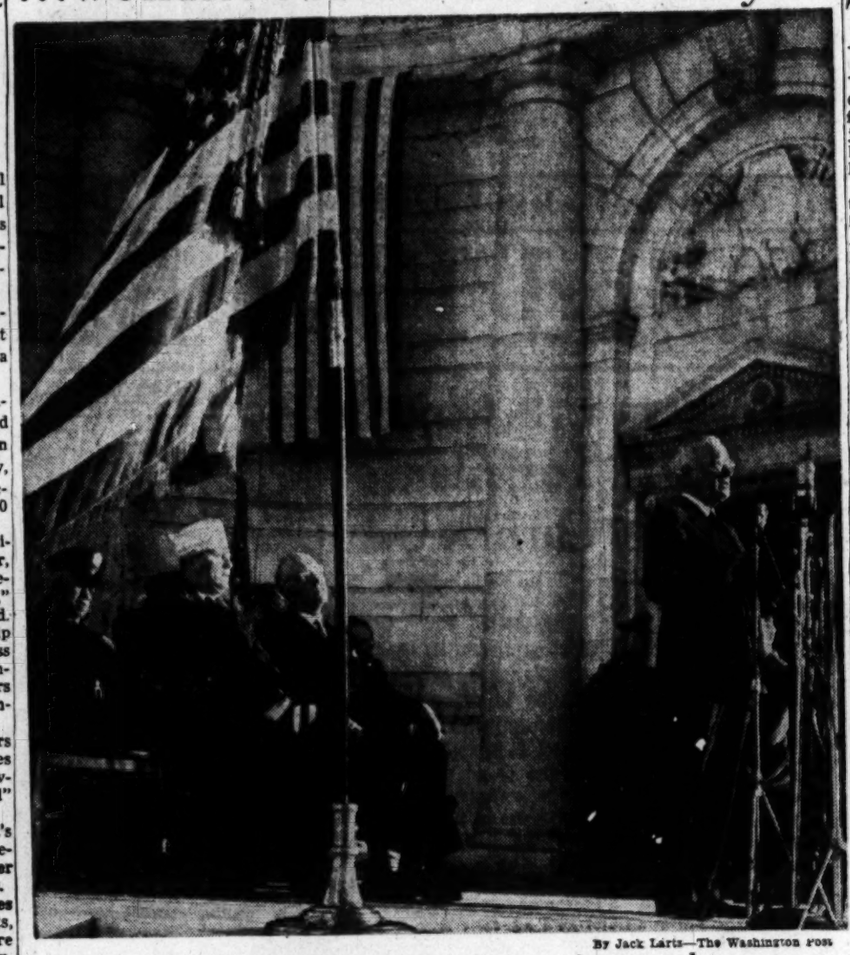
After the council acts, Mr. Truman can approve the plans quickly.

The other remaining problem is signing of bilateral agreements between the United States and the participating countries.

Acheson said negotiations with seven countries have settled the main principles and are now down to questions of phraseology, but United States and British officials are still discussing important general points of the agreement.

He emphasized that no quarrel is involved, and said the matter is being settled "in the sensible, rational way in which governments with a common purpose reach agreement."

'... We Have No Choice but to Stand Ready ...'



By Jack Larts—The Washington Post

As President Truman warns Nation to be prepared

Text of Truman's Speech at Arlington

By The Associated Press

The text of President Truman's address at the dedication of the carillon at Arlington National Cemetery follows:

HERE in Arlington National Cemetery, in the presence of our war dead, we have come to consecrate a carillon.

In their nightly hymn, the bells of the carillon will sing of our faith in the kinship of man and God. Each time they sing that faith, they will proclaim our compact with the veterans of our Nation's wars who gave their lives that our faith might endure.

Our American heritage of human freedom is born of the belief that man is created in the image of God and therefore is capable of governing himself. We have created here a Government dedicated to the dignity and the freedom of man. It is a Government whose creed is derived from the word of God, and its roots are deep in our spiritual foundations. Our democracy is an expression of faith in the spirit of man, and it is a declaration of faith in man as created by God.

On these spiritual foundations, we have established a creed of self-government more precious to us than life itself. These soldier graves are a testament to this creed, for these men died for it. While freedom prevails, we—the living—shall keep our compact with these dead. And as long as this Government remains rooted in the dignity of man and in his kinship with God, freedom will prevail.

Ifman could achieve self-government and kinship with his God throughout the world, peace would not tremble in the constant dread of war. Mankind is exhausted from the ordeal of conflict. All men are sick of blood-letting and hunger, and weary of the trouble suffered for so many years. If we could mobilize world opinion among all men who walk the earth, there would never be another war.

This we cannot do alone. For the earth is deeply divided between free and captive peoples. There is no appeal to the brotherhood of men who live in daily fear of the concentration camp. Until the captive peoples of the world emerge from darkness, they cannot see the hand we hold out in friendship. While they are made to respond to our handclasp with a mailed fist, we have no choice but to stand ready in self-defense.

MUCH as we prize peace and friendship, we prize freedom more. And much as we trust in God, while he is rejected by so many in the world, we must trust also in ourselves. In an age where peace must be protected, we must resort to our own strength to hold aggression at bay. When good will prevails and peace comes to the earth, it will come because we have had the resolution to hold fast through perilous times, and we have had the courage to share our resources with other nations who believe in freedom. By generous sharing of our material goods in the past few years, we have restored to many peoples faith in themselves, faith in their freedom, faith in the certain triumph of confidence over fear. Just as long as we continue to face our world responsibilities with the courage and realism we have already shown, we shall deserve the right to hope—and work—for lasting peace.

Meanwhile, our efforts in search of peace and security have not spared us problems at home. Not only do the security needs of our Nation seem at times to be in competition with social progress, but the attention we must give to weapons of defense may obscure the fact that the real basis of our strength is a strong and active faith in freedom. As long as freedom remains a force for human welfare, men will cherish it in their hearts and defend it with their lives. In this present-day world, where man's personal independence is cramped by the complexities of his economic existence, it is the duty of government to see that each citizen does not lose faith in his ability to provide freely by his efforts for his own welfare. We have revived the belief of free peoples in themselves in many foreign countries; and we must continue to safeguard at home the belief in ourselves and belief in freedom as the greatest force for human welfare.

This is an age where faith in oneself, faith in freedom, faith in the kinship of man and God, are more important to our survival than all the mighty armaments of war.

As these bells ring out their hymns, they will proclaim that message of faith. As long as they ring, these honored dead may rest.

While faith lives, so does freedom.

While freedom lives, so does hope of a just and lasting peace.

declared these nations always will fight for "freedom, true democracy, justice and human rights as embodied in the principles and stipulations of the United Nations."

The carillon, which is electronically operated from a console keyboard, was played by Dr. Arthur Bigelow, bellmaster of Princeton University. The first of several selections was the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Members of President Truman's Cabinet present included Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Secretary of Interior Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan and Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin.

Also attending were Chief Justice of the United States Fred M. Vinson, and Justices Sherman Minton and Tom Clark.

Johnson, Warns Against Defense 'Penny-Pinching'

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Secretary of Defense Johnson tonight warned against "penny-pinching" on defense outlays. He said the Nation's watchword must be "military security first, economy second."

In an address here, Johnson declared it would be just as disastrous to this country's security to trim preparedness funds too deeply as it would be to "wreck our economy by inordinate military expenses." He said this would "help the cold aims of potential aggressors."

Reporting on the unification economy campaign, Johnson said the military already had passed its initial goal in reducing the number of civilian employes.

He said that as of December 1, the Army, Navy and Air Force, have trimmed 138,000 workers off their payrolls—3000 more than originally scheduled.

(The Defense Department in Washington made public a breakdown showing the Army, as of December 1, had dropped 14,000 more civilian workers than had been planned. It said the Army had laid off 55,000 instead of 41,000, the Air Force 17,350 of the 18,000 cutback assigned to it and the Navy and Marine Corps 65,600 as against a goal of 76,000.)

industry, a genius in war, protagonist of peace, supreme interpreter of Marxist doctrine, sponsor of art and literature, friend of sports and inspirer of workers' progress.

Moscow was a blaze of red bunting, massive Stalin portraits, slogans and decorative lights. Greetings included one from Ambassador Alan G. Kirk of the United States.

Georgi Malenkov, a deputy prime minister and leading Politburo member, took the occasion to reiterate Stalin's words that communism and capitalism can abide in peace—at least for a "long period."

V. M. Molotov, former foreign minister and a powerful member of the Politburo, lashed out at Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia as a "gang of hired murderers and spies in the service of foreign imperialists." He said Tito's days are numbered.

Malenkov attacked "excessively complacent, boastful and neglectful" Soviet bureaucrats and openly invited criticism "from below."

(This could be taken as a sign that the purge, under way in many of the Soviet satellite states, is about to spread to Russia.

(However, Malenkov's remarks could also be only a reiteration of the Soviet theme of self-criticism. They appeared directed more at inefficiency than at errant Titoists, as in the other countries.)

L. P. Beria of the Politburo (who has been reported in charge of Soviet atomic developments) said that, thanks to Stalin's policy of industrialization, the USSR gained her position to "successfully and quickly solve the problem of receiving atomic energy."

Beria said the Soviet Union is now the second largest producer in the world of pig iron, coal, electric power, tractors, combines, trucks, cement and in gross industrial output. The United States is first.

Politburo Member Lazarus Kaganovich said the USSR's industrial ouput in 1949 had exceeded 1940 for the year as a whole by 40 percent.

Chinese Reds Strike In Two Directions

By The Associated Press

Red China's armies, nearing the end of a year in which they have all but blown the Nationalists off the mainland, yesterday stalked their enemy for knockout blows in the west and south.

The radio in the Communist capital of Peiping boasted that the armies of Gen. Hu Tsung-nan, the best left to the Nationalists in all China, were being encircled in the Chengtu area.

Previous Nationalist reports have indicated, however, that Hu has extricated the bulk of his 400,000-man armies from the former government capital in the west.

Hu's troops last were reported moving down the highway from Chengtu to Sikang Province. In mountain-bound Sikang Chiang Kai-shek proposes to set up a guerilla base for a hoped-for comeback on the mainland.

In the south, a press report in Hongkong said Red troops were embarked on a mass movement down the Liuchow Peninsula.

This is the peninsula that leads to Hainan Island, where remnant Nationalist forces from the debacle in south China have taken refuge.

Security Council's New Secretary

JAMES S. LAY, JR., yesterday was nominated executive secretary of the National Security Council, top defense agency. Lay, who has been assistant executive secretary, succeeds Sidney W. Souers, retired admiral ing as assistant executive secretary since the council was created. In his new post as executive secretary, he will receive a salary of $15,000 a year.

Souers, in his role as consultant, will be paid on a daily basis. It was explained at the White House that the new arrangement would give him more time to devote to his private interests, which are extensive.

Souers is chairman of the board of the National Loan Service Corporation, Atlanta, Ga.; a partner in extensive farming and mercantile operations in Southern Missouri, and a director of the General American Life Insurance Co., of St. Louis, Mo.

Lay was born in Washington on August 24, 1911, the son of James S. and Lillian (Lockhart) Lay. He attended McKinley High School (1925-1929), and was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1933 with the degree of bachelor of science. Two years later he was graduated from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration with the degree of master of business administration.

An Army reserve officer from his VMI days, Lay went into active service on May 8, 1941. In August of that year, after service with an artillery outfit in Louisiana, he was ordered to duty with the military intelligence division of the General Staff.

Lay was assigned to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in December, 1943, and served as secretary of the Joint Intelligence Committee and secretary of the Combined Intelligence Committee. He held the rank of lieutenant colonel when he ended his active duty in October, 1945.

Lay and his wife, the former Emily Graham Miller of Raleigh, N. C., live at 202 Forest dr., Falls Church, Va. They have three daughters, Carolyn Miller, 9; Patricia Lockhart, 7, and Emily Graham, 4.

AEC Successor Not Known To Lilienthal

David E. Lilienthal said yesterday he doesn't know who will succeed him as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Furthermore, he told reporters after talking with President Truman, he has made no recommendation for a successor.

Lilienthal said no definite date has been fixed for him to leave the AEC post, although he had hoped to quit December 31. He added that he told the President he is willing to stay on the job until his successor is named.

Mr. Truman has indicated that he will not name a new chairman before Congress reconvenes January 3.

Lilienthal said he has made no definite plans, but is "considering some things both in industry and in the practice of law."

While his plans are indefinite, Lilienthal was sure about one thing—that he is not going to run for the Senate from Wisconsin. Some University of Wisconsin students have proposed him for the race.

"No, period!" he replied when asked if he intended to run. "There is no advantage of jumping from the frying pan into the fire."

Over Finances

Bidault Calls For Vote of Confidence

Paris, Dec. 21 (U.P.)—Premier Georges Bidault announced tonight he would ask the National Assembly Thursday for a vote of confidence to break a two-week deadlock over the 1950 budget.

Bidault said he would go before the chamber late Thursday and that the vote would take place Christmas Eve.

He made the decision for a showdown with the full backing of his cabinet. He gave the cabinet a report on the budget crisis earlier in the day.

That meant the government would quit if it were defeated on any part of the 2,275,000,000,000 franc ($6,500,000,000) budget it considered vital. The figure is the highest in France's history.

If two successive governments are defeated on formal confidence motions, President Vincent Auriol can dissolve Parliament and call general elections ahead of the 1951 schedule.

The budget bill must be passed by midnight of December 31. France would risk losing 700 million dollars worth of Marshall Plan aid next year if she failed to balance her budget.

French Reds Hint Sabotage Of Pact Arms

Paris, Dec. 21 (AP).—French Communists are urging French troops to refuse to use any arms shipped here by the United States under the North Atlantic Treaty.

"The Wall Street warmongers are planning another war which they will fight with American tanks and French bodies," say thousands of leaflets distributed around army barracks today.

"The United States munitions France will get are junk, retrieved from the scrap heap. You are to be the sacrifices of imperialism."

A French security officer, asked whether these leaflets might affect the troops, said they were merely part of "a continuing Communist campaign to disrupt France."

"If it were not this," he said, "they would be agitating for something else."

The campaign among military men follows open Communist hints that party workers will seek to sabotage the unloading of American arms at French docks.

Treaties covering the terms of the arms deliveries are now being written in Washington.

Some French officials fear trouble with the arrival of the first guns, to be allocated from United States stocks of surplus war materials.

American officials are optimistic that the Communist attacks will be limited to propaganda or, possibly, demonstrations. The United States Embassy is watching the campaign, and keeping Washington informed.

Hungary, U.S. Each Says Other Violated Their Peace Treaty

Budapest, Dec. 21—(U.P.)—Hungary today charged the United States with violating the Hungarian peace treaty in a note timed to coincide with the U. S. protest over the arrest here of Robert Vogeler, vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The Hungarian note was delivered to U. S. officials just as a seven-page American note demanding the release of Vogeler was delivered to the Foreign Ministry. Vogeler has been held incommunicado for almost five weeks.

A short time later the U. S. Legation said the Hungarian Foreign Ministry so far has refused to confirm or deny the arrest of a second American, Israel Jacobson, of Rochester, N. Y. However, the legation believes he is held in jail.

Jacobson, manager of the Budapest office of the Jewish-American Joint Distribution Committee, disappeared just after returning from a six weeks vacation with his family in Chicago.

The Hungarian note demanded the return of unspecified Hungarian "goods" removed by the Nazis in 1944 which, it charged, were about to be sold at auction in Bavaria in violation of Article 30 of the peace treaty.

The note said Bavarians had told Hungarian representatives the goods were being sold under orders from the American authorities and the Bavarians were powerless to stop it. It asked that the auction be stopped.

The American note said Hungary, in arresting Vogeler, had violated the peace treaty and also the 1926 treaty on commerce and consular rights which guaranteed United States nationals constant protection and security in Hungary.

Quiz Is Sought On Race Bias In Military

Representative Jacob K. Javits (Rep.-Liberal, N. Y.), announced yesterday that he will seek an investigation into segregation policies and practices in the defense forces.

He wrote to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson that he believed it is "time for a complete airing of the whole situation" and for development of a bipartisan policy on the subject.

Javits said that segregation in the armed forces is having a strong effect among peoples in the Communist countries bordering the areas where United States troops are stationed.

"Though we recognize that the effort is made by Communist propagandists to inflate the alleged evils far beyond any true perspective, there is yet enough of it to damage our cause very materially in the cold war," Javits wrote Johnson.

He said he will introduce a resolution calling for a complete investigation as soon as Congress reconvenes January 3.

German Woman's Plea Will Silence U. S. Army Gun

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 21 (AP). A German woman's plea for quiet will silence the salute guns of the United States Army in Frankfurt.

The Army has decided to abandon the twice daily gun salutes which rattle the windows of houses for blocks around the American headquarters building.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Werner Schnelle wrote the American commander asking if he couldn't at least point the gun in another direction to reduce the force of the blast.

Today the Army wrote her that the salute will be fired for the last time Christmas Eve—except for occasional special military events.

"I trust that you will regard our action as in the nature of an unofficial Christmas present," the Army's letter said. "May the newfound tranquil and quiet of your home life presage luck and happiness for you in the New Year."

Vandenberg Predicts Aid Cut, Vetoes China Recognition Now

also warning GOP leaders that if what he was saying was "me-too-ism" then "any unity is me-too-ism."

Receiving reporters for the first time since he underwent a major operation for a lung condition October 8, Vandenberg was paler, somewhat more restrained than w'en he left here last fall, but soon he was jousting with reporters as of old.

"I must confess that I find major surgery somewhat like war," he said. "You win the war, but you have to wait for peace."

Will "Take It Easy"

He said he was happy to return to the Senate "though I shall have to take it easy until I have fully regained my strength."

Anticipating many of the questions fired at him, Vandenberg had pecked out on his typewriter many of the answers in advance and proceeded to read these and ad lib others.

On only one answer did he refuse to take cross-examination. That was a statement on what he thought the Republican party "ought to stand for."

He said the GOP's purpose should be this: "To restore the American system to safe foundations before it is too late and gear dependable programs with national solvency and individual freedom."

A reported commented: "You seem to be going back a little in the first part of that."

"You'll see I'm going forward, too," Vandenberg laughed.

"In politics, there are generalities on both sides of the fence," said Vandenberg.

Questioned about China policy, Vandenberg carefully refrained from joining the general Republican clamor against our course there, nor did he flatly bar ultimate recognition of the Communist regime.

Instead, he laid down two conditions he said the Communist government must fulfill in advance of any recognition:

"It must demonstrate its competent control," he said. "It must demonstrate its willingness to observe the amenities of international law. In neither respect does it now qualify for recognition."

[Secretary of State Acheson was asked at his press conference yesterday whether Vandenberg's conditions for recognition were not the same as those of the State Department. The Secretary answered that they were at least some of the criteria he himself had outlined.

[While Vandenberg named two such conditions, in past statements Acheson has added a third—that the new government must have the assent of the people it rules.—Editor's Note.]

The Michigan Republican declined to discuss any "specific" foreign policy until he has caught up with the facts, saying: "These are dangerous days for snap judgment."

In his "general observation" about China, he went on to say:

"It seems to me that recognition of a foreign government does not involve our approval of that form of government. But it does involve diplomatic relationships with a government which exercises competent control of a country and which practices the basic obligations of international law.

Would Apply Same Rule

"In 1933 I was one of two Senators of the Foreign Relations Committee who opposed the recognition of Soviet Russia until, upon my motion, the Senate required the official publication of the Roosevelt-Litvinoff letters, which pledged, among other things, the suspension of anti-American subversion. The pledge has not been kept. But the basis of recognition was made clear.

"I should apply the same general rule to the recognition of the Communist government in China . . ."

Concurring in other forecasts of sharp cuts in foreign aid, Vandenberg said he was talking about military as well as economic aid.

He said he expected the cuts "first, because it is time for effective self-help abroad to assume greater and far more effective responsibilities — second, because our own budget pressures require total economies all along the line."

"But let us never forget," Vandenberg stressed, "that so-called 'foreign aid' is dictated by our own intelligent self-interest in our own free peace and security, and that the greatest 'economy'—in lives and dollars is to stop another war before it starts or to win it if it does."

Asked about the "future" of bipartisan foreign policy, Vandenberg said he would like to define what the term means because it "means so many things" to different people, including some things "that aren't so."

"To me," said Vandenberg, "it means a mutual effort, under our indispensable two-party system, to unite our official voice at the water's edge so that America speaks with maximum authority against those who would divide and conquer us and the free world.

"It does not involve the remotest surrender of free debate in determining our position. On the contrary, frank cooperation and free debate are indispensable to ultimate unity. In a word, it simply seeks national security ahead of partisan advantage.

"But I want to reiterate that there has been and is no legitimate element of 'secrecy' or 'gag' in such a process. Every foreign policy must be totally debated and the 'loyal opposition' is under special obligation to see that this occurs."

He told newsmen some people "erroneously interpret bipartisan foreign policy as being a 'gag'."

He seemed to be hitting indirectly at leaders of the recent Chicago Republican strategy conference, including Strategy Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield, Vandenberg's own Michigan national committeeman.

Summerfield last week urged abandonment of the "me-too" policy in the 1950 GOP campaign.

Asked if he considered bipartisan foreign policy a "me-too" policy, Vandenberg said:

"'Me too' is a reciprocal in foreign policy. If you can't seek a meeting of minds, then our motto ought to be, 'United we fall and divided we stand.'"

Saying bipartisan foreign policy is better described as "unpartisan foreign policy," he continued:

"Bipartisan seems to imply an element of executive authority. Unpartisan policy is an attitude. Wherever it is applied it can be clearly demonstrated that it is the result of a free meeting of minds, which has involved Republican contributions fully as significant as Democratic contributions."

He commented on only one domestic issue—a proposal to cut insurance rates of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Vandenberg, one of the initial sponsors of deposit insurance, said:

"In my opinion, the FDIC having paid back all of its Government capital, having accumulated a large surplus in excess of one million dollars, the insurance assessment rate can be safely reduced. But . . . I will not support any reduction that does not have the affirmative recommendation of the FDIC itself, because I think undisturbed public confidence is one of the utterly indispensable factors in our national economy."

Bell System Union Strike Vote Mounts

The CIO Communications Workers of America is apparently lining up strength for an all-out battle—if necessary—to win an improved contract from the Bell Telephone System companies.

At St. Louis yesterday, the CWA's Division 20 announced that some 50,000 union employes of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. had authorized a strike, by a 4 to 1 vote, as a result of a breakdown in contract negotiations.

A few days ago, Division Six, representing some 12,000 Western Electric installation workers over the country, voted 2 to 1 in favor of a walkout if their demands are not met. Division Six includes several hundred Western Electric employes in the Washington area.

Western Electric warehouse workers, in division 18, will shortly hold a strike authorization meeting as a result of a stalemate in their negotiations.

Before the end of the month, CWA headquarters expects that some 70,000 of its members working for the Bell System—the union claims 306,000—will have voted to strike for a substantial wage boost, shorter work week, elimination of territorial wage differentials and shorter wage progression schedules.

CWA officials charge that the Bell System has set up a national policy of turning down all demands of the unions. These union officials insist that should there be a strike showdown the national leadership of the union will initiate and direct the strategy. Strikes by any of the CWA's divisions must be first approved by the international union.

Divisions 50 and 36, whose members work for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., are not currently engaged in contract negotiations.

Phone Rate Hearings Recess As U. S. Studies Depreciation

Hearings on Washington phone rate increases wound up for this year yesterday.

Public Utilities Commission Chairman James H. Flannagan announced the next move awaits receipt of a study of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. calculation of depreciation.

The depreciation study, being made by PUC and Federal Communications Commission experts, is expected to be completed early in January.

Officials said the present depreciation rate averaged about 4 percent. A change in the rate, they said would affect earnings, and possibly the proposed increases in rates to telephone users.

Whether the depreciation study leads to further hearings will depend on whether the telephone company accepts or rejects the results of the study, officials said.

There is an additional possibility of further hearings, Chairman Flannagan noted. If the PUC decides to grant increases in telephone rates, but limits the overall increase in revenues to a figure below the $3,200,000 asked by the company, the company will be requested to submit new rate schedules to fit the PUC revenue-increase figure. Further hearings would then be held, Flanagan said.

Three main choices have been recommended to the PUC — an average 13.9 percent increase requested by the telephone company, an average 8.75 percent increase suggested by a PUC expert, and an average 6 percent increase proposed by representatives of the Federal Government.

In yesterday's 40-minute session, the PUC heard additional testimony on telephone financing from Donald R. Belcher, treasurer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

NLRB Backs 'Struck Work' Clause in Union Contracts clause argued that it violated the secondary boycott ban, and that the employer did not have a right to waive the ban established for his protection.

Advocates of the "struck work" clause contended it was legal, that the employer had just as much right to waive his secondary boycott protection as did the unions in waiving their right to strike, as they have under certain contracts.

The secondary-boycott ban does not prohibit the employer from doing business with another employer or the union, in the opinion of three NLRB members—John M. Houston, Abe Murdock, and J. Copeland Gray. Chairman Paul Herzog agreed to the "ultimate" conclusion, but refused to hold that the contracts superseded the Taft - Hartley secondary - boycott ban. James J. Reynolds, jr., held that the "hot cargo" clause was "repugnant" to the spirit of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The case involved Conway's Express of Pittsfield, Mass., and a local of the AFL Teamsters. The local, which had a "struck-work" clause, had refused to handle Conway freight at three other express companies to which the Conway freight was diverted.

Meanwhile, for the second time, the NLRB yesterday banned craft unions from an industry, and ruled that employes of lumber companies must be represented by a single union.

The general ruling was issued in a case involving the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co.'s new sawmill and logging operations near Springfield, Oreg. The board ordered that a representation election be held among the company's 630 employes to determine whether they wished to belong to the CIO International Woodworkers Association, or the AFL United Brotherhood of Carpenters, or no union.

The board turned down the request of the AFL Electrical Workers and AFL Pulp, Sulphine and Papermill Workers for separate craft elections among 18 maintenance electricians and 18 powerhouse employes.

Owners Talk Of NLRB Suit Against Lewis

NYHT News Service

Coal mine operators are sounding out Government officials on the advisability of bringing unfair labor practice charges against John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers, it was learned yesterday.

Spokesmen for "dozens" of producers, have visited National Labor Relations Board headquarters here recently. Some have told general counsel Robert N. Denham and other board officials that they are "pretty close" to filing the charges.

The charges, the industry men have indicated, would be based on their contention that Lewis, in offering the big operators, on a take-it-or-leave-it basis, a contract which he says he has signed with a number of small independent operators, is not bargaining in good faith.

The Taft-Hartley law requires employers and unions to bargain collectively. It provides that they must "meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment or the negotiation of an agreement," but adds that they do not have to agree to a proposal or make concessions.

It was indicated that the operators' charges, if they are filed, might also contend that Lewis is trying to force on the industry an illegal contract. This, industry sources said, would be based on the argument that the "able and willing clause," which Lewis wants to continue in any new agreement, is illegal because it denies the operators a "firm" contract.

This clause states that the miners are required to work only when "able and willing." It has been used by Lewis as the basis for a number of "quickie" strikes.

Denham and his associates, it was said, told the industry officials the NLRB could not commit itself until an operator had actually filed a complaint.

Henry R. Luce Steps Down as Editor of Time

New York, Dec. 21. (U.P.)—Henry R. Luce, 51, today relinquished the post of editor of Time magazine and named Thomas S. Matthews as his successor.

Luce announced that Roy Alexander, former executive editor, will succeed Matthews as managing editor.

Luce has been editor of Time since its first issue on March 3, 1923, when he was 24 years old.

In announcing the change, Luce said:

"This marks a great forward step in the history of Time . . . Henceforth, Time will have a full-time editor instead of only my part-time service in that capacity."

Matthews joined Time as book editor in 1929, was named assistant managing editor in 1937, executive editor in 1942 and managing editor in 1943. A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, he was graduated from Princeton University and New College, Oxford.

Alexander, who worked on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for 14 years before he joined Time in 1939, was named senior editor in 1942 and made executive editor in 1943. He was born in Omaha, Nebr., and was graduated from St. Louis University.

Bridges Lawyer Hints Witness Is Insane

San Francisco, Dec. 21 (U.P.)—The Harry Bridges perjury-conspiracy trial began a 13-day holiday recess today after a stormy session in which Federal Judge George B. Harris again rejected a defense motion for a mistrial.

Harris dismissed the jury until Tuesday, January 3, after a new exchange of hot words between Defense Chief Vincent Hallinan and Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue.

The flare-up stemmed from Hallinan's declaration that he was "an expert on insanity" and his implication that Government witness, Paul Crouch, a Miami, Fla., newspaper employe, was insane.

During his continued cross-examination of the witness, Hallinan asked Crouch if he was "ever confined in an insane asylum."

Crouch's protests against Hallinan's "insults and insinuations" led the attorney to shout:

"I claim to be an expert on insanity. I have testified as such in court. I think I can recognize an insane person when I see one."

At this point, Donohue leaped up and asked: "Is there no way of keeping Mr. Hallinan within the bounds of decency?" He added that he had seen no evidence that he (Hallinan) was "an expert on anything."

Hallinan then declared Donohues remarks were misconduct on the part of the prosecution and moved for a mistrial.

Judge Harris denied the motion and instructed the jury to disregard all the remarks of both men.

Earlier, Hallinan questioned Crouch intensively regarding his testimony that Bridges was a member of the Communist national committee.

FBI Agent Admits Coplon Wire Tapping

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—An FBI agent testified today that Judith Coplon's telephone wire was tapped even when she talked to her lawyer long after her arrest on spy conspiracy charges.

The admission came at a pre-trial hearing after Miss Coplon and her codefendant, Valtentin A. Gubitchev, won a new, indefinite postponement of their trial.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan canceled the scheduled December 27 trial date, giving them added time to try to kill the Government's case.

It was the fifth postponement since last July 11, the original trial date.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's attorney, at once plunged ahead with his attack on Government wire-tapping of the defendant's phone. Wire-tapping has been ruled illegal as evidence.

FBI agent, James J. Lynch, testified that he intercepted calls over Miss Coplon's phone from February 1 until May 2. The former Government girl was arrested with Gubitchev in New York on March 4.

Listened in on Gubitchev

Lynch said the only specific call he remembered listening in on was one between Palmer and Miss Coplon. He added that he listened in on Gubitchev, too, during the same period.

Another agent, Daniel L. Gunn, said he was listening in on Miss Coplon's calls as late as last Augut 19, long after her first triel was over and while her attorney was fighting against the New York trial.

The FBI has admitted that 40 agents were assigned to listen in on telephones of both Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, a Soviet engineer and former United Nations employe.

Palmer argued that the Government's whole case is based on information it gathered through the wire-taps. If he can prove this, Judge Ryan said, the case may be thrown out of court before it ever comes to trial.

Incidental, U. S. Says

The Government replied that the wire-tapping was only incidental and that it has a case against the pair even without it.

Long shadowed by the FBI, Miss Coplon and Gubitchev were arrested in New York and accused of conspiring to transmit Government secrets to Russia.

Miss Coplon was convicted of stealing the secrets in a Washington trial last spring. She is appealing a 40-months to 10-year prison sentence.

Miss Coplon's attorney further claims that data found in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested was not secret.

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards and one of the Nation's top atomic officials, was called by the defense today in connection with the pretrial maneuvers.

He testified that information taken from the Brooklyn girl's purse by FBI agents last March "has been in the public domain for at least 20 years."

Geophone Data Involved

The Government contends that this information, concerning a device called a geophone, was secret and that Miss Coplon copied it with the intention of giving it to the Russians.

The memorandum found in Miss Coplon's purse said the Soviet trading corporation, Amtorg, was interested in buying geophones for atom research purposes.

Conson said the geophnoe was a device for measuring the force of explosions.

He testified that to the best of his knowledge these devices were not used in making atom bombs.

"I can't imagine how they could be," he said.

Palmer won from Judge Ryan an order that the Government produce 160 disks of recorded conversations made through the wire-taps.

The court ruled that the defense had a right to know what information the Government obtained through the wire-tapping.

Doris Duke Flies Home

New York, Dec. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Duke Rubirosa, heiress to the Duke tobacco millions, arrived today by plane from Paris. She said she would spend the Christmas holidays with her family, "perhaps out in the country."

Colored Pencil Use Explained by Hiss

New York, Dec. 21 (NYHT).—Alger Hiss today for the first time offered an explanation of why, in 1938, he wrote memorandums with different colored pencils, scrawling a hasty, abbreviated note at the top and copying it out carefully at length underneath.

The memorandums he described are four of the extracts from secret Government documents that Hiss is accused of giving to Whittaker Chambers in the first three months of 1938 for transmission to a Communist spy ring.

Hiss, on trial for perjury because he denied the accusation, completed two days of direct examination today and testified under cross-examination for an hour before the court adjourned for the Christmas holiday. His cross-examination will be resumed next Tuesday.

Hiss previously had acknowledged that the four memorandums were in his handwriting. He had said that he had no recollection of writing them, but from their contents he was sure that they were notes he had made for his own use while working as assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre.

Explains in Detail

He explained in detail today how he made such notes while reading through thick piles of documents, so that he could pick out items of interest to Sayre and later either tell Sayre about them or select the documents Sayre ought to read.

Hiss said it was his habit to go through a pile of documents once, making rapid notes and inserting them at the pages they referred to. Then, he said, he would go through the pile again, look at his notes, discard the less important ones to save time, and expand the more important notes so that he would not forget what they meant.

He said he had on his desk blue pencils, lead pencils, and pens, and would use whichever was handy. Sometimes he would scrawl the first note in one color and write the expanded note in another color; sometimes he would be interrupted in the middle of a sentence, lay his pencil down, and take up a different color pencil to finish the sentence.

Sometimes he would find the writing in one color illegible, and would write over it in another color. He said he never gave these notes to Sayre, but dropped them in his outgoing basket or his waste basket when he was through with them.

Refers to Memorandums

Hiss illustrated these and other details of his office habits by referring both to the memorandums he is alleged to have given to Chambers and to other handwritten memorandums from his personal files.

As for the 65 pages of typewritten material that Hiss is accused of giving to Chambers, he said he had never had in his house any paper like the paper they were typed on. It is a thin white paper previously identified by a Government documents expert as "onion skin."

Hiss had previously testified that neither he nor his wife typed the papers. The defense has not contested a Government claim that they were typed on a machine once owned by Hiss, but has sought to show that the machine was out of his possession at the time.

Hiss testified that his initials, which appear on some of the microfilmed documents produced by Chambers, were placed there by him when he finished with the documents and put them in his outgoing basket to be taken away. Other documents in the microfilm series were copies that had never reached his office, he said.

Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy spent most of his hour of cross-examination today reading to the jury the record of the meeting between Hiss and Chambers in the Commodore Hotel on August 17, 1948.

Confronted Each Other

This was the occasion when the House Un-American Activities Committee confronted the two men with each other for the first time since Chambers made his public accusations against Hiss and others on August 3, 1948.

The record showed that Hiss had identified Chambers as a man he had known as George Crosley. Before making this identification, Hiss looked into the other man's mouth, saying that the only thing he clearly remembered about Crosley's appearance was his very bad teeth.

Murphy also showed that the account Hiss gave to the committee about the disposition of his Ford car was not quite the same as his account at the two trials. Hiss denied that he had given false testimony.

Murphy also began questioning him about his withdrawal of $400 from a savings bank in November, 1937. Hiss said that Chambers—who has testified that Hiss lent him the money to buy a car—had never to his knowledge seen his bank book. At this point the court adjourned.

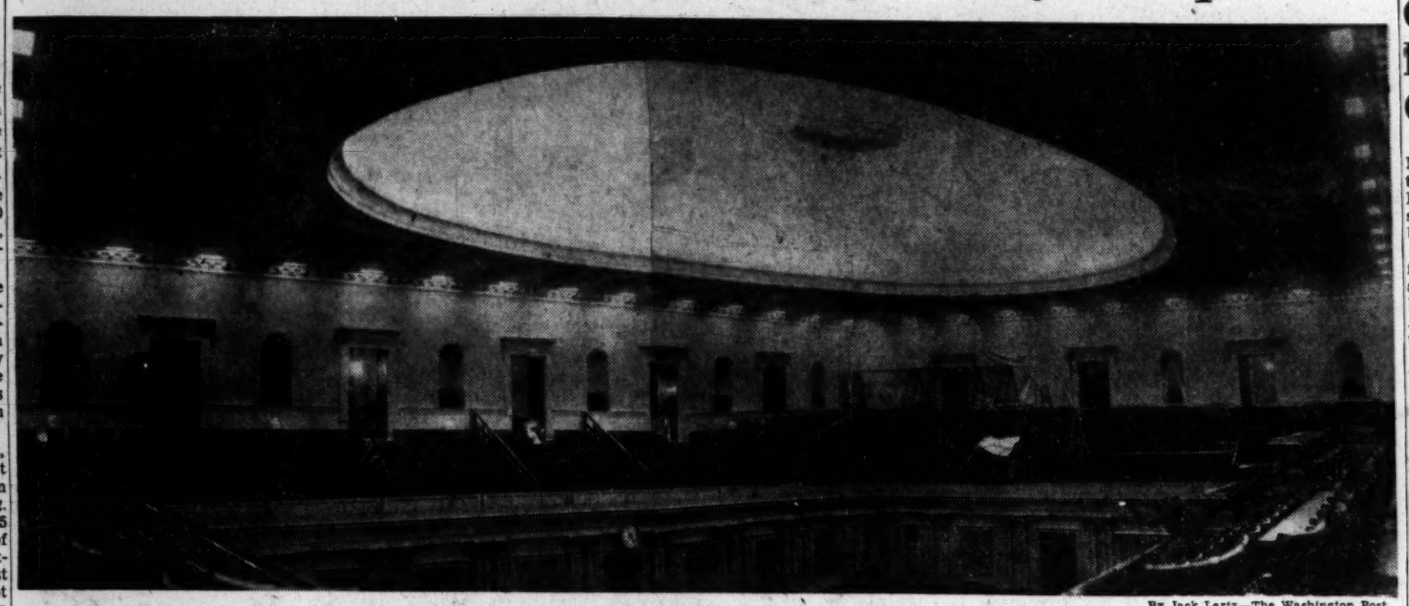
Senate Chamber's New Ceiling Nearly Complete



By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

WHEN SENATORS LOOK UP FROM THE NEXT SESSIONS OF CONGRESS THEY'LL SEE A WHITE CEILING AND PALE PINK WALLS

50 Early Birds To Count the Feathered Sort

Some 50 Washington people who happen to be interested in birds are getting ready to give them the old one-two-three. But with a pencil instead of a shotgun.

The call for the hunt will be sounded locally on December 30 by the fiftieth annual bird census, sponsored by the Audubon Society.

Crawling out of bed before dawn on December 30, Washington's bird enumerators will rendezvous in about seven groups, then trek through woods and wallow through marshland to count the greater snow goose and gadwalls and hooded mergansers. And even the eagle and owl.

If last year's count is an index, they'll find about 82 different species, and about 25,000 birds in all, spotted by sight and by song.

"We're starting out about 5 a. m.," Irston Barnes, president of the District Audubon Society explained, "because some birds burst into song about then, but are not heard, and so possibly not seen again during the day."

The counters, whose number includes professional ornithologists as well as those like Barnes, a Federal Trade Commission economist, who are hobby-keen about nature, will keep counting till dark. Another beak-counting sally will be staged on New Year's Day, to cover parts of the area not included on the thirtieth.

More than 4000 bird lovers will take part in the census, throughout the United States, and even in sections of Canada, Hawaii and Cuba.

Granting that the composite census will not represent a 100 percent accurate tally, still Audubon officials believe it will be a guide to the state of the American bird world.

Last year 8,800,000 birds were counted. But just when or by whom the idea of a Christmas-time bird count was originated, there is some little disagreement. It appears there are two schools of thought:

1. In the year 1899 Dr. Frank Chapman, the distinguished ornithologist, germinated the idea, shocked as he was that the Yule season had become a favorite time for hunting of birds with the loaded gun.

2. Then there are those, who say with District Audubon President Barnes, that it was Dr. Alexander Wetmore, executive secretary of the Smithsonian, who first dedicated the Christmastide season to bird-counting. This he did in company with an Ohio confrere, and during Christmas because it was then they had no other conflicting obligations.

Australia Now Third In DP Resettlement

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 21 (AP).—Australia now ranks third, behind the United States and Israel, among the nations accepting the largest number of refugees, the International Refugee Organization has announced.

By the end of October, the IRO said, Australia had accepted 89,213 refugees. The United States, in the same period, provided new homes for 130,497 refugees and Israel for 115,131. The United Kingdom, which had been in third place previously, was fourth with 82,824.

New Edition of Mother Goose By Briton Leaves Out Mayhem

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—A new version of Mother Goose, with the meanness missing, hit the British book market this week with a blaze of sweetness and light.

The three blind mice can see as well as you. Maybe better.

Humpty Dumpty's together again.

Old Mother Hubbard finds a bone for her dog, Jack and Jill get away without a skull fracture, and all this for sixpence (seven cents).

The book, called "Old Rhymes for New," is the brain child of a Manchester businessman, Geoffrey Hall.

When he was little they used to scare him blue with some of those rough old rhymes. For instance: "The maid was in the garden, hanging out her clothes, when down came a blackbird and pecked off her nose."

When he grew up, Hall decided to change all this with a complete rewrite of Mother Goose. With a friend Arthur Thompson, he has sunk $14,000 in the project.

The meeting between the farmer's wife and the three blind mice used to be pure murder. The sightless little beasts tried to make friends with her and what happened? The fiendish female turned on them with a butcher knife and hacked off their tails. Now it goes like this:

"Three kind mice.
"See how they run.
"They all ran after the farmer's wife,
"She cut them some cheese with a carving knife.
"Did you ever see such a thing in your life
"As three kind mice?"

In the bad old version Mother Hubbard couldn't give her dog a bone because the cupboard was bare. Things have changed:

"Old Mother Hubbard
"Went to the cupboard
"To get her wee dog a bone;
"When she got there
"She found plenty to 'spare',
"And so the dear dog had one."

The new Mother Goose is like that all the way through. Life is good. No mayhem, no murder, no noses pecked off and no little kids having nightmares.

Mavis, Lady Paget, a sponsor of the project, told a reporter:

"I think we have sound psychological backing for taking out the brutality. Children should not be subjected to ideas of unhappiness or sheer sadism."

Mexican Border Town to Get Snow As Yule Present

Calexico, Calif., Dec. 21 (AP)—Some small boy here is going to have an "impossible" Christmas wish come true.

On Christmas Eve it will snow on this California-Mexican border town for the first time since 1932. And all because of a letter to Santa Claus.

The post office received the note in which the boy, who didn't sign his name, told Santa how good he had been all year and how sad he was that he couldn't play in the snow at Christmastime, like Northern boys.

The Chamber of Commerce decided it would fulfill his wish.

So, starting at 3 p. m. Saturday, planes of the Border Flying Service will take off and, using crop-dusting ejectors, drop snow over the city. Snow will be freighted in from California mountain areas.

Red History Book For Soviet Zone Calls Christ Myth

Berlin, Dec. 21 (NYHT).—A Russian-issued ancient history textbook being distributed in the East Zone of Germany claims that "science proves that Christ never existed."

This was revealed today by the official Catholic newspaper in Berlin, the Petrus Blatt, which denounced the Soviet textbook as faulty and heretical.

The Catholic newspaper said the textbook "History of Ancient Times," now being used in Soviet Zone schools says on Page 206: "Science proves that there never has been a Christ. The myth of Christ was a legend passed on originally by word of mouth and written down only much later. In none of the historical works of that era is there a word about Jesus Christ."

Wavelike Motion Found in Top of Earth's Atmosphere

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—A discovery that the top of the earth's atmosphere rocks to and fro with a wavelike motion was reported here today from the British National Physical Laboratory, Slough, England.

The motion is like water in the top of a bucket after it has been tilted. There are both waves and ripples.

The discovery shows that the wave motion can be predicted, and this forecasting promises a new step in radio.

It will be used to beam radio long distances, far around the curvature of the earth, and far beyond the limits of radar. Such a beam might aid in steering a guided missile to a trans-ocean target.

Attempts to produce sugh beams have been under way for several years in the British laboratory. Since the upper atmosphere reflects all radio waves, except the shortest, it was easy to reflect back to earth a sharp radio beam.

The trouble was the reflected beam didn't hit the spot aimed at. All radio waves travel in straight lines. So if the sky acts as a mirror, the beam hitting the sky at an angle should return to earth at a spot which could be calculated accurately.

But a beam sent westward sometimes twisted northwest or southwest. The tilting of the sky mirror accounted for this. The British have found that this sky tilting is not random, but follows some apparently regular shifts. By predicting these, they hope to hit the targets of their radio beams.

Top Woman Bullfighter To Wed Lion Tamer

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 21 (AP).—The world's top feminine bullfighter, Conchita Cintron, is going to marry a lion hunter, Dom Francisco Castelo Branco.

Conchita will give up bullfighting after the marriage and go to Portuguese Africa with her husband to hunt.

600 du Ponts Plan Reunion On January 1

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 20 (AP). More than 600 du Ponts will get together in Wilmington New Year's Day to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the family's arrival in the United States.

A century and a half ago, on the first day of 1800, a storm-battered ship limped into Newport, R. I., bringing the founder of one of America's most fabulous families, the du Ponts of Delaware.

To celebrate that occasion, more than 75 percent of the 800 descendants of Pierre Samuel du Pont, including in-laws, will gather here for a huge family reunion.

About 30 are coming from France, England, Italy and Switzerland.

It will be something of a birthday party for the eldest member of the family, Pierre S. du Pont, who will be 80 years old January 15.

It has been Pierre with his two brothers, Lammot and Irenee, who have guided the destinies of the far-flung du Pont empire. It was their great-grandfather, Eleuthere Irenee du Pont, who founded the company as a gunpowder factory on the banks of the Brandywine River in 1802.

Facing Realities

If there is to be any furor in the coming session of Congress over the Administration's policy in regard to Communist China, it will have no sympathy from Senator Vandenberg. In his press conference yesterday the Michigander discussed the recognition problem from a point of view very similar to that taken by Secretary of State Acheson. And the Senator's reference to the bipartisan foreign policy as "a mutual effort under our indispensable two-party system to unite our official vote at the water's edge so that America speaks with maximum authority against those who would divide and conquer us" may well be regarded as a warning against playing politics with the Chinese situation.

More than a month ago Secretary Acheson said that recognition of a new regime coming into power should depend upon territorial control, respect for international obligations, and consent of the governed. Senator Vandenberg is quoted as saying that "the Communist regime in China should be recognized by this country only when it demonstrates it has control of that country and will carry out the basic obligations of international law." Apparently the only point on which disagreement might arise between the Administration and the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is in deciding when Mao Tse-tung's regime can be trusted to meet its international obligations.

As an indication that he is thinking in terms of a sound recognition policy and not reflecting mere personal emotions or ideological preferences, Mr. Vandenberg also spoke up for the return of an American ambassador to Spain. That is wholly consistent, for Franco's government apparently meets the test of having control over the territory of Spain and of willingness to abide by its international obligations. There is a vast difference, as we have pointed out on this page, between recognizing a foreign government that is obnoxious to our people and talking of friendship or military alliance with it. Senator Vandenberg is right in saying, however, that the first step should come from the United Nations General Assembly, which imposed an ambassadorial boycott upon Spain.

It is an encouraging fact that Senator Vandenberg has come back from his long illness with his ability to face realities undiminished. His sensible stand on the Chinese recognition problem may earn him the enmity of the extremists who are still trying to badger the Administration into a perilous alliance with the discredited and defeated Chinese Nationalist regime. But it will be a relief to those informed citizens who wish to see the United States use its influence constructively without underwriting lost causes or trying to accomplish the impossible.

Buses Or Parking?

A particularly crass example of privilege for the few at the expense of the many is to be found in the parking facilities enjoyed by Federal officials on 13th st. nw. near Pennsylvania ave. Some 42 private autos, belonging primarily to Coast Guard and Treasury employes, are parked daily in a part of the space between the Coast Guard and Postoffice buildings. At the same time Capital Transit buses serving eight different routes are crammed in the other part of the space. These buses accommodate some 1700 persons in a single half-hour period and hundreds more during the entire evening rush.

Anyone who has watched how these buses must load knows the inconvenience to patrons. The terminal is makeshift at best, and there is not sufficient space to permit easy turn-arounds or orderly lines of passengers. Loading is by mob, and few are the patrons who have not experienced a bruised rib or kicked shin.

The sensible thing would be to ban private parking and allow Capital Transit to use the entire space between the buildings. This would permit better loading and faster dispatch of buses. Indeed, Capital Transit has offered to build a $10,000 terminal there. But this effort has been balked by the Public Buildings Administration, presumably after squawks from the persons who benefit from the 42 parking spaces. It is significant that many times this number of Coast Guard and Treasury employes are inconvenienced by the bus jamming.

Better off-street bus terminals are one relatively simple means of relieving traffic congestion. Washington's traffic problem ought to be as much a concern of the Federal Government as of District authorities, and Federal cooperation is essential in any solution. Such cooperation is conspicuously lacking in the 13th st. tangle.

Ultimatum To Hungary

The note presented to the Hungarian government by Nathaniel P. Davis, American Minister at Budapest, is just about as stern and insistent as the diplomatic vocabulary permits. Ten years ago such a note could properly have been described as an ultimatum, that is to say a final declaration of terms. The nature of an ultimatum is that its terms must be accepted or rejected in toto; they are not to be made the basis of further negotiation.

The terms set forth in the note to the Hungarian government are unequivocal. The United States demands the immediate release and safe conduct from Hungary of Robert A. Vogeler, an American citizen and central European representative of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., who for a month has been the prisoner of the secret police. The Government also insists upon its right to claim damages and compensation both for itself and for Mr. Vogeler for any injuries he may have received during his imprisonment.

In so many words the United States accuses the Hungarian government of "ulterior purposes" and "bad faith." The ulterior purposes are not enumerated, but the inference is clear that the Department of State considers that the arrest of Mr. Vogeler is preliminary to a plan for the seizure of the extensive Hungarian properties of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. The charges of bad faith are, however, specific. The Hungarian government is accused of violations of international law, of the treaty of peace, of the Hungarian-American treaty of 1926, and of the Declaration of Human Rights by the Assembly of the United Nations. Indeed, the note insists upon the right of the United States to be concerned about the violation of these rights not only in the case of its own nationals, but also in the case of other foreigners in Hungary, and even in the case of Hungarian citizens to whom, says the note, the "fundamental human rights and freedoms" have also been denied.

Now, an ultimatum implies that if its terms are rejected negotiations will be broken off and that the party which has advanced the ultimatum will have recourse to other action. If the Hungarian government answers the note by releasing Mr. Vogeler, the United States, it seems certain, will present a similar demand in the case of Israel Jacobson, head of the American Joint Distribution Committee, arrested a week ago by the secret police, and will press for indemnities in both cases.

But what if the note is rejected or ignored? One step toward enforcing the terms of the note has already been taken; travel permits to Hungary have been forbidden to American citizens. In considering what further steps are possible we come to one of the great dilemmas raised in dealing with governments that have chosen to repudiate civilized usages where it serves their purposes. The United States can hardly seize Hungarian nationals who are legally in the United States as hostages for Messrs. Vogeler and Jacobson. It would have in the first place probably little effect upon the attitude of the Hungarian government. In the second place, it would be a violation of the very principles we are trying to uphold. An alternative would be the breaking off of all diplomatic relationships, but this would be only to create the sort of problem that now confronts us in the case of the Chinese Communists.

Shooting Santa Claus

"No sane man," observed the late Al Smith in one of his famous apothegms, "is going to shoot Santa Claus just before Christmas." All the same a clergyman over in Baltimore, the Rev. John Sinnott Martin, editor of the Catholic Review, has drawn a bead on the old fellow, and gives some indication of an itching trigger finger.

Father Martin's point, if we follow him, is that the commercialization of Christmas has distorted Santa Claus out of any resemblance to the good St. Nicholas, patron of mariners, children, pawnbrokers and girls of marriageable age. He has become instead a mythological and pagan embodiment of all the brazen values of a materialistic civilization.

Moreover, says Father Martin, Santa Claus has a way of spreading sorrow as well as gladness among those who look to him for benefactions. This "usurper of the minds and hearts and imaginations of children," he insists—> brings to the age of innocence as many heartaches as he does joys; and heartaches as well to fathers and mothers who cannot afford the luxury that he displays so lavishly in the windows of every shop and department store.

But Father Martin's main point is that the disenchantment that sooner or later follows from the Santa Claus myth may deaden the sensibility to the real joy of Christmas, which from his point of view, is a wholly spiritual one.

Well, although there is much in what he says, we think nevertheless our reverend friend is laying it on unnecessarily thick. After all, the buying and selling, the drinking and dining at Christmas, are merely an effort to give some sort of material expression to a kind of spiritual elevation. And the figure of Santa Claus seems to have assumed his present proportions, not so much as Father Martin supposes, as a Calvinist substitute for the Krist Kinde or Holy Infant, as from a desire of parents to renounce any personal credit for the good things given in his name.

But, of course, the thing can be, and usually is, overdone. And when Santa Claus is vulgarized, as he often is, the effect may possibly be harmful upon those who have come to regard him as an embodiment of everything good, kind and merry. It might be a good thing all around if script writers, comic artists and even merchants would agree to drop him (for as long as the legend thrives at all there is hardly fear for their profits) and permit him to regain his former status as a purely household spirit.

Atom Armistice

The proposal submitted to United Nations atomic control negotiators by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo is essentially a proposal for a truce rather than for an enduring treaty of peace. It is directed, this is to say, toward a temporary cessation of the rivalry in atomic armaments in order to open the way for negotiation later of a permanent system of international control. It would be a mistake to view this proposal as a rejection of, or even a substitute for, the atomic control plan advanced three years ago by the United States and accepted by a majority of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. What General Romulo seeks is simply a pause in the world's headlong race toward destruction before technical developments in atomic bomb production reach a stage which may make peaceful settlement impossible.

There is desperate need for such a pause. The problem is not now what it was when the Baruch Plan was first put forward by the United States. Three years ago this country could reasonably set forth the conditions under which it would share with the world a scientific secret of which it was presumed then to have exclusive possession. There is no longer any monopoly in atomic bombs. The problem today, therefore, is to arrest a competition in bombmaking already under way. This is primarily a political problem. It is a matter for diplomatic negotiation and compromise, rather than for the construction of a flawless technical system of control.

General Romulo has not presented a specific plan. He appears merely to have asked the countries represented in the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission to disregard their impasse over a permanent control system and give priority to consideration of the possibility of (1) a short-term armistice accompanied by an inspection system; (2) an interim prohibition on the use of atomic weapons with adequate safeguards; (3) further compromises between the majority and minority plans for permanent control; and (4) a new approach to the fundamental problem of control. This is substantially what the General Assembly asked in a resolution adopted just before its adjournment.

Any measure of agreement that might be achieved, with effective inspection machinery to make it enforceable, would be a boon to humanity. The terms in which General Romulo has outlined the problem make abundantly clear the difficulties entailed. "An inspection system" and "adequate safeguards" are the very heart of the differences between the United States and the USSR. But they are not incapable of adjustment if there is recognition that adjustment is indispensable to both countries. A limited agreement now would give the world a chance to reach a more satisfactory agreement later on. Continued rivalry carries a constant threat of annihilation.

Terror In Detroit

It is now plain that the officials of the CIO United Auto Workers are targets of an organized campaign of terror. The attempt Tuesday night to dynamite the union's headquarters in Detroit cannot rationally be dissociated from the attempt nearly two years ago to assassinate Walter Reuther, the union's president, and the similar attempt last May on the life of his brother, Victor Reuther, UAW educational director. What may previously have been construed as a plot to wreak personal vengeance on the two brothers now appears to be an attack on the union leadership as such.

The Detroit police have been conspicuously unsuccessful in solving either of the earlier crimes. And their prestige has certainly not been enhanced by their conduct so far in the dynamite attempt. Warned via a newspaper reporter that dynamite had been placed at the back door of the UAW building, they searched the premises and found nothing; after their departure, the explosives were discovered by two of the building's maintenance men. It is extremely heartening that Attorney General McGrath has found a legal basis for calling the much more efficient Federal Bureau of Investigation into the case.

These attacks threaten the orderly functioning of one of the most important and most respected labor unions in the country. They affect, therefore, a vital national interest. These are considerations that merely underscore the importance of bringing this campaign of terror to an end. The whole American community has an intimate interest in solving these Detroit crimes and punishing the dastardly, reckless men responsible for them.

DRY THE TEARS

Dry the tears, O bitter heart.
Bury grief and pain.
Death is but a golden link
In a glittering chain.

Surely from the winter's tomb
Come the dragonflies.
Surely on the frozen earth
Grass again will rise.

Raindrops on the rivers fall,
Flow to meet the sea,
Rise as clouds, fall again,
Circle eternally.

Dry the tears, O bitter heart.
Wisdom's shy and strange.
All the mind may know of truth
Is the link of change.

"Security And Freedom"

In your December 15 editorial, "Security and Freedom," one sentence, above all others, echoed what has become the most accepted fact in American life today: the greatest danger which we face is the threat of the Soviet Union.

Discussing the recent report of the Committee for Economic Development, on how the "magnitude of our security effort" has threatened our freedom, The Washington Post said: "The report makes it unmistakably plain . . . that our traditional liberties would be in infinitely greater danger if national security should be neglected."

This is a statement which, it seems to me, must be seriously questioned. I am not convinced that the thing against which we have built our enormous military establishment is the greatest evil we do face. Nor am I convinced that the loss of civil liberties "in the name of security" is preferable to having them deprived by Russian occupation.

Morally, the latter is undoubtably the better. The United States might easily be overrun by an "enemy" while striving to be friends with all Nations. And because we try to practice international goodwill, and evidence it by trusting others "dangerously," we may find our freedom taken from us.

I would prefer this, however, to the knowledge that the loss came from internal decay. "Freedoms unexercised," said the CED, "may be freedoms forfeited." Looking upon democratic principles as the standards by which people live together, rather than as the things which we selfishly "possess," it is by far the greater evil to allow them to die by disuse than to have them taken forcibly. It is the "bully code," not that of Christian ethics, which makes shameful the loss of possessions through refusal to fight.

Is it Russia which is our gravest danger, or is it an indifference toward all concepts of mutual trust, goodness and goodwill? The Russian philosophy certainly has within it methods and ideas which destroy and corrupt, but they are different from practices now cropping up in American life, only in degree, not in kind. And foremost among these new American practices is our absolute faith in force and our complete indifference toward the freedoms about which the CED is rightly concerned.

Lindbergh's Honor

I notice that Colonel Lindbergh has been made the recipient of an award for notable achievement in aviation.

While I do not necessarily begrudge the man this particular honor, I cannot help but remember that it was this same man who, just prior to the war, allied himself with some very strange people. The utterances made by Colonel Lindbergh, some as late as one month before Pearl Harbor, were so completely naive as to make them almost ridiculous.

Colonel Lindbergh made a trip to Germany, presumably to find out what Hitler was doing. He made a report to Gen. H. H. Arnold of the Air Force. According to Arnold it was "the most accurate picture of the Luftwaffe, its equipment, leaders, apparent plans, training methods and present defects I had so far received." If Lindbergh analyzed the situation so well, why did he not warn the people instead of making apologies for the Nazis? Lindbergh the aviator did a great service to the world and as such deserves recognition. However, Lindbergh the man deserves none.

Service Immorality

Every woman who has a man in the Army should write a letter of commendation to Gen. J. Lawton Collins for the important step he has taken in reducing immorality by making houses of prostitution out of bounds.

During World War II in Honolulu alone a 10-million-dollar annual business in prostitution flourished, undisturbed by military authorities; in England many babies were born of colored fathers and white mothers; a group of ministers returning from Germany after World War II stated it was a cesspool of immorality. Many homes have been broken up, with children the saddest victims. Many healthy, wholesome boys who went into the services, came out physical and moral wrecks.

It is only through an effective program of education that this matter can be controlled.

Prayer Of St. Francis

I am a Christopher Civics Club member. Since I deliver The Washington Post, the Christopher Civics Club asked me to ask you to put this prayer of St. Francis in The Post.

Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace;
Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
Where there is sadness, joy.
O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console;
To be loved as to love;
For it is in giving that we receive; it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, and it is in loving that we are born to eternal life.

Bogey Of Jewish Nationalism

The cry of "Jewish Nationalism," as it appeared in an article by Rabbi Lazaron on December 16, is hackneyed and obsolete. "Jewish nationalism" was a bogey created by the Council for Judaism to hinder the establishment of Israel and is still being promoted as a rallying point for this group.

It would be belittling to the Jewish citizens of the United States who have supported the cause of Israel to have to cite specific instances of their loyalties and patriotism. Enough said that many of the same have lived and died in the service of this country and will always continue to do so. We who support the cause of Israel do so because we have absorbed well this country's democratic teachings: humanity of the heart and justice of the soul.

Recently there has been a renaissance of Judaism in this country. Jews are attempting to learn more of their religion and their culture—their songs and their dances. Schools have been established for the purpose of education, with the belief that by teaching the children to become better Jews they will consequently become better Americans.

There is no religious issue involved in the support of Israel. The situation does not evoke anti-Semitic feelings in those not already prejudiced. The peoples of all faiths who have supported the cause of Israel do so because of their humane and just feelings.

MRS. LEONARD MELROD.
Washington.

Rabbi Lazaron, the American public should be told, speaks for a frustrated segment of the American Jewish community who represent the barest minority. This group has always been opposed to Zionism, as Rabbi Lazaron freely admits.

Rabbi Lazaron contends that non-Jews are concerned with the increase of anti-Jewish feeling brought about by Jewish nationalistic activity. Jewish nationalism, as it relates to Judaism, is a myth as is non-Jewish concern over it.

When we speak of Christian attitude toward the Jewish state it is far more appropriate to name the American Christian Palestine Committee and hosts of non-Jews who have been and remain loyal advocates of Zionism. Surely if there is the threat of binationalism, they must share the guilt along with the many interested Jews.

Now that the issue has been set forth publicly, I feel there should be a basic understanding of Zionism. Zionism, or the state of Israel, is the result of the people Rabbi Lazaron termed "the forlorn, the tragic and disinherited." Left to the American Council for Judaism, they would remain permanently so. Zionism would, and has, returned these people to their rightful inheritance.

Rabbi Lazaron does our country a grave injustice when he implies that it is un-American for Jews to support the national aspirations of a people. My understanding of American democracy has been that we have always encouraged the self-determination of peoples. It would be un-American to fail to give every conceivable support to a people fighting for their independence and self-respect.

Rabbi Lazaron further conjures up the specter of Jewish nationalism on a par with the "infiltration" tactics of totalitarian countries. He speaks of "secretly" designed textbooks and of hundreds of Jewish youth trained in Israel to indoctrinate American Jewish youth. In the simplest terms, what the rabbi distorted is nothing but to encourage the cultural relationship of two entities bound by one religious heritage under one God.

Finally, the rabbi contends, "there is disinclination in some Jewish quarters to discuss the issue openly because it is said, to discuss it will create anti-Semitism and give ammunition to the Jew hater." The term "disinclination" is misleading. The issue requires no special discussion because, fundamentally, we feel we are acting as Americans rather than as Jews. We are acting in the interest of world justice, world democracy and world peace. We, therefore, accept our activities to be as natural and normal as the Washington Committee for Atlantic Union.

What Happens To The Money

By Malvina Lindsay

It's Very Involved

THIS IS a report on why and where the money goes so fast these days.

With every third Christmas shopper I met complaining of being broke; with my own purse flattening alarmingly; with louder groans being heard at cash registers in grocery stores; with a senatorial subcommittee investigating food prices; with United States Steel planning to up its rates; with new threats of inflation creeping into the headlines, I decided to find out what was happening to our pocketbooks.

I first sought my old standby, the social historian. "It's all very involved," he said. "Every year, merchandising and life itself become more complex. There is more to see, want and buy."

"But the gift-giving is very sensible this year," I pointed out. "I understand that in no year since prewar days have gifts been so practical."

"Nothing costs like a good practical gift that will do service the next five years," he replied. "Now as the social organism has become more complex, a lot of people are sighing for the good old Christmases when a child was glad to get an orange and a sack of nuts instead of demanding a tricycle and an $8 sweater, and when adults swapped whatever they could rustle up around the house. Yet how many of these complainers would want to go back—say to 1900, when an average city family spent only $95 a year for clothing, and had a total income of only $750?

"WHAT'S MORE," he continued, "it's all getting more involved every year. If we raise living standards 27 percent by 1958, as some economists predict, we'll all be paying out a lot more at Christmas to buy ceiling clocks, Fiber V clothes and individual helicopters."

A psychologist to whom I put the enigma said "complex mental factors" were making Christmases more expensive. "If the other kids get electric trains, ours must have them. If other people send out 15-cent cards dare we send out 10-cent greetings? If our neighbors have been bringing us a $7.50 or even a $2.50 gift each year, we think we must be prepared to hand one back of equal value. A lot of elements are involved—face, social prestige, self esteem, fear of being thought cheap, insecurity, social ambition, sheepishness."

I took the matter up with a merchant. "Why should any shopper be broke," he demanded, "with prices so low I'm going bankrupt. It's all very involved, but with operating costs sky high, my profits are down to 1 mill on every gross of mutation mink housecoats."

REALIZING the price problem was bigger than Christmas, I found a "commodity expert" who had sat in on every session of the Senate Agriculture's Subcommittee hearing on food prices. "What about the high cost of coffee, milk, meat?" I demanded.

"The factors in the price structure are very complex. It's all very involved——"

"But this coffee shortage?"

"There isn't any real coffee shortage."

"Then somebody must have rigged the market or hoarded?"

"No. No. It's more complex than that."

"But who's getting the profits on food?"

"There are no profits—after wages, transportation, grading, sorting, packing, advertising, promotion, taxes, depreciation——"

"Never mind. Are food prices generally going up?"

"Heavens no! Nothing so crude as that! Some adjustments in the price structure may have to be made. Sundry diverse factors are involved. It's all very confusing."

"What about turkeys?"

"It's too early yet to gauge the relativity of demand and supply in relation to the price spiral."

"Well, why are we putting out so much for food when our warehouses are bursting with surpluses?"

"It's all very involved—subsidies, parity, level of the price structure, operating costs."

"Who's getting the money, farmer, merchant, middleman?"

"Nobody. The committee was told each of these was getting profits of only 1 mill per ton—"

"Wait! Can you tell me in two simple sentences where our money is going?"

"Yes! There are many factors involved. It's all very confusing."

Complete Present

Everyone appreciates a pat on the back occasionally, so here is mine for you. My husband, a captain in the Air Force, has so enjoyed the editorial pages of your paper that I've had to save every one since August. We moved to Massachusetts prior to his being sent to Japan, but he had The Washington Post come along by mail to me and now I still tear out the editorial page religiously every day. Since he has been away I've put all the pages in a nicely bound scrapbook—adding each day's as it arrives. This will be his Christmas present—The Washington Post editorials from August through December. I know I could give him nothing he would enjoy more. Of course, a letter from his wife in your letters' column would really make it complete now, wouldn't it?

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Government And Anarchy

LONDON.—In some earlier articles I suggested that the Asian countries which are immediately vulnerable to communism are those that were occupied during the war. In them occupation destroyed the administrative apparatus of the state and the authority of government; when occupation ended, stocks of arms were left among the discontented masses of the people. Conversely, the countries which are not immediately vulnerable are those which were not occupied—Turkey, Pakistan, and India. There government has continued and still has prestige and power. The peoples are not armed and they have not lost respect for authority.

But though government has continued, nevertheless in Pakistan and India sovereign control has passed from Britain and is partitioned among two new states. The critical question is whether these two governments can govern well enough to compose their conflicts and to survive amidst the misery and the turbulence of the masses.

IF THEY can settle down together and can govern themselves, there is no evident reason for fearing that they will be invaded or infiltrated and overcome from within. Communism, as such, is not now an important positive force in India and Pakistan. The threat which must be feared and constructively forestalled is not a Communist dictatorship but disintegration descending into anarchy.

The task of the Pakistani and Indian leaders is to establish governments which are benevolent and democratic in purpose among the profoundly undemocratic masses. Were they to fail—and the margin of safety is thin—the immediate outcome is not likely to be a powerful totalitarian Communist state but the breakup of both India and Pakistan into provincial and tribal principalities. Some perhaps may be animated by a primitive communism. Many more would probably be animated by various kinds of bossism, warlordism, and by weird brews of superstitious and depraved and fanatical native fascism.

A TRAVELER in India today is reminded at every turn by the monuments of other empires how short-lived have been the previous attempts to bring this whole subcontinent under one government. For more than 20 centuries there have been only two short periods during which something like political unity was achieved. The Mughal empire attained general power toward the end of the sixteenth century. But a hundred years later it was already in decay. The British who succeeded the Mughal emperors did not conquer the whole of India and consolidate their own rule until the middle of the nineteenth century. In less than 75 years the British rule had manifestly begun to decline. And when the British left in 1947 they were unable to hand over their power to a united India.

THIS HISTORY is a measure of the task which confronts the governments of Pakistan and India. They have to find some kind of unity, which their predecessors were never able to maintain for long. They cannot do it by conquest. They must do it by diplomatic agreement among themselves and by leadership and persuasion each within its own frontiers. It would be folly to underestimate the difficulty of establishing strong and effective governments over such masses of people in so vast a region, and to do it on the basis of the adult suffrages of over 100 million illiterates, who have no common language in which any of their leaders can address them all.

The higher administration of government and of the courts has to be carried on in English. Though it is the only common language of educated Indians, yet it is not understood by the great masses of the people. In Madras Province, one of more than a dozen provinces, there were for example at the last census some 45 million people—more than the whole population of France. Eighteen million speak Tamil, 17 million speak Telegu, the rest speak half a dozen other languages.

YET THE central and the provincial governments must govern through universal suffrage. Obviously and unavoidably there is a very strong tendency towards separation. Every great issue of policy runs squarely into the question whether the laws and the directives of the central government at New Delhi will be obeyed in the provinces. "The Center," as it is called in India, has taken over from the British a technique of administration, an admirably trained corps of senior civil servants, though there are only some 400 of them, a loyal and well disciplined army, and a judiciary with high traditions of impartiality and independence.

For the rest there are two principal unifying forces. One comes from the Congress party machines, which does more perhaps than the formal machinery of government itself to transmit and execute orders, taken at the top and at the center, among the villages and towns. The other unifying force is the heritage of reverence for Mahatma Gandhi which lives on in Pandit Nehru, his chosen apostle.

THE OVERRIDING question is whether the unifying and centralizing forces can overcome the disruptive and the separatist. On that the future depends. Whether India can conquer anarchy will determine whether India can exercise influence in Asia, whether India can begin to solve for herself, and to use successfully foreign capital and aid, the monstrous condition of poverty, ignorance, superstition and human injustice which comes down from time immemorial.

No words can put adequately the immensity of the task or the grandeur of the goal which the India leaders have set themselves. If they are to succeed, they must be able to count upon the patient and persistent will of their distant friends to learn to understand them candidly and then to help them wisely. For Asia cannot be "saved" or helped merely by dollars and atomic bombs and B-36s and the stereotypes and slogans of the cold war in Europe, and with the notion that a "policy" can be improvised by nervous planners in a cold sweat.

Voorhees Predicts Cut In Occupation Costs

Undersecretary of the Army Tracy S. Voorhees said yesterday he believed the present 480 million dollars annual cost of occupation government and relief in Japan and Okinawa can be cut by one third next year.

Recently returned from Japan, Voorhees told a news conference 100 million dollars already has been cut from fiscal 1951 budget requests for the Far East. He also reported Japan is providing 300 million dollars a year toward the maintenance of four United States Army divisions in that country.

Cuts In Foreign Aid

By Marquis Childs

Can We Keep Momentum?

PRESIDENT Truman's first meeting with the members of his Cabinet following his Florida vacation will hardly be held in the joyous mood of the holiday season. Too much that is harsh and forbidding lies just ahead.

Childs

The five-billion-dollar deficit and a budget trimmed like an underfed Christmas turkey to fit that deficit inevitably dominate the thinking of the Administration at this stage. The importance of the cuts that must be made has been impressed on all of the President's official family.

In two closely related spheres the concern is felt most deeply. One is national defense and the other is foreign aid.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson is facing the realities like a good soldier. Clearly if domestic programs must be trimmed, as it is expected they will be trimmed in the President's budget, then any new foreign programs are clearly out of the question. While this can hardly make the Secretary happy, he is not complaining.

The danger—and it is a very real danger—is that the whole momentum of America's positive postwar foreign policy will be lost. It is not so much that the tempo must be sustained by ever more and more spending on foreign programs. But it is not merely to coast on what may be left intact after Congress has finished slashing present programs.

THAT, of course, raises the big question—the Far East and the struggle against communism in Asia. The need for a constructive new program that would be tied in to the problem of European recovery and, above all, to the British debt in the Far East and the Middle East is glaringly obvious.

It has been considered likely that Point IV programs for India and Pakistan, and perhaps also for Iran, would be forthcoming shortly after January 1. These would be large-scale loans to start new irrigation, hydroelectric and industrial projects.

But, as of today at any rate, the decision is against any such program. The World Bank is being looked to as the source of construction loans. Likewise, the bank and the International Monetary Fund will, it is hoped, step in and help to work out some adjustment of the vast World War II debts that Britain owes to India, Pakistan, Egypt, Iran and almost every other country in that part of the world.

After all, our foreign policy planners point out, the World Bank is a very rich and flourishing institution. Its bonds sell readily to the financial community in New York. The bank has already granted two loans to India, one for 34 million dollars for railroad construction, and a second for 10 million dollars for land reclamation. A third application for 25 million dollars for steam-generating equipment for India's power system is under active discussion.

FROM THE point of view of understanding and good will, Prime Minister Nehru's visit to America was considered a great success. But it did not, as Nehru told some of his close friends in London on his return journey, happen quite as he had expected. He had thought that the United States would ask commitments from him, particularly on China and communism, and that in turn he would ask for commitments from this country. Instead, nothing was asked and nothing specific was offered.

In response to an invitation from President Truman, the Prime Minister of Pakistan, Liaquat Ali Khan, will visit America. Planned for next May, his visit is expected to follow the pattern of Nehru's journey.

On the foreign side the greatest concern is felt over possible cuts by an economy-minded Congress in the appropriation for administering the German occupation. At best, the plans and hopes centering around the West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer are based on shaky premises. If the prop of financial support is pulled out, the whole structure can come crashing down.

Especial concern is felt for Berlin, where unemployment remains at a critically high level. If the Russians continue to play it quiet, as they have been doing, stressing the phony facade of their East German government where all is peace and prosperity, then increasingly Berlin will drop out of the news and Congress and the public will become indifferent to the urgent needs of the occupation.

That is the foreign picture as it looks to the men who carry the heavy burden of responsibility. A following column will discuss the cuts in the defense program and their effect on national policy.

Tax Reduction On Lower Incomes Urged

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Both the CIO and the National Catholic Rural Life Conference yesterday urged Congress to lower taxes for the small income groups.

Testifying before the subcommittee on low-income families of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, Hyman H. Bookbinder, economist for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, suggested an income tax exemption of $1500 for a single person, $3000 for married couples, and $600 for each dependent.

Msgr. L. G. Ligutti, executive director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, told the subcommittee "it is an actual statistical fact, however, that the low income groups pay more taxes directly or indirectly than anyone else.

"And it hurts them more because it reduces an already limited income. Pennies by the fraction eventually amount to dollars by the bushel."

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers asked an increase in the Federal minimum wage to at least $1 an hour—together with tax reduction for low-income groups, greatly liberalized social security, and a national health insurance program.

Russell Smith, legislative secretary of the National Farmers Union, recommended Government loans to farmers who want to change their crops but lack the money or credit to do it on their own.

Justice and charity are the cornerstones of any real program to help low-income families, Msgr. L. G. Ligutti said. Other stones, he added, are work, thrift and honesty.

"From the general economic angle," Bookbinder told the committee, "there are two basic approaches to the problem of increasing the incomes of the 10 million families with incomes below $2000 annually.

"First, we can take these steps which will assure a more equitable distribution of the present national income. Such steps can be justified without difficulty on ethical grounds, on humanitarian grounds, on political grounds and above all—for the purpose of this inquiry—on economic grounds.

"Secondly we can take those steps which will assure a greater total national income. From this greater national income, we may expect improvement in the status of all groups, but primarily improvement for the low-income groups.

Bookbinder said congressional enactment of the 75 cent minimum wage was most welcome, but that the CIO was disappointed when Congress failed to extend coverage. Most of the wage earners in the lowest income groups will be found in those industries not now covered by Federal legislation," Bookbinder declared.

Describing what he said were the "hookworms" of low income families, Ligutti said that desire to spend above one's means, unwarranted and unjust profits, and taxes, were among them.

Anybody Want Christmas Tree for Free—in Florida?

You can get a Christmas tree, for free, from Uncle Sam, but there's a catch in it. Several catches, in fact.

The trees must be cut by the recipient on public land, more than 300 feet from a road, and selected from thick timber growth with permission of a representative of the bureau of land management of the Department of Interior. That's all, Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Interior, announced yesterday.

Biggest catch, though, is that there's no affected public land closer to Washington than Florida, Alabama, or Mississippi, and most affected lands are west of the Mississippi River.

1949 Pig Crop Breaks Record For Peacetime

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American farmers raised more pigs this year than in any other peacetime year in history—surpassed only by the war years of 1942 and 1943.

The Government Crop Reporting Board reported yesterday that an enormous total of 96.3 million pigs were raised this year.

On top of that, it estimates, on the basis of farmers' plans for next spring, that next year will exceed 1949 by at least 6 percent.

Meat Shortage Near End

The pork produced by this year's crop has about wiped out the meat shortage that has existed since the short corn crop of 1947—although other meats than pork—such as lamb and beef—are still not back to the levels of the late war years.

Because of the large pig crop, per capita consumption of meat is rapidly returning to its high level of 1947. In that year, the average American ate 156 pounds of meat. In 1948, the figure dropped to 144 pounds. This year it is estimated it will be about 150 pounds.

The only two years in which this year's crop was exceeded were in 1942, when 105 million pigs were raised, and 1943—the record year—when 122 million were produced.

Sows farrowing in the spring of 1950, the report says, total 9,797,000—7 percent above the number last spring.

Marketed Earlier

The report also points out that this year's porkers have gone to market earlier and in greater volume than usual. In spite of the huge increases, the number of pigs on farms on December 1 was about equal to the number on December 1 last year.

The prospective increase in next year's crop poses a problem for Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan. The new farm bill, passed in October, removed pork from the list of farm products protected by mandatory price supports. However, it left the question of supporting pork on a basis of 75 to 90 percent of parity to the discretion of the secretary.

Brannan has opposed any price support for pork through loans or purchases, because of the tremendous expense of storing meat, and the danger of spoilage.

Montgomery's Inoculation of Dogs Argued

The Montgomery County Council last night took under advisement arguments presented for and against its proposed dog vaccination ordinance at a public hearing in the Rockville Court House.

An overflow crowd caused the hearing to be moved from the council hearing room to the larger Circuit Court room.

Eleven speakers favored the ordinance. Six spoke against it.

Compulsory Question

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, and one of the supporting speakers, emphasized that the act does not prescribe "compulsory vaccination as such." He pointed out that owners either may have their pets vaccinated or keep them confined.

The ordinance would require payment of a $1 fee to cover vaccination expense at the same time dog licenses are purchased, and provide for impounding dogs running loose without vaccination tags.

Provisions are contained for redemption of impounded animals or their destruction within a specified time if unredeemed. A fine of not more than $50 is prescribed for violations.

Ellicott Explains

Dr. Ellicott stated it is not the intention to continue the ordinance indefinitely and added that vaccination "is not much for dogs to go through, compared with the anxiety of parents."

Representatives of organizations who testified their groups are on record in favor of the act were: Allan B. Fay, Montgomery County Civic Federation; Walter S. Broening, Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring; and Mrs. William Hinckley, public health lay council.

Dog Losers Testify

A list of 14 persons whose dogs died after vaccination was read by Mrs. H. D. Alvin, secretary of the Animal Protective Association, who declared imposition of the act would "cause us to lose our mental freedom."

Walter A. Neacey, president of the Dog Owners Association of Montgomery County, opposed the ordinance. The "compulsory" feature was stored by County Agent O. W. Anderson, and Harold J. Hilliard, executive secretary to the mayor of Takoma Park.

band will play Christmas music—from Bach to Beethoven—and the National Press Club Chorus will sing carols.

Tree decorations this year will depart from the usual red, blue and silver ornaments. They will be in pastel colors.

Most of the city's monuments, museums, and shrines will be closed Christmas Day, Sunday. On this list are the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial, Lee Mansion, Thomas Jefferson Memorial, Smithsonian Institution, and the National and Corcoran art galleries.

The Corcoran also will remain closed Monday, but National, and its Vienna Art Treasures exhibition, will be open. The Austrian masterpieces will be on view through January 22.

School closes today for most children in Washington and vicinity, except in the Montgomery County system, where pupils will report for a half day Friday.

Classes will be resumed January 3 in the District, Montgomery, Prince Georges, Fairfax, Falls Church, Arlington and Alexandria schools, as well as in the parochial schools of the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington.

Students return to Georgetown, Maryland, Howard and George Washington universities on January 3; to Catholic University, January 5, and American University, which excused students last Saturday, on January 2.

Travelers were warned by District transportation offices that the "big load" will come after Government offices close Friday night.

In preparation, Pennsylvania Railroad is scheduling 20 extra sections today, 41 Friday. Most of these will be to New York. No extra sections are planned by the railroad Sunday, but 25 are scheduled Monday.

Baltimore & Ohio has announced six extra holiday sections.

American, Capital, United, and TWA airlines are scheduling extra flights. Northwest and Eastern reported all facilities already utilized.

Greyhound and National Trailways bus lines announced extra service.

GI Prisoner Escapes, Then Surrenders

A Bolling Air Force Base prisoner made a leap for freedom from a work truck yesterday morning, and surrendered himself voluntarily two hours later.

He is Pfc. Samuel B. Gustafson, 20, who is awaiting trial on charges of stealing approximately $500 from wallets in the GI barracks.

Gustafson jumped from the back of the truck at 9:20 a. m. Thirty air police started scouring the base, and civilian authorities were notified.

At 11:30, the prisoner, a native of Battleground, Wash., turned himself in at the south entry gate, five blocks from where he jumped. He gave no explanation.

the roof of the home of William T. Slayton, 4810 Guilford rd.

Trooper Kenneth Tichnell of the Waterloo Barracks, dropped the animal with his second shot. Then he added a shot from his .38 caliber revolver after the animal fell.

State police had warned all schools that the monkey was potentially dangerous and on the loose.

Major Reagan said the animal would not have developed the disease until Christmas Day, if at all. He and Dr. Albert Bruckner, director of the Livestock Sanitary Service, said they could not be sure whether the monkey could have transmitted the disease after that date. One authority said that since the monkey had been inoculated in the brain, the disease would have been confined to its central nervous system, and thus could not have been transmitted to humans.

Reagan said the animal was one of 55 that had been purchased two weeks ago from a New York importing firm. Originally from India, the Rhesus was 2 years old, he said, weighed approximately 4 pounds and measured 2 feet.

An early report, that the animal weighed 40 pounds, caused State police to send a small air plane into the air from nearby College Park Airport to assist the searchers.

Reagan said the animal "was particularly nasty-tempered and had been ever since we got him. I've never seen a meaner, faster monkey in my life and I've worked with thousands of them."

The animal was first spotted by Charles Kaufman, guard at the nearby electronics laboratory a few minutes after the escape. "I got my gun ready to shoot," he said, "but he turned and I didn't get a chance."

Three hours later men working on the railroad track near the College Park station reported seeing the Rhesus scampering down the tracks. State police converged on the area, shotguns drawn.

A chicken yard full of roosters and ducks made tracking by sound impossible.

Shoppers Get Break From Bus Drivers

AB&W Transit Co. buses will roll between the District and Virginia at least until next week, officers of the bus drivers' and mechanics' union decided yesterday.

The union, Local 1131, Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL), last week authorized a committee of their officers to set a date for suspension of service within the District.

Technically on strike, the union drivers are working for the State of Virginia, which is operating the line under the State's antistrike law. The union contends the drivers may legally refuse to take the buses into the District. The plan is to stop at the Virginia line.

Union President Fred Dominy said his committee had conferred yesterday and decided that Christmas week would not be the time to start the partial strike. Though it would be effective at this time, it would hurt the public too much, he said. The committee will meet again next week.

Sergt. Cook, 4 Other Policemen Are Retired for Disabilities

Five policemen, one of them an outstanding detective in the Homicide Squad, were retired yesterday by the Police Retirement Board for disabilities.

Cook

George W. Cook, 52, a member of the force exactly 25 years today, was retired for complete disability. In his service, he received 21 commendations, several of them for work on important murder cases.

A veteran of World War I, he started as a motorcycle patrolman. Later he served at six different precincts. He became a precinct detective on December 1, 1939, and a detective sergeant and member of the Homicide Squad on August 6, 1941.

Friends of Detective Sergt. Cook said he underwent a serious stomach operation several months ago at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He lives at 17 Longfellow st. nw., with his wife, his son, Wendell, and two grandchildren.

The other officers retired, for varying degrees of disability, were Pvts. Arnold K. Bowen, 44, traffic division; Hamilton S. Carrico, 59, Harbor Precinct; William Gordon, 55, Fourteenth Precinct; and Franklin Gue, 47, Tenth Precinct.

Bowen, who was second oldest motorcycle man in Washington in point of service, was injured recently in a traffic accident while on duty. Gue, who has a record of numerous disciplinary actions as well as nine commendations, has been reported in ill health for some time.

Fresh Test Sought On Fringe Parking

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Fringe parking still is the best approach to a solution of the District's problem, Charles M. Upham, head of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, declared yesterday.

"Washington has to have fringe parking, and it has to be tied in with transit companies, either on regular or special lines," he said, in disclosing that he plans to propose another test of the plan.

Two fringe lots operated by the Merchants Parking Service and linked to the downtown area by Capital Transit Co. shuttle buses were discontinued earlier this year for lack of patronage.

Other Cities Cited

Upham said the agency has a few sites in mind, including one near the South Capitol st. bridge, and he plans to open discussion with the transit company shortly. He cited successful operation in Chicago, Philadelphia, and Hartford, Conn., among other cities, and added that New Yorkers, in effect, commute to the city by rail from fringe lots 40 and 50 miles away.

In Hartford the project lost money at first, it was explained, but after extensive advertising and purchases by merchants of blocks of parking tickets for free distribution to patrons, it got over the hump. A report on the program credits Hartford as the only city in the country offering all-day parking for a nickel.

Transit Operation

Transit companies in several cities, including Philadelphia, have found it profitable to operate the lots to build patronage for their vehicles, Upham noted. He said he would ask Capital Transit to do this here.

E. C. Giddings, CTC vice president, said company officials would be glad to meet with Upham, but pointed out the earnings on the earlier shuttle operation did not even meet operators' wages, much less other expenses.

Wallace Braun, Deputy Director of Vehicles and Traffic, said his agency could help in selecting speediest bus routes from the lots and in arranging traffic signals.

Upham said he has invited Charles S. LeCraw, jr., resident traffic engineer of the Eno Foundation for Traffic Control, Saugatuck, Conn.; Wilbur Smith of the Yale University Bureau of Highway Traffic, and a Public Roads Administration representative to make an expert study of Washington's parking problem and meet with the agency next month to discuss remedies.

Underground Facilities

He said that in his opinion underground parking facilities could not pay their own way, and the principal hope for above-ground parking structures was erection of combination buildings housing revenue-producing stores on the street level with parking above and behind. This construction, in effect, would constitute a neighborhood shopping center, such as those attracting District business into nearby Maryland and Virginia, he declared.

Upham said the Philadelphia plan of prohibiting all downtown parking could be considered only after other parking space is made available.

He said he still has confidence that private enterprise can meet the parking needs of Washington, but if need be, he would support city tax exemption for major parking facilities.

Kerosene Drinking Calls For Hospital

Home remedies aren't enough when children accidentally swallow kerosene, a Memphis (Tenn.) radiologist reports. In such cases, he said, immediate hospital treatment is essential.

The kerosene, he points out in a report in the current issue of Radiology, gets into the lungs and causes a characteristic pneumonia readily spotted by X-ray.

Dr. C. H. Heacock of Memphis discussed his findings on 156 children admitted to the John Gaston Hospital, Memphis, between January 1, 1945, and last July 31, because of accidental swallowing of kerosene. Of that number, he reported, 103 were hospitalized from 1 to 15 days, with only one death.

In 68 of the 103 children who exhibited toxic symptoms, Dr. Heacock reported, bronchopneumonia developed. And in some cases the lung changes were noted in X-ray films taken within 30 minutes of the kerosene swallowing.

Dr. Heacock admitted there are two schools of thought on how the kerosene enters the lungs. His own study, he said, substantiates the theory that kerosene is inhaled directly into the lungs during the swallowing.

The other school holds that the oil reaches the lungs through the bloodstream after its rapid absorption in the intestinal tract.

Standley Doubts Reds Have A-bomb Or 300 Submarines

Los Angeles, Dec. 21 (AP).—A former ambassador to Russia yesterday scouted reports that Russia has an enormous submarine fleet and the atom bomb.

Admiral William H. Standley, retired, at a press conference scoffed at a statement by Janes Fighting Ships that Russia has more than 300 submarines with hundreds more under construction.

"I don't believe they have the atom bomb," he said. "President Truman's report concerned their possession of the secret of atomic energy. From what I know of the industrial potential, I don't believe they have the bomb at all, and if they do, it's only in an experimental capacity. What's more, I don't think they can possible mass-produce it."

New York Mayor Gets Keg of Water From Arid Reno

Reno, Nev., Dec. 21 (AP)—Add wedding presents for Mayor William O'Dwyer of water-short New York: A keg of water.

The Reno Chamber of Commerce sent it off.

That's quite a present, too, from this country where in normal years only seven inches of rain falls, and in recent years less than half that amount.

Reno's own reservoirs are at their lowest since 1934 and the current snow pack in the nearby Sierra is far below normal.

Come next summer, the Chamber of Commerce may have to ask for return of the keg—full.

British Shipworkers Fear Layoffs Soon

London, Dec. 21 (AP)—A British union official predicted yesterday United Kingdom shipyards will have to lay off 75,000 workers by 1951.

E. J. Hill, general secretary of the Boilermakers Society, said 15,000 ship repairmen are out of jobs already.

Hill said 24 British shipyards out of 37 have no new orders for 1951. In 1950, he added, the yards will complete 296 ships while starting only 102 new ones.

New Studies Show Facts About Eyes

Girls, don't take offense—or encouragement—too readily at the flutter of a man's eyelids. He may just be resting his eyes.

The Better Vision Institute, interested in everything pertaining to the eyes, reports that blinking is the eye's chief pause that refreshes.

Sightless Periods

Psychologists, reports the institute, have determined that every time a person blinks his vision is shut off for three-tenths of a second. Thus, with short periods of readjustment after each blink, a person is more or less unseeing from 11 to 20 percent of his waking hours.

Blinking keeps the eyes moist and clean, and provides rest and refreshment for the nerves and the brain. A man whose eyes were kept open forcibly would go to pieces, according to the psychologist.

The institute adds further data to its latest report on "Winking and Blinking:"

Fish don't blink because swimming keeps their eyes clean, and because they have so little intelligence that they can bear uninterrupted vision.

Birds, however, have two sets of blinkers—a regular pair of eyelids that can black out things as those of human beings do, and a transparent pair which can be lowered to protect the eyes without obstructing their vision.

There's a physiological difference between blinking and winking. In blinking, the upper eyelid does most of the work, and the two lids meet approximately at the base of the iris. In winking, the eyelid movement is shared about equally by the upper and lower lids.

Theater Unit Planned Near East Riverdale

Plans for construction of a $200,000 movie theater, recreation center and bowling alley near East Riverdale were disclosed at a zoning hearing before the Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday.

The commissioners granted heavy commercial (C-2) zoning for the site, a 7-acre tract on Edmonston rd., near East Riverdale, Md.

Paul H. Lauterbach, owner of the tract, said he planned to erect the center when adequate sewer and water facilities are provided by Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. Rezoning of the tract, which is now classified as residential, was opposed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission as being "an invasion of a residential area."

Director of Planning Fred W. Tuemmler told the commissioners rezoning would constitute spot-zoning and be contrary to the master zoning plan.

The hearing was the first held under the new zoning ordinance adopted November 29. The new law broke down general classifications into more specific classifiations.

Bampton Sings With Symphony

By Paul Hume

The second half of last night's National Symphony concert blazed with some of the greatest music making in the history of this city.

Rose Bampton was soloist in excerpts from Alban Berg's opera Wozzeck. After that, Howard Mitchell and the orchestra delivered some of their finest playing in Ravel's transcription of Moussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition.

Berg's story is a tragic one, gilded with unbroken pathos. In excerpts heard last night, Miss Bampton displayed profound gifts of dramatic quality. Her speaking was as moving as her singing was eloquent.

The music wavers between tonalities and is scored in channels of new colors. The orchestra played the intricate measures surely and with rare appeal. Bampton's conception of the work is sure and inspires true grief.

She was accorded the season's most thundering ovation at the close of the work. We would have been happy to hear the entire section repeated. It is high time Washington heard music of this caliber. Mitchell deserves great praise for bringing it to us.

The "Pictures at an Exhibition" were equally dramatic. Ravel's command of orchestral textures results in unique and brilliant sonorities. The men and women of the National Symphony played every part with splendid effect. It should become one of their staples and highest successes.

The first half of the evening was less happy. The overture to "Midsummer night's Dream" was played to perfection, as was Samuel Barber's famous adagio before it. The nocturne from the same music went well with Klang handling the horn solo easily. The scherzo lacked that final ounce of precision in the strings needed to make it polished.

Miss Bampton sang Bach's "Bist Du Bei Mir" with some effort before Leonora's great aria from Act One of Beethoven's "Fidelio." In this she lacks the true romance of the real dramatic soprano. Her understanding and style are keen. But both high Bs escaped her, and the entire scene needed more point from the voice.

The horns of the orchestra disgraced themselves and their conductor at almost every point in the Beethoven. After last week it is hard to put up with them in such playing.

Next week: Earl Wild in Rachmanioff's second concerto, with Prokofieff's Classical Symphony.

One on the Aisle—

'Holiday Affair' Hewn to Season

By Richard L. Coe

KEITH'S HAS A pleasant, sentimental little picture for its Christmas offering, "Holiday Affair," with Robert Mitchum and Wendell Corey posing a matrimonial problem for Janet Leigh.

While the situations are fundamentally familiar, even contrived, the dialogue is pleasingly spontaneous and natural. And there's a deft little fellow, Gordon Gebert, on tap to play a likable 6-year-old who'll please you with his natural air.

The situation has to do with the war widow who's bringing up her fatherless son with the image of his father constantly in her mind. She works as a comparison shopper for a New York department store and has been courted for several years by a sturdy, affable lawyer, whom she likes but doesn't thrill to.

In her work she comes across a quietly philosophical fellow who wants to build boats in California. He's saving his money to buy into the business, but forms an immediate understanding with the lad which the lawyer's never been able to build. The mother's choice works out as you know it will from the casting.

What makes all this palatable is the polished playing of its principals and the unabashed sentimentality of the writer's and director's approach. The boy is given penetratingly childlike things to say and one suspects that many of the scenes have been taken only once. The boy actor's lines are sometimes inaudible, just as youngsters sayings frequently are, and the way his face belies what he is saying adds to the portrayal immensely.

Naturally, the sentiment is pretty obvious. It seems, for instance, unnecessary to have the lawyer bemoan his own lack of a family. The "misplaced veteran" angle of the boat-dreamer's role is quite needless. The late husband's parents put in an appearance, though they don't fit too clearly into the life the widow has built for herself. The department store tycoon's generosity is on the thick side; other developments seem needlessly cute and coy, but since "Holiday Affair" is supposed to be only a sentimental little Christmas story, they're included with a purpose.

Of the cast, Wendell Corey is particularly effective as the friendly lawyer who doesn't get the girl. With deceptive ease he makes the fellow entirely likable, at the same time giving a touch of the reasonable to the young widows' reluctance.

Janet Leigh is pretty and fairly believable as the girl with the choice to make, and Robert Mitchum's straightforward style overcomes the somewhat overdrawn role of the successful romantico.

Isobel Lennart wrote the screen play and Don Hartman directed, accenting the sentiment of the Yule season.

New York to Get Friday Baths As Water Shortage Continues

New York, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—The people of New York got a reprieve from bathless Friday today because of the Christmas holidays.

Chief Engineer Edward Clark of the water department announced there would be no "water holiday" this weekend and probably not the Friday before New Year.

But the city's reservoirs were still dropping and, at the present rate of loss, there would be a failure of pressure in 62 days although winter rain and snow were expected to ease the crisis.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey loosed another blast at the city for failing to foresee the shortage and announced that he was coming to New York tomorrow to talk with acting Mayor Vincent Impelleteri and city engineers about a problem which, he said, was endangering the health of eight million people.

"I am particularly concerned because the government of the City of New York has delayed so long in taking steps to meet the emergency which has been clearly present for more than a year and as to which it has been repeatedly warned by the State for 20 years," Dewey said.

Clark was in an angry mood at his daily press conference today in replying to Dewey's charge that 16 months ago "any casual motorist" could see for himself that the reservoirs were low.

"Now I'm an engineer and I like facts," he said. "At that time the reservoirs were 91.5 percent full and in the latter part of May this year they were full to overflowing."

Spain Raises Taxes; 35 Percent for Arms

Madrid, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Spanish Cortes today voted higher taxes to meet the record-breaking 1950 budget. Thirty-five percent of revenues are earmarked for the armed forces.

The budget of 18,040,872,075 pesetas ($1,640,000,000) was approved with only 19 deputies of a total of 450 voting against it.

New taxes average an 8.3 percent increase. They are applied to property, industry, consumers' goods and services.

TWO STYLES in Metal
. . . one for corners
. . . one for straight walls

2.95 each

It's the brightest idea we've seen in many a day! The cleverest gift tip for Christmas, too! A pin-up lamp made of circular metal bands with jewel-toned enamel baked on to stay on. Soft, glareless light diffuses through the bands . . . spread upwards, downwards, all around the room, to shed a warm romantic glow. Try a pair of "Pin-Ups" above either end of your sofa. Put one on a straight wall over your chair or bed. Use another in the corner of your foyer as a night light. They measure 6-in. wide, 9-in. high overall. They're easy to attach. Wipe clean with a damp cloth. The Hecht Co. has them in ivory, green, Chinese red, yellow, to point up any color scheme. Treat yourself at this modest price. Don't forget to hang one on some smart Home-Maker's Christmas Tree.

Lakers Romp, 75-61, After Caps Collapse in 2d Half

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

WHEN JACKIE ROBINSON testified before the un-American Activities Committee last summer to emphasize that communism held no fascination for Negro Americans despite Paul Robeson, he also made baseball history.

The congressional committee heard Robinson read his full statement and indulged him when the Brooklyn star, in a sort of aside, declared his intention to demand a big pay raise from Branch Rickey next season. It was the first time that a ball player ever announced a salary demand under oath.

Povich

Well, Jackie this week finds himself in a wonderful bargaining position. The publication of the official National League batting averages for 1949 show him as the league's leading hitter with a .342 average that was four points better than Stan Musial's. And he topped the league also in the business of batting in the most runs.

It's apparent now, that Robinson has definitely spanned the big jump from the minors to stardom in the major leagues. One year ago this week, the averages officially recognized him as the top defensive second baseman in the league, and he already was the best base stealer in the circuit.

FOR PIONEERING as the first club owner to invite a Negro into the major leagues, Rickey has reaped handsome dividends, not only in the performance of Robinson, but in last season's demonstrations by the Dodgers' two other colored players. Don Newcombe was the finest rookie pitcher in the league, and their Roy Campanella was the best catcher, rookie or veteran.

The Negro race was fortunate, perhaps, to come up with such a trail-blazer as Robinson, a fellow who made good at his first asking and was mindful of the significance of his position. Jackie leaped the racial barriers gracefully, fought back the temptation to quarrel with the umpires in his first two seasons, and quickly won the respect of his teammates and the rest of the league.

In those first couple of seasons he was a bit timid, perhaps, of joining the card games of the players in training camp, but that wore off. The Dodgers brushed the color line aside, and sought Jackie out socially. And last season, with his position as one of the boys firmly established, he, too, baited the umpires. No longer was it exclusively a white man's prerogative.

ROBINSON HAD two news-making brushes with the umpires last season—the first one at St. Louis in the waning days of the year when Bill Stewart threw him out of the game for the supreme insult to an umpire. Stewart was working behind the bat when Jackie gave him the "choke-up" sign from second base, indicating that the umpire didn't have the courage to call 'em right and was favoring the home club.

For that, Robinson got the thumb, but there could not be read into it any special prejudice toward Jackie. Jackie's act was the surest way of getting thrown out of a ball game, and many a white player before him was ejected for the same reason. Ball players have a wonderful philosophy about that sort of thing anyway. They don't blame each other for insulting the umpires, and they don't blame the umpires for getting sore about it.

The World Series was the setting for Jackie's most famous comeuppance, though. In a fit of anger between games, he made a scathing crack about "American League umpiring." The next day, he apologized to Cal Hubbard. But it was not as simple as that. It was an order from Commissioner Chandler, who said significantly that no player, colored or white, could get away with such comment.

DESPITE his 16 home runs, and those 124 runs batted in, Robinson isn't the popular conception of a power hitter. His swing is more on the classic side, a wonderfully level stroke which all the textbooks of the game attempt to achieve. He leans into a pitch more than he swings at it, and with use of his muscular arms and wrists is a late swatter who gets that last valuable look at the ball.

There is some question, though, how long Jackie is going to be up around the top. He'll be 31 next month, and the fact is he is not nearly as sprightly around second base as he was a couple of years back. He's a 200-pounder who must fight to keep his weight down, and thus far has refuted the belief that speed doesn't go with weight. But he definitely had slowed up last year.

If Robinson does back-slide quickly in the field, he still promises to drive in more runs than he lets in. And if his isn't one of the long careers in the big leagues, Jackie and his fans will at least have the consolation that while up there he gave it a tremendous whirl.

Roy Ishman Leads AU's 65-47 Rout Of Wesleyan

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

American University used its superior height and zone defense effectively in its small gym, and subdued Ohio Wesleyan, 65-47, last night before 800.

Leroy Ishman won scoring honors for the Eagles with 19 points, 15 of which were made in the first half. Sharing equally in the victory was Bob Lamon, who scored 13 and captained the A.U. defense, which repeatedly broke up Wesleyan's passing game before it crossed the center strip.

Center Jud Millhon, whose twin brother Bill plays guard, was Wesleyan's pacemaker with 20 points. Like Millhon, Jack Smith scored seven for Wesleyan in the first half, but he fell off to only three after intermission as the Eagles pulled away to their fourth victory in seven starts.

Beat Terps, 75-71

Wesleyan, 75-71 conqueror of the University of Maryland last Monday, dropped its fifth game in eight starts. It was a tight game for only the first 11 minutes when the lead changed hands eight times. Finally, Lamon put in a set shot and AU took the lead for keeps, 13-12. Six-foot 6-inch Ronnie Garshap and 6-foot 5-inch Sherwood Webster helped keep the Eagles control of the ball by grabbing most of the rebounds.

Just before halftime the Eagles had an 8-point streak, and by the halfway mark their lead had expanded to 33-20. With Garshag hitting three times on hook shots and Lamon pitching in from near the center line, the Eagles upped their advantage to 44-26 and AU Coach Staff Cassell inserted his second and third stringers.

Even with the reserves in there, American's lead was never cut below 16 points, and it zoomed to 22 when the first line boys returned with two minutes left.

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Philadelphia Warriors repulsed a third-quarter rally by the Baltimore Bullets to gain a 70-60 triumph in a National Basketball Association game tonight.

The Warriors scored six points in a row to regain the advantage after letting a 31-22 halftime lead slip away. Thereafter the Bullets never threatened seriously.

Vern Gardner led the scoring for Philadelphia with 17 points. Former Warrior Ed Sadowski made the same for Baltimore.

Investigation Under Way

2 Interhigh Schools Question Pantos' Eligibility at Central

Two Interhigh schools have questioned the basketball eligibility status of Central's Jimmy Pantos, and Birch Bayh, acing head of the league, is conducting an investigation.

The schools, which have not yet written protest notices, cited that Central is playing Pantos in violation of Interhigh Rule II, Section 2b, which states:

"In order to represent a school in any sport, a pupil must be enrolled in the school within the first 20 days of the semester in which contest is played; this applies to . . . transfers from preparatory school."

Pantos, a senior, was enrolled at Central when the semester started in September and played halfback on the football team. However, on October 28, Pantos was declared ineligible for football because he had failed in two subjects.

On October 30, Longwood Prep School in Olney, Md., announced that Pantos had enrolled there, and on November 5, he played during the second half of Longwood's game with Georgetown University's freshman team. He was set to play the next week, too, when Charlotte Hall, Longwood's opponent, requested that Pantos not be used on the grounds that he was not enrolled there the whole semester.

Pantos was kept out of uniform, and the week after that, he visited Central and said he'd like to enroll there. He was accepted and has played two games with the Viking basketball team. He scored 15 points against St. Albans and 7 against the American University freshmen.

A letterman in football, basketball and baseball at Central, Pantos is considered one of the greatest athletes in the school's history. Last year he led Central to the football and basketball championships. He is scheduled to graduate in February.

Stags' Rally Tops Waterloo

St. Louis, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Chicago Stags came from behind in the final period to take a 78-70 victory from the Waterloo Hawks in the first game of a National Basketball League double-header tonight.

Harry Boycoff paced the Hawks to an early 8-3 lead that grew to an 18-12 margin by the end of the first quarter. Halftime score was 39-34 for the Hawks.

Army Just Edges Ithaca, 45-41

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—Army won its second straight basketball contest of the season today, defeating an aggressive Ithaca College five, 45-41.

Trailing by seven points at the half, Ithaca, led by John Smith and Ross Passineau, found the range for 19 points to tie the game late in the second half.

The Cadets fought back for a 2-point lead with 2 minutes left to clinch the game. Smith was high scorer with 14 points, followed by Passineau, who tossed in 13. Arnold Galiffa and Bill Yeoman paced the Army team with 11 points each.

Fesler Denies He Has Quit as Buckeye Coach

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 21 (AP).—Personable Coach Wes Fesler of Ohio State had two matters of importance on his agenda today.

Prime was the business of trying to fashion a football team to whip California in the Rose Bowl January 2.

The second objective was scotching rumors that he had already resigned as head coach of the Buckeyes. Maybe he will, but as of now he certainly hasn't.

Several interested parties came forward to assist Fesler in the latter matter. Fesler led off with this observation:

"Rumors are circulating that I am contemplating resigning as Ohio State football coach. I had business offers which I am weighing but I am in no position to make a decision until after the Rose Bowl game. That is my primary purpose and objective at the present time."

Athletic Director Dick Larkins chimed in with: "I have received no oral or written resignation from Fesler, or any indication that he will resign."

Back in Columbus, Ohio, Dr. Howard L. Bevis, Ohio State president, contributed this: "I have heard nothing about it. There's nothing official on it at all. If there were, I believe I would certainly know something about it."

One rumor nominated Sid Gillman, University of Cincinnati coach, as Fesler's already-signed replacement. Gillman, at Cincinnati, said:

"I know nothing about it. I have not been contacted by anyone in anyway about a job at Ohio State. It would be silly, and certainly unfair to my present employers, for me to even express interest in the Ohio State position."

A's Insist They Want Marchildon

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics made it known today they have no intention of giving up Phil Marchildon to the New York Yankees if the one-time Canadian swifty's right arm is ready for baseball duty.

Rumors were a common commodity here when it was disclosed that the A's had summoned Phil from his Canadian home to have his arm examined today at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The most prevalent scuttlebutt had it that Marchildon would be swapped for the Yankees' Johnny Lindell if his flipper proves diamond-worth.

But Connie Mack, the A's venerable owner-manager, who'll celebrate his eighty-seventh birthday tomorrow, said "there is no talk of trade."

"We brought Phil on from Canada," Mack said, "to find out if he is over his arm trouble and worth signing for next year."

Art Ehlers, boss of the A's farm system, said that if Marchildon has gotten over the miseries which has plagued him for the past two seasons, he could be a big help to the club

He will be examined by Dr. George E. Bennett, Johns Hopkins specialist who treated the Yankees' Joe DiMaggio for his celebrated aching heel.

Mack hinted there is a possibility he might use Marchildon as bait for a trade if his arm gets Dr. Bennett's okay. But he made it clear he would expect more than Lindell, a lukewarm hitting outfielder for the Yanks last season.

The As are known to be in the market for a slugging outfielder, but they cannot afford to let go any pitching talent. The club has had quality but no quantity on the mound for the past several seasons.

Two years ago Marchildon, who is now 34 years old, won 19 games for the As. In 1948, bothered by a bursitis condition, Phil copped only nine decisions and last year couldn't win a game.

Jack Nichols Scores 22, Tops Mikan By a Point

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A goal-for-goal struggle turned suddenly into a humiliating walkaway last night at Uline Arena where the Minneapolis Lakers, fresh off a 25-point licking at Rochester, rolled over the Washington Caps, 75-61.

The transformation was made during the first eight minutes of the third quarter. In that space, the Lakers whipped in 18 points to the Caps' six. It was all over after that.

But two teams couldn't have played a closer first half. Never more than two points separated the National Basketball Association rivals in the initial period, and in the second quarter the widest margin was Minneapolis' 31-27 lead.

In all the lead changed hands 18 times in that nip-and-tuck first half. On nine other occasions the score was deadlocked.

Then the roof fell in on the Caps.

The roof in this case went by the names of George Mikan and Vern Mikkelson. The towering pair, Mikan the NBA's top scorer from DePaul and Mikkelson a freshman out of Hamline University, accounted for 12 of the winners' points in their big rally.

With his third-quarter streak Mikan brought his total to 21 points for the evening. That was one less, however, than the production of Jack Nichols, the burly member of the Caps who was assigned to guard Mikan.

Mikkelson wound up with 20 points, while Jim Pollard, ordinarily the Lakers' second-best producer, finished with 12.

It was a rough contest until the final period—then it was more silly than anything else. The Caps did everything wrong, passed poorly, missed even the blackboard on their shots.

But after the first period they trailed by a mere 18-17. At intermission it was 37-34 favoring the invaders but only because Mikkelson was able to sink a pair of foul shots as the second quarter ended.

Nobody gave the Caps much chance of winning when they were behind, 62-44, going into the last period. And even the Caps were convinced their third beating by the Lakers this season was coming up when they used a team composed mostly of reserves in the last eight minutes of the game.

An unusual aspect of the game was the fact that only 7 out of 26 foul tosses by both teams were missed. The Caps made good on 11 of their 14.

Mercer Wins Title From Jim Austeri

Marvin Mercer won the junior heavyweight elimination tournament by defeating Jim Austeri with an atomic kick in 27 minutes last night at Turner's Arena. Mercer was presented with a gold belt donated by Ed "Strangler" Lewis, wrestling czar. The Honorable Armand Scott, Municipal Court judge made the presentation.

In other matches, Laverne Baxter and Irish Jack Kelly won two out of three falls from Ivan Kamaroff and Steve Gob in a two-man team match; Pat O'Hara defeated Harry Finklestein in eight minutes with a backdrop, and Tony Cosenza wrestled to a 30-minute draw with George Bruckman.

Unbeaten Kaplan Gets Decision

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—George Kaplain, rangy young Brooklyn heavyweight, was given an unpopular split decision over Italy's Duilio Spagnolo, an 8-to-1 underdog, tonight in an 8-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Kaplan weighed 187½, Spagnolo 185¾.

The two judges gave it to Kaplan, unbeaten in 20 professional starts, after Referee Eddie Joseph voted for Spagnolo 5-2 with one even. Judge Frank Forbes found for Kaplan 5-3 and Judge Jack Gordon had Kaplan out in front 4-3, with one even. A crowd of 1864 paid $4073 to see the card.

Truman Invited To Ice Bowl but Can't Make It

President Truman and his family were invited yesterday to a football game January 2—The sub-zero Ice Bowl contest at Fairbanks, Alaska, where even the players wear Eskimo boots.

Dr. Terris Moore, president of the University of Alaska, sent Alaskan Territorial Delegate E. L. Bartlett five tickets to the game between the University of Alaska and the Ladd Air Force Base.

Three of them were for Mr. and Mrs. Truman and daughter, Margaret. The others were for Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman.

Mr. Truman won't be able to go.

Fort Belvoir Beats Bolling

Forward Tony Dicenzo scored 15 points to pace Fort Belvoir to a 39-18 win over Bolling Field last night at Fort Belvoir. It was the thirteenth win against six losses for Belvoir.

Tommy Siecheck was high for the losers with six points.

Mack Reaches 87 Today—As Usual, He Looks Ahead

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21 (AP)—Connie Mack reaches his eighty-seventh milestone tomorrow confident his fiftieth year as manager will find the Philadelphia Athletics in the thick of the American League pennant race.

The veteran leader of the Athletics has picked 1950 as the year to win that "one more" pennant before stepping out as manager.

Connie Mack

"I know I'm well up in years," declared Mack, "but I don't feel them. And I'm looking for real competition from all of the teams next season."

He believes the Boston Red Sox will furnish the toughest opposition because of their pitching. And the Chicago White Sox will be the surprise team, in his opinion.

Mack, who already has paid out $100,000 in an effort to strengthen the A's, figures his team this way:

The infield will be stronger with addition of Bob Dillinger. The outfield is improved and he expects Joe Tipton and Joe Astroth to hold up the catching department.

The pitching, if Joe Coleman reports at playing weight, will be excellent.

And he likes his new coaches—Mickey Cochrane and Bing Miller, both members of the last championship team turned out by Mack in 1931.

"We could stand some hitting," he added, "but then, who couldn't."

'Mistakes' Include Taking $51,000 Bonus

Wakefield Blames Himself for Failure With Tigers in Three-Page Letter to Press

DETROIT, DEC. 21 (AP).—Outfielder Dick Wakefield, who was traded to the New York Yankees Saturday by the Detroit Tigers, today issued a three-page letter to the press in which he blamed himself for failure to live up to expectations during his career with the Tigers.

Wakefield in an unusually severe self-analysis said he made many mistakes the first of which was acceptance of a $51,000 bonus to sign with the Tigers in 1941.

He gave profuse thanks to Tiger Scout A. J. "Wish" Egan, who discovered and handled the signing of Wakefield when the former Tiger was playing for the University of Michigan baseball team.

"* * * his faith in me as a young ball player and the courage he has shown in fighting for me during my pitiful exhibitions will live with me as a shining example of genuine friendship that we all need so much," Wakefield wrote.

Wakefield lauded former Tiger Manager Steve O'Neil as the "finest man I have ever played for" and he was equally generous in his praise of Tiger Owner Walter O. Briggs.

Wakefield, whose erratic play drew a lot of criticism from Detroit fans and sportswriters, thanked the press for their treatment of him.

Referring to their criticisms of his play, the Tigers' former problem child said:

"All this has helped both the press and myself, believe it or not, and I hope we understand each other as I depart. . . . I say to you all be charitable with the boys. Don't break their spirit, help them in their efforts."

Wakefield thanked Detroit fans for their support though he admitted ". . . my mistakes caused many of you to desert me. This I must blame upon myself; explanation of the deeper reasons for our breakup is a matter far beyond my capacity to even attempt to clarify. I had hoped to bring the World Series to Detroit; I haven't

Yanks Will Retain Wakefield, Weiss Says

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Dick Wakefield, the newly acquired Yankee, definitely will be retained said George Weiss, general manager of the New York club, today.

Wakefield, brought to New York in a straight trade with Detroit for First Baseman Dick Kryhoski, reportedly had expressed concern that he might be transferred again before he had a chance to don a Yankee uniform.

"I am writing Wakefield that we will expect him at St. Petersburg on March 1 in first class physical condition," said Weiss.

"He will be given every chance to become a regular in our outfield."

7 Maryland Hunters Slow With a Buck

By Ralph Murdock

LAST YEAR'S report of 1003 deer bagged in Garrett County, Md., brought out a nice crowd of hunters early this month.

Murdock

From Hagerstown, Md., to Oakland, Md., came a delegation of Congressman Glenn Beall (Republican) of the Sixth District; Roger Hershey, general manager of Hagerstown race track; D. E. Rinehart, president of Hagerstown track; Ed Smead, Park Beaver; Morgan Hanes and C. Palmer Sowers.

On their four-day trip, the Hagerstown hunters were guests of Art and Paul Carpenter, egg dealers of Frostburg, Md. One buck was the total kill, and that one was made by Rinehart. From reliable sources, we are informed that the deer was not the red-nosed reindeer.

The Maryland season was a quickie, beginning December 5 and ending December 10.

Barbecued deer will be served to the nimrods and their friends on Friday night at the Dutch Kitchen in Hagerstown.

HERE'S A new wrinkle. Latest headache to plague New Jersey's fishing spots at Cape May and Wildwood is the proposed State bill to charge non-residents to buy a salt-water fishing license for fishing in inland waters. Skippers in the above area plan to offer stiff opposition to the bill when it comes up for action in Trenton.

The fee asked for in the proposed legislation is $2. Previously anyone could fish in salt water along the Jersey Cape and elsewhere in New Jersey without a license.

It is conceded that 90 percent of the fishermen who frequent the Cape May and Wildwood area are residents of Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, the District of Columbia and Delaware.

The 1949 Cape May County fishing contest proved that the anglers entered were from 21 different States. The bill is regarded as a "stab-in-the-back" by the four seashore counties in New Jersey.

A RECORD take of buck deer in New York was established during the 1949 hunting season which ended on December 15 when 19,030 antlered deer were harvested by hunters, it was announced by Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea.

Good hunting was experienced in all parts of the State. In the Adirondacks, 5868 bucks were shot; in the Catskills, 5849, and in the Southern Tier-Western New York, 7313. The deer season opened on October 25.

Butler Wins Easily in 7th Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 21. On the first day of winter, the Eastern racing season came to an end on a summer-like afternoon. The final program of a 15-day meeting marked by many tight finishes was featured by the Waterford Purse and it was only fitting that the top event should be decided by the camera.

Pete A. Laudati's Sylmady, an invader from New England, hung a short nose defeat on Justin Funkhouser's Wingy. Six lengths behind the battle for first money came J. L. McKnight's Jack's Niece to be third in the field of seven.

With Wingy installed the favorite by the crowd of 6,000, Sylmady returned a $6 win mutuel. Jockey Nick Shuk, a lot of help, too, hustled the filly the six and a half furlongs in 1:23 4/5 over a track termed "good."

Battle All the Way

Sylmady and Wingy battled it out from start to finish. Shuk saved ground with Sylmady while Willie Downs alternately drove and rated Wingy on the outside. Entering the stretch, Wingy went slightly wide but appeared to have punch.

Downs sent him up on the outside of Sylmady and it appeared that Shuk's whip was striking Wingy in the face. However, Owner Funkhouser and Trainer Frank Gall apparently would not allow Downs to claim foul. Jack's Niece was a far-back third.

J. H. Hammond's Butler, one-time stake horse, made it two straight here by winning the seventh race, a purse event and the day's secondary feature. Jimmy Baird rode Butler and brought him home with daylight to spare. Shangrila Stable's War Dressing was second with Highland Farm's Svengali third.

Off Until March 4

Butler was clocked in 1:58 for the 1⅛ miles and his backers collected at the rate of $7.20 for each $2 investment.

Conspicious by her absence at the finish was the favorite, J. T. Gibson's Rough Ordy, winner of three cheap races in a row here.

Charles Town will be winter quarters for several hundred horses who will be placed in training here February 15, weather permitting, for the first 1950 meeting at this track booked to begin March 4.

San Francisco Plays in Garden

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—San Francisco's basketball team, making its first appearance here since winning the National Invitation Tournament last March, will face formidable St. John's of Brooklyn tomorrow night.

The two crack quintets will meet in the windup of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader. CCNY (5-1) and California (3-3), both beaten in their last starts, clash in the opener (8 p. m. EST).

Defeated in their first game by San Jose State, the Dons came back to win ther last three. St. John's is the sole unbeaten team left among New York's major schools.

Vogt Building B. C. C. Court Team Around Two '48 Reserves

By Bill Gilbert

Allan Vogt is a man with a problem.

Vogt is the basketball coach at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High school and is wondering if a man ever had a more inexperienced team than he has.

Of the 11 players on last year's team, 9 have graduated. The only two returning were both second string boys last year. This year's team is made up of two sophomores, four juniors and five seniors—with all five seniors in the starting line-up.

Wally Young, 5-foot 11-inch forward, and Art Crago, 6-foot guard, are back from last year and form the nucleus for this season. Young is the team captain and leader. He sets up the plays, shoots from all angles, is good on defense and has a knack of getting the ball away from the opposition.

Crago is a good floor man and specializes in out-jumping the other boys to get the rebounds.

Bob Bock, 6-foot 1-inch forward, figures prominently in Vogt's plans. He is a good scorer, fakes well and is a capable dribbler. Jack Park, 6-foot center, is one of the club's better men on defense and uses his speed by dashing down court for layups.

Sam Boor rounds out the starting five. He is a 6-foot 2-inch guard who is best at rebounds.

Vogt is not too depressed over his lack of experience, however. He says that "the boys are bound to improve. By the time we meet Blair, our archrival, we'll be in pretty fair shape. We should win at least half of our games and we play a pretty rough schedule."

Rote to Join In Touchdown Club Awards

An invitation to attend the Touchdown Club's fifteenth annual banquet and receive a trophy for the outstanding individual performance of the 1949 grid season has been accepted by Kyle Rote, stellar back of Southern Methodist, it was announced yesterday.

Rote will share the spotlight with three greats of Notre Dame—Coach Frank Leahy, Fullback Emil Sitko and End Leon Hart—at the January 7 extravaganza at the Statler.

The honor to Rote results from his inspired brand of ball in SMU's stand against Notre Dame. The Mustangs were beaten, 27-20, but in spite of Rote's dazzling performance which accounted for all three of their touchdowns.

Leahy will receive the Bob Smith Memorial Trophy as the country's leading coach. His fullback, Sitko, will get the Walter Camp Memorial honoring the outstanding college back of the year, and Hart as the No. 1 college lineman will be awarded the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy.

Ray Krouse, University of Maryland's tackle, is to receive the Touchdown trophy voted the foremost Washington area college football player.

DEAR FOLKS:

Seemed like a shame to close Charles Town with the final day bringing summer-like weather. Despite the hunch, the horse named Weather O.K. failed to be a factor in the second event. Former jockeys can be found in a number of jobs but few in the role of assistant starters at the tracks. This position calls for big, strong men as a rule because they have to handle fractious and unruly horses. However, Eddie Jones, Charles Town boy who was better than a green hand rider in his day, is now a member of Starter Holland's crew despite the fact that he's about 5 feet, 2 inches and weighs less than 140 pounds. Jones, a farm-raised youth who was in the paratroopers during the war, has been around horses most of his life and handles them with apparent ease. Can't see you on the rail.—BILL.

helped much recently and now my chance is gone."

The big outfielder, discussing his relations with the Detroit ball club, said, "I recently learned that two or three men in the Detroit organization have had ill-feeling toward me ever since I became associated with them.

"I had not known this before and knowledge of it has hurt me deeply. I am genuinely sorry for not having had a fair chance to square myself with them.

"I know their standards are high and I am disheartened to learn that I was unable to live up to them intellectually and professionally."

He did not named the men he referred to.

Wakefield explained that he issued the letter to answer many of the questions arising over his trade to the Yankees. He went to New York in a straight player swap for First Baseman Dick Kryhoski.

McFadden Leads Rally In 3d Period

Washington-Lee High of Arlington erased an early 10-8 Gonzaga lead and went on to defeat the Eagles, 47-34, last night at Washington-Lee.

The Little Generals, after leading 20-16 at halftime, put the game on ice in the third period by outscoring Gonzaga, 19-6. Jimmy McFadden scored eight points in that quarter to show the way for the winners.

High scorer for the night was the winners' Ken Jones, who had 14 points. Mike Nolan and Buddy LeCompte were tied for scoring honors for the losers with 13 points apiece.

Bold Verse Wins 3d in Row At Tropical

Miami, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP).—Bold Verse was tested over a distance today at Tropical Park with the same authority as marked her previous triumphs in sprint events. The consistent daughter of Bold and Bad made it three in a row at the meeting as she outran nine others in the filly-mare division in the fifth race.

Completing a riding double for the crack Sicilian booter, Joey Culmone, Bold Verse was only galloping to beat Savoy Stable's Pompous by four lengths, covering the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2/5.

She was the choice at $7.00. Third was F. H. Stark's Sketch, a half-length back of Pompous, and a like margin in advance of Mose Rauzin's Crazette.

Culmone, who earlier in the day kicked home Bee King, $6.20, to victory, stretched his winning total to 19, putting him two in front of Sammy Boulmetis for the riding honors of the meeting. Boulmetis failed to win a race through the first five on the card.

The weather was warm and clear and a crowd of 6614 enjoyed the sport. Shining Deed, $9.20, carried W. M. Cook to a rousing triumph in the fourth. Another well played winner was Gustave Ring's Highest Reward, $7.20, in the third.

Harvest Reward, owned by Hunter Lyon of Miami, kept his slate clean here annexing his third straight at the meeting. He was much the best in the second, and completed a daily double worth $33.70.

Maine Trappers Asked to Help Fisher Research

Augusta, Me., Dec. 21 (AP).—Maine trappers are going to get a crack at the elusive fisher, or "Black Cat," next month for the first time in 14 years.

Maine Wildlife Research Director Kenneth W. Hodgdon said today his division will ask trappers to save fisher carcasses so the experts can learn more about the habities and habitat of the little known furbearer.

The fisher is noted for one prodigious accomplishment.

Rules Outlaw Rough Stuff At 2d Base

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Rough stuff around second base is outlawed in the new official baseball rules adopted for the 1950 season today after nine months of work.

Clarifying the old rule against "interference" by a baserunner, the committee took action to penalize a runner for "deliberate and unsportsmanlike action" in leaving the baseline for the obvious purpose of "crashing" the pivot man on a double play.

The new rules, like the old, leave enforcement up to the judgement of the umpire. Now, however, the intent is clearly written in black and white for all to see.

If the umpires enforce this rule, the old rolling block of football style play that has bounced second baseman and shortstop into center field will stop.

Few Basis Changes

Bob Finch, secretary of a subcommittee to the official rules committee, said there were "few basic changes" from the old code. Clarification is the key word of the rules, now written in simple direct words that a sandlot boy can understand.

In general, the American and National leagues got together to agree on interpretations of rules. There have been some different interpretations in the past.

Since March 3 there have been six meetings of the original committee and its subcommittee paving the way to today's official action.

There are 10 divisions to the rules, running from objectives through offensive and defensive play, umpires and scoring rules.

The catcher's box has been reduced from 10 feet to 8 feet, and the coaching box extended from 15 feet to 20 feet.

As previously announced the strike zone now will be defined as "between the batter's arm pits and knees" instead instead of the old shoulder and knee limitations. The committee pointed out that most major league umpires have been calling strikes in that manner for years.

In an attempt to get a better balance between the runner and the obligation of the pitcher not to balk, two basic pitching positions were defined—the windup position and the set position.

It's Up to Ump

The "obstruction" rule, by which a fielder is penalized for obstructing a runner, was clarified. Now it is up to the umpire how many bases he may award for a violation.

For instance, if a batter slams a sure triple off the fence but is "given the hip" at first base, the ump can wave him al the way to third.

Here's the wording on the new rule about interference.

"A batter is out when a preceding runner shall in the judgment of the umpire, interfere with an infielder.

"The objective of this rule is to penalize the offensive team for deliberate, unwarranted and unsportsmanlike action by a runner in leaving the baseline for the obvious purpose of crashing the pivot man on a double play rather than trying to reach his base."

Frank Shaghnessy, vice president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, acting in the absence of the ailing President George Trautman, was chairman of the meeting.

McLindon Helps Cadets Win No. 4

St. John's Cadets scored their fourth basketball win without a loss, 41-35 last night at Priory.

The Cadets, behind 20-17 at halftime and 30-28 at the three quarter mark, outscored the losers, 13-5, in the final period to sew up the game. The loss was the second for the Panthers, who have won five games.

Guard Bob McLindon of St. John's was the game's high scorer, connecting for six field goals and six free throws for 18 points. Joe Hayden of Priory and Bob MacDonald of St. John's tied for runner-up honors with 10 points apiece.

Fact Remains— Phoenix Retains Miss America

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 21 (AP).—Department of amplification:

From Phoenix, Ariz., came the report the other day that the Salad Bowl has tossed the Rose Bowl for a loss. The loss was Jacque Mercer, who is Miss America. Jacque had decided to appear in a pre-Salad Bowl parade instead of the Tournament of Roses, the account ran.

But Edward Allen, assistant manager of the Tournament of Roses, says that isn't what happened at all—that Jacque just didn't have a spot in the Rose Parade. As he tells it:

A bathing suit firm scheduled a float, with Jacque as the central figure, approximately clad in the company's product. But then the company withdrew.

Then Ohio State decided it would be nice to have Miss America on its float. State's football team plays California in the Rose Bowl. But someone remembered that Ohio has a lot of pretty girls, too.

It was the fourth straight victory for the frosh, who have a 5-1 record for the year. Previously, they beat Eastern and McKinley Tech.

Bob Jones scored 19 for A.U. and Jack Stringer led Central's defending Interhigh champs with nine.

British Jet Airliner Will Cruise at 490 MPH

London, Dec. 21 (AP)—The De Havilland Aircraft Co. disclosed today its new jet airliner, the Comet, will cruise at 490 miles an hour with a range of 2645 miles.

At the same time the company said the airliner, the world's first powered by jet engines, will go into the Vancouver-Hongkong service for Canadian Pacific Airlines in 1952-53.

Fares Reduced For Virginia Commuters

Lower fares for some 17,000 Virginia-bound commuters from Washington went into effect yesterday as the finale to the long court battle over the joint fare issue.

But the cheaper rides are unlikely to last long since Capital Transit Co. is expected to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to boost the rates.

Commuters now will be able to buy for $1.92 a book of 12 tickets entitling them to transfer from CTC to either of the Virginia bus lines in going to and from various Government installations such as the Pentagon. Previously they had been paying an additional 6 cents cash per ride along with the 16-cent ticket, or a straight cash fare totaling 23 cents. Now the ticket alone will do.

Capital Transit also announced it will pay off at once on the three-cent and six-cent coupons which many riders have been collecting for the disputed part of the fare during the court battle. The total outstanding is estimated at about $2500.

They may be redeemed in person or by mail at any Capital Transit division office, at the general offices (36th and M sts. nw.), the public relations office (3132 M st. nw.) or the lost and found office (1416 F st. nw.).

Judges Given De Orsey Pens

C. Leo De Orsey, attorney and Washington Redskins stockholder, sent gifts of ball point pens to District and Municipal Court judges, it was disclosed yesterday.

The attorney for Ralph Ruthstrom, who on Tuesday lost a $4100 claim for back pay while suspended from the Redskins in 1947, asked that De Orsey be cited for contempt for giving a ball point pen to the presiding judge in the case, David A. Pine.

Judge Pine denied the motion. It was learned that he sent the pen back to De Orsey.

Court observers said that Pine found the pen on his desk when he returned to his office during a recess in the trial Tuesday.

He summoned to his chambers Bernard I. Nordlinger, Redskin attorney, and James J. Laughlin, attorney for Ruthstrom, ex-Redskin fullback. Pine told Laughlin he could ask for a mistrial, but Laughlin wanted to go on with the case.

Mrs. Kenneth L. Moore, who said she was a substitute secretary in De Orsey's office, told a reporter she had delivered "six or seven little Eversharp ball point pens to District Court judges and six or seven to the judges over in Municipal Court on Tuesday."

"Mr. De Orsey told me two weeks ago to deliver them to the judges when I got a chance, and Tuesday was the first chance I had," she said. "I didn't know Tuesday anything about the Redskins court case."

She said she delivered about four more pens to Municipal Court judges yesterday. De Orsey, she pointed out, is a director of the Eversharp company and he ordered "quite a few—I must have sent out or delivered around 150.

"It's his custom, you know, to send remembrances to his friends," she said. De Orsey was out of the city, she noted, at the time she delivered the pen to a court attendant for Judge Pine.

ANOTHER ROOSEVELT ROMANCE?—Georgeanne (Gigi) Durston and Elliott Roosevelt, pictured at a New York night club recently, are "interested in each other" according to her mother, Mrs. Gladys Durston, and the picture seems to bear her out. Meanwhile, Gigi was quoted in the Hartford (Conn.) Times as saying she and Roosevelt "are very fond of each other," but that "we can't make any statement on that at the present time"

Soviet Bulletin Row Revived By Wilson College Protest

School board members, after receiving the student council letter, referred it to Dr. Corning for a report.

In another action the board:

Continued for a year the services of Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of Negro schools. Dr. Wilkinson, who is 71, is past the retirement age.

In accepting reappointment, Dr. Wilkinson, who has been a teacher and supervisor for 47 years, called on board members to consider a successor.

"I warn you I cannot continue forever," he said.

The board called on the District Commissioners to raze the old Van Buren School and annex at 13th and W sts. se. and turn the site into a playground.

Carleton H. Springer, 1847 Mintwood pl. nw., a teacher in the white schools, and Miss Florence E. Grant, teacher of stenography at Roosevelt High School, were retired by the board.

Dr. Bernard H. Nelson of the factulty of Miner Teachers College was promoted to be professor of social studies.

Oriole Bus Denies ICC Violations

A spokesman for the Washington Suburban Line bus company, cited by the Interstate Commerce Commission for failing to comply with safety regulations, said yesterday the company was "unaware" of any violation.

The bus line, operated by the Oriole Motor Coach Lines of Silver Spring, was named in a five-count complaint by the ICC in United States District Court in Baltimore.

"The operation of the line, as far as the company is aware, is being conducted in accordance with regulations of the ICC, the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia and the PUC of the State of Maryland," the bus official said.

A court order has been issued on the ICC complaint. It gives the company until January 10 to show cause why it should not be restrained from continued operation while allegedly violating ICC rules which require bus lines to file drivers' physical certificates, to report accidents to the ICC and to keep necessary safety equipment on buses.

Agriculture's P & MA Takes on 1300 Employes, Due to Get Still Bigger

Agriculture's big Production and Marketing Administration is due to get bigger.

More than 1300 employes have been added to its field offices in the past several months to carry out the controversial farm price support storage, and its many other programs.

With business growing daily, the President can be expected to ask Congress to approve a larger budget next year for P&MA. The agency this fiscal year is handling more than three billion dollars in food purchases, price support, etc.

P&MA has 13,000 full-time employes, of whom 3000 are at headquarters here. In addition, it supervises the work of more than 100,000 part-time county committeemen.

CAPITOL HILL: Several members of Congress are looking into the possibility of raising the postage rate on letters from 3 to 4 cents to reduce the huge postal deficit, which is expected to reach 700 million dollars next year . . . A petition demanding additional office space is being circulated among the Senators . . . Many members of Congress are buying electric typewriters with their increased office allowance instead of hiring additional help.

STORY: A young woman in Government was suspected of disloyalty. During the inquiry, she was asked to give a detailed account of her foreign travels, etc. She wrote the loyalty board in part:

"Before the war I attended school for a year in Italy. Does that make me a Fascist? I traveled in Germany when Hitler was in power. Does that make me a Nazi? I spent exactly two weeks in Russia. Does that make me a Communist? And I once went to the Virgin Islands on a vacation. Period . . . What's the verdict, gentlemen?"

LAWYERS: A fact-finding survey of Federal lawyers—the number, their duties, their salaries, etc.—is to be made.

The chairman of the committee is Peyton Ford, the assistant to the Attorney General. He will be assisted by Clive W. Palmer, special assistant to the Attorney General, and David Reich, a Justice consultant. Other committeemen:

Donald S. Dawson, administrative assistant to the President; Frank J. Delany, Post Office solicitor; Adrian S. Fisher, State's legal adviser; Roger S. Foster, general counsel, Securities and Exchange; Matthew Hale, Commerce's acting solicitor; Judge Alexander Holtzoff of the District Court here; Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.); Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.); Mastin G. White, Interior's solicitor; William S. Tyson, Treasury's general counsel; Felix E. Larkin, defense's general counsel, and Otto Kerner, jr., the United States attorney at Chicago.

"This survey," Ford said, "is extremely important because of the assistance it will offer to young men who desire or are considering entering the Government service. It will, in addition, present a picture to those already in the Government service of opportunities for them in departments and agencies other than the ones in which they serve."

Shoemaker Convicted In Slaying Of Trucker

Jury Finds Verdict Of Manslaughter Against Clerk Who Killed Over Woman

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Curtis H. Shoemaker, slight, 41-year-old Times-Herald credit clerk, was found guilty of manslaughter yesterday in the slaying of Francis K. Arnold, 33, last July 1.

A District Court jury of four men and eight women arrived at the verdict at 5:05 p. m.—six hours and 35 minutes after receiving the case. The verdict carries a penalty of up to 15 years.

Shoemaker was charged with first-degree murder, an offense carrying a mandatory death penalty, but under District law the jury had the alternatives of finding second-degree murder or manslaughter.

Takes Verdict Quietly

The defendant took the verdict quietly. His long reddish hair was brushed back neatly and his pale face was set in grim lines as Jury Foreman Adreon M. Ensor, an insurance official of 4000 Cathedral ave. nw., intoned the finding before Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Shoemaker had pumped two bullets into the chest of Arnold, a truck driver, during a fight involving a woman, in front of Shoemaker's apartment, 2520 14th st. nw.

The victim, an employe of the Davis Sand & Gravel Co., who lived at 1444 Harvard st. nw., died three hours later at Emergency Hospital.

Defense counsel represented the 5-foot 5-inch, 140-pound Shoemaker as a quiet little man who had been badgered all night by Arnold and finally beaten and threatened with death before he turned a gun on his tormenter.

"Murder in Heart"

But Prosecutor Cecil Heflin drew a picture of the defendant as one who, with murder in his heart, took his pistol from a bureau drawer and followed Arnold outside to shoot him down.

The story as unfolded by the defendant began in a taproom where he was having a drink with Frank Steuterman, 2606 University pl. nw., and Mrs. Irene P. Shaffran, a widow, also of the University pl. address.

Shortly after 1 a. m., Shoemaker said, Arnold, whom he knew as 'Scar," joined the group uninvited. He said Arnold began poking fun at him over his prowess with women and then became quarrelsome. Steuterman left to get his car, Shoemaker related. Mrs. Shaffran was feeling ill, he said, and he invited her and Arnold to his apartment for coffee.

Says Arnold Took Liberties

At the apartment, the defendant declared, Arnold began taking liberties with Mrs. Shaffran as she lay prone on a bed. Shoemaker said he ordered Arnold to take the woman and leave his home. He said Arnold grabbed him, pushed him and cursed him but finally left with the woman after warning, "I'll shut your mouth for good."

Fearful that Arnold might be laying in wait for him Shoemaker said he thought Arnold might return, so he armed himself with a .38-caliber pistol and went downstairs to see if the couple had gone. He said he just intended to "scare" Arnold.

Outside, he related, Arnold attacked him and knocking him down, shouting "I'll kill you . . ."

Shoemake said he ran for the door. It was jammed. Arnold was coming up behind him, his fists poised. Shoemaker wheeled and opened fire. He emptied the chamber of its six slugs, two hit the mark.

Into the Storm, Baby in Arms

Way Down East Had Nothing On Mellerdrama Mother Tells

He loved her once so much he couldn't concentrate on his law books but later it was another story. He even pushed her into a raging blizzard with a baby in her arms.

Such was the sad tale unfolded in District Court yesterday by Mrs. Wandajune Kearney, 33, who is seeking custody of her two young sons and maintenance from her estranged husband, Michael M. Kearney, 36, a $7000-a-year lawyer.

Mrs Kearney said she met her husband through a roommate in 1937 and after that "dated him practically every night."

"Later he told me I was the cause of him not making good grades at Georgetown Law School," she testified. "He said an instructor or some individual at the school told him that he should marry the girl he was dating to improve his grades."

And so, in 1938—wedding bells rang.

Mrs. Kearney said that during the next few years she saw much of the country—Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha and Kearney, Nebr.; Schenectady, N. Y., and finally back to Washington.

Then came one night in February, 1943, she said, and a cold, bitter wind whipped a driving snow around the Kearney home in Suitland Manor, Md.

"You need a little air," she said her husband told her.

Followed Tracks to Safety

Yielding to his insistence, she testified, she got in the car with their 3-year-old son and her husband drove up a small country road covered with snow.

Mrs. Kearney, then pregnant with a second child, said her husband suddenly stopped the car, told her there was something wrong with the machine and told her to "start walking." She started walking with the child clutched to her breast, she said.

"I followed the tracks made by the car," she testified. "There was a blizzard and I walked a little distance when a car came down the road. An old man in the car took me home.

"Later, when my husband returned home, he said, 'I didn't think I'd see you here.'"

Mrs. Kearney told the court that after their marriage her husband was insistent that she keep working but had a change of heart in 1940 in Omaha when he decided to run for Congress.

She said he told her, "It would be bad if a reporter found out that the wife of a congressional candidate was working."

Mrs. Kearney, an interviewer for the Federal Security Agency, testified that in July, 1943, her husband told her he was seeing other women and named them.

She said he told her, "Take your kids and get out. I don't want any ornaments around the house."

The children involved in the custody fight are Michael, 9, and Philip, 6, who were placed in the care of Mrs. Arthur Tholl of 618 Bennington dr., Silver Spring, in March, 1944, when the Kearneys separated.

Kearney, who lives at 1900 F st. nw., has filed suit for divorce on grounds of desertion or five years' voluntary separation. Mrs. Kearney lives at 1445 Ogden st. nw.

Two Shop Holdups Reported; Two Women Robbed of Purses

Two armed holdups and a pair of pocketbook snatchings, netting thieves around $125, were reported to police last night.

A lone bandit took around $100 from Isadore Stamler, 70, part owner of the Home Plate Liquor Store, 801 V st. nw., around 7:40 p. m., police reported. Stamler, who also lost $35 to a stickup man in 1941, told authorities the thief drew a gun, flushed the cash register and dashed into the street, vanishing north on 8th st.

The second armed robbery occured shortly after 8 p. m. at a tailor shop and residence at 1305 Fourth st. sw. Martin Braves, 74, answering a knock on the door, reported that two men, wearing handkerchiefs over their faces, forced their way in, one brandishing a revolver. While one watched the door, the other forced Braves into the store rear, taking $17.

In a pocketbook snatching, Mrs. Henry W. Roth, 48, of 2825 28th st. nw., a Veterans Administration employe, said a youth grabbed her pocketbook in front of her house about 8 p. m. with such force she was knocked to the ground, injuring her left arm and tearing off her shoes. Her purse contained around $5 and papers, she told police.

Another victim was Miss Jean Mould, 27, of 1466 Chapin st. nw., who was returning from St. Paul's Catholic Church, 15th and V sts., around 9:30 p. m. when, according to police, a man emerged from an alley along the 2100 block of 15th st., snatched her purse containing around $4 and papers, and dashed into another alley.

Reversal of Policy By County Board To Start Work at Seminary Rd. Site

In a reversal of policy, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved construction of a 44-acre business section along Shirley hwy. at Seminary rd.

Until yesterday, the board's stand had been that no business districts should be set up along Shirley hwy. Their action, in effect, gave tacit approval to building of business developments at intersections on the newly-opened superhighway.

As a result, Mark Winkler, Washington builder, said clearing work will begin early in 1950. Winkler has informed the board he will erect a full-fledged business district at the intersection, containing department stores, office buildings and other units.

The site is a mile and a half south of the Shirlington shopping center. It will be three times larger, according to Winkler, and serve an estimated 100,000 persons living in a three-mile radius.

The site of the projected development was zoned for business by the board in 1946. The public hearing yesterday, held at the board's regular meeting, was on its own motion to rezone the land back to a suburban residence district.

After hearing Winkler, the board decided to keep his land zoned for business. However, they set aside a "buffer" strip, 320 feet deep, between it and the highway for suburban residence use only. This was aimed at keeping the business zone off the highway.

In another action, the board approved a proposal by County Sanitary Engineer James J. Corbalis, jr., that General Services Administration be asked to finance a study of water and sewage needs in three sections of the county.

Corbalis said the study, estimated to cost $20,000, would be made in the Wellington-Hollin Hills area, the Annandale-Springfield-Franconia area, and the McLean-Lewinsville-Langley area.

Educator Tells How to Make D.C. Intellectual Capital of U.S.

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Alvin Johnson, president emeritus of the New School for Social Research, suggested yesterday that an institution similar to the New York school be established here.

"Washington should be the intellectual capital of the United States, just as is Paris in France, and London in England," he said.

Johnson made his suggestion at a reception celebrating his 75th birthday, held at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, 1615 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Tribute was paid to the educator by Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court, Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) and the Ambassador of France, whose government recently awarded Johnson the Legion of Honor in recognition of his establishing during World War II the "University in Exile" with refugee scholars as faculty members.

Johnson, whose birthday was Sunday, headed the New School from 1922 to 1945. A center of advanced education for adults academic formalism, organized in protest against it grew from some 250 students to nearly 8000 today.

"When we first set up the New School, I proposed we set it up in Washington," Johnson said. "We had an educational project we wanted to be national, and I thought it would be easier to make it national in Washington, but it was easier at that time to finance it in New York.

"It took me so many years to make the setup in New York function, that I had no time personally to run down to Washington and talk to people, and say, 'this is the most gorgeous educational opportunity in the United States and the most important.'"

Johnson said that with "just a little organization to start things, you could build something to influence the whole educational system of the United States."

"If you had the premises and organization in Washington, in 10 years you would have 20,000 persons attending, half from Washington and half from all corners of the United States. "All the intellectualism in Washington is defeated because it is not drawn together," he said. "There are a thousand isolated groups in Washington with an intellectual potential that is enormous."

Johnson said he could not take the initiative in establishing a "New School" here "without being a carpetbagger," adding "the curse of Washington is that the population is all modest."

About 150 persons attended the reception. The sponsoring committee, headed by Justice Frankfurter, included: the French Ambassador Henri Bonnet; Huntington Cairns, secretary-treasurer of the National Gallery of Art; Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman; Benjamin V. Cohen, delegate to the United Nations; Oscar Cox, former general counsel, Foreign Economic Administration; Mrs. Dwight F. Davis; Marquis W. Childs, journalist; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury William McChesney Martin; Randolph E. Paul, former general counsel and tax adviser to the Treasury Department; Miss Anna Lord Strauss; Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp, and Mrs. Joseph Urban, who served as secretary.

Among others present were: Edwin G. Nourse, former chairman, and Leon Keyserling, acting chairman, President's Council of Economic Advisers; Leland Olds, a power consultant to the National Security Resources Board, and Bryn J. Hovde, of New York, president of the New School.

N. Y. Firm May Direct U. S. Sesqui Designing

'Letter of Intent' Given Company Former Director Is Associated With

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Gardner Displays, a New York advertising firm, has been given a "letter of intent" for the overall design supervision of Federal exhibits at the Freedom Fair, Sesquicentennial Commission headquarters said yesterday.

No contract has yet been given the Gardner firm, however, it was stated.

The Gardner firm has as its vice president George H. Rowland who has just resigned as the Sesqui's director of design and exhibits.

Sesqui director Edward Boykin yesterday sent Federal agencies a statement entitled The facts about the Federal exhibits at the Freedom Fair." It stated that "it appears that considerable misinformation is being circulated" concerning the handling of Government exhibits. The statement followed publication of reports that Washington area exhibit builders had complained to both the Sesqui and the Justice Department about the matter.

Boykin said in the statement that the Sesqui Commission "proposes to contract for over-all design supervision for the Federal exhibits in order to unify and integrate them." It was explained at the Commission that this meant a negotiated contract, presumably with the Gardner firm.

Boykin added that construction of the exhibits will be on "a free-bid basis" and that "there is, and has been, no intention whatever to exclude any exhibit builder from participation in this program."

The Exhibit Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington had asked that both the over-all design work and the exhibits themselves be on a free-bid basis.

Boykin's statement declared that the Sesqui Commission will erect a separate building at the Freedom Fair to house exhibits of "at least 25 Federal departments and agencies" and that this will be done at no cost to the agencies. The plan will cost the Sesqui Commission "better than $800,000," Boykin pointed out.

The Commission also proposed to finance the cost of the Federal exhibits, both as to design and construction. Any agency which desires—and has the funds—to go ahead with its own exhibit is free to do so, however. But it must adhere to the "exhibit standards established by the Commission."

Former Addict

Judge Denies Release Plea Of Prisoner

William R. Deaton, 45, who finds himself a prisoner at Lorton because he volunteered for treatment as a narcotics addict, found no relief yesterday in District Court.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews denied a motion to compel the Parole Board to return Deaton to the jurisdiction of District Court to permit his release before Christmas.

John M. Webster, Deaton's attorney, told the court the board's refusal to invoke the law was "arbitary and capricious."

The facts in Deaton's case are unusual. A baker, he broke his back three years ago. Physicians gave him narcotics to ease his pain. Deaton became an addict.

He increased a physician's prescription for narcotics and was arrested and charged with violating the narcotics law.

Judge Richmond B. Keech in 1948 suspended a one to three year sentence.

Several months later, Deaton asked Judge Keech to commit him to the United States Public Health Service Hospital at Lexington, Ky., for treatment of the drug habit. Judge Keech did so.

In July, Deaton was discharged from the hospital as cured. The Parole Board then held he must serve his minimum sentence in jail. He may be paroled in January.

Arlington County Valuation Jumps

Arlington County's total assessed valuation in real and personal taxable property rose by $13,153,523 over last year's figures to a 1949 peak total of $142,084,634, Harry K. Green, Commissioner of Revenue, said yesterday.

Taxes levied on real and personal property for the current fiscal year amount to $4,901,919.88, Green said. This is an increase of $723,896.32 over 1948 revenue from similar taxes.

A 20-cent jump in this year's tax rate—now $3.45 per $100 real or personal assessed valuation—as well as the increase in taxable property, is responsible for the rise.

Besides the real and personal property revenue, almost $286,000 has been realized from the newly imposed county business and professional license tax as of November 31, Green said. The revenue commissioner estimated earlier in the year that only $200,000 would come from this tax.

A breakdown of the total assessed values in the county shows personal property assessed at $27,084,740. Total real estate assessment is $106,909,260, including $80,408,820 on buildings, and $26,500,440 on land.

The papers filed listed an estimated $30,000 in secured debts and an estimated $2000 in unsecured debts.

Attorney for the estate is George C. Gertman.

County Police Probe Shooting Of Bus Driver

Prince Georges County police last night probed the shooting of a 48-year-old bus driver, who lay near death in Prince Georges County General Hospital at Cheverly.

William Zinke, 5902 F st., Capitol Heights, Md., was shot in the left kidney Tuesday night. Police said he had told them he shot himself while cleaning a .32-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver on his bed.

Detective John W. Sidall said he had been unable to find any gun-cleaning apparatus in Zinke's house.

Hospital authorities said Zinke was in critical condition, in an oxygen tent and receiving plasma. His kidney was removed, they said.

Sidall said he was going to question Mrs. Merle Zinke, 40, who drove her husband to the office of Dr. William Brainin, 6124 Central ave., Capitol Heights, after the shooting. He said the shooting occured after a prolonged drinking party.

According to Fairfax County police, the alleged attack took place in the back seat of Lawson's car about 7 p. m., December 13, in a wooded area near Oakton. Police said the nude girl ran from the woods to th enearest house, where she reported she had been attacked.

Brookmont Area to Get Sewer Lines

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission has made plans for construction of the Brookmont-Cabin John link of the Potomac River interceptor sewer line by the end of 1950.

Contracts for the work will be let next June, Robert McLeod, assistant to the chief engineer, said yesterday, with construction expected to begin by next fall.

Paralleling the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, the line will carry off considerable sewage now being dumped directly into the Potomac River, he said, relieving pollution of the river above Washington. Plans call for a later connection of inland communities in the area with the trunk.

South Bound Train Kills Floridian In Alexandria

Police identified him as John E. McGinty of Helena, Fla. from a birth certificate found on his person and he said apparently was a transient. He was struck, they said, on the southbound freight track.

The train's wheels passed over his body, police said, severing his legs. The accident happened about 2:30 p. m. The man had 7 cents in his pocket and several tickets to a Christmas dinner at the Washington headquarters of the Volunteers of America, police related.

Government Rests in Case Of Bogus Bills

The Government rested yesterday in its prosecution of three persons charged with violating anti-counterfeiting laws here in manufacturing more than $100,000 in bogus bills.

The defense of the trio began late yesterday and will resume today. Defense lawyers in District Court hammered away at two confessed counterfeiters who admitted engineering the money-making scheme. The bills produced were accurate reproductions of $20 notes but less than $2000 was circulated.

On trial are Arthur M. Bebar, 35, a printer, of 1013 17th st. ne., and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hughes, 6000 13th st. nw. Bebar is accused of having produced the plate from which the bills were made, while the Hughes are charged with possession of a suitcase full of the money.

They were implicated in the testimony of Walter W. Kidwell, 30, of 1204 Calvert st. se., and Eugene H. Creighton, 25, his former roommate. Both men pleaded guilty and then became Government witnesses against the others.

Kidwell, who had been on the stand Tuesday, resumed it yesterday to deny he ever said he believed Bebar to be completely innocent and would attempt to clear him during the trial.

Judge Assails Soliciting Clients In Cell Block

Lawyers who solicit business from locked up prisoners in Municipal Court awaiting trial were denounced from the bench by Judge Armond Scott yesterday.

The jurist made his remarks after he learned from a defendant that the lawyer who accompanied him into court was neither court appointed nor hired by the defendant.

"This man needed no lawyer. He has no defense. He needs only mitigation, if he had 10 lawyers it would be the same thing." Judge Scott then issued orders that deputy marshals in charge of the cell block check more thoroughly on lawyers who demand to talk with prisoners.

Scott's remarks were directed to Attorney Andrew M. Thomas who appeared as counsel for William Albert Waddy, 24, a railroad porter of Clifton Forge, Va., charged with housebreaking. Arrested at 241 12th st. ne., he explained that he had a few drinks and being a stranger became confused when seeking the home of a friend. He said he thought he was bedded down in the friend's house.

Scott released him on personal bond after he promised to pay for the broken glass.

Fire caused damage estimated by fireboatmen at $500 yesterday aboard the yacht Semlok, moored at the Corinthian Yacht Club, 1st and V sts. sw. Firemen said the blaze started in an overheated vent from an oil burner.

The 90-foot yacht is owned and used as a residence by Douglas T. Gardiner, president of the Provident Life Insurance Co., 738 12th st. nw. Firemen said no one was aboard when it started, and it was discovered by a watchman. Gardiner is the son of W. Gwynn Gardiner, a former District Commissioner.

Panhandler Victimizes Congressman

Police at the Capitol were "upset" yesterday. They have been crusading against panhandlers and solicitors in House and Senate Office Buildings. They were given a good lead on a smart panhandler—but they got it through the press and more than a month late.

Howard F. Sedgwich, secretary to Representative Hal Holmes (R., Wash.), told reporters that a man purporting to be a constituent and a bulldozer operator came to him "before Thanksgiving," and obtained $3 on the plea that he needed it to obtain a license, and thus, a job. Later Sedgwick learned, he went to the office of a Nebraska Congressman and got another on the same story.

Lieut. Harry Gould of Capitol Police put out a belated description of the man yesterday. He said he wished the incident had been reported to him at the time, and "we are upset about it." He said most of such characters have been routed from the Capitol and office buildings by the police campaign against them.

New Hebrew School Plans Get Approval

An early start on construction of the new $400,000 Hebrew Academy of Washington was assured yesterday as the District Board of Zoning Adjustment approved amended plans for the school.

Permission to build the parochial grade school at 16th st. and Stevens rd. nw. had been granted previously, but construction bids were rejected as too costly.

Plans approved yesterday will change the shape of the building without eliminating any facilities, it was said, and will cut building costs by more than 10 percent.

Bernard Danzansky, president of the academy, last night said a contract including the changes has been let. Work should start next month, he said, and the building ought to be completed within a year.

The new structure will have a capacity of 460 students, Danzansky said. The academy now teaches 235 children in temporary quarters loaned by the District at 3235 O st. nw.

This case was one of 23 heard yesterday by the zoning board. The board approved 16 in whole or in part, and denied 4. The rest of the cases were withdrawn or deferred.

The American Council on Education withdrew its request to use as office space a five-story building at 1785 Massachusetts ave. nw., built as a residence. Council spokesmen said most of the 100 rooms would be used by their member organizations. The application was withdrawn when the board ruled individual applications must be made for each organization.

The board denied the following requests:

E. E. Carney, for a temporary parking lot at 1116-18 23d st. nw.; Annie Garfinkle, for auto repair shop at 1210 6½ st. nw.; William W. Briemaster, sr., for dancing and acrobatics school at 4100 1st st. se.; District Motor Co., for temporary parking lot at 1502, 1504 and 1506 Kingman pl. nw.

Color Television Must Use Present Channels, Coy Says

When color television comes, it will have to share broadcast frequencies with the black-and-white variety, Chairman Wayne A. Coy of the Federal Communications Commission said yesterday.

The FCC is aiming at having each TV broadcaster use his channel for both black-and-white and color, he said.

Coy discussed some of the problems of the FCC in considering approval of color TV, at a luncheon of Chapter 1, American Veterans Committee, at the AVC clubhouse.

The FCC also wants to make sure that any color system it approves will be compatible with present TV sets, he said. By "compatible," he said, he meant that color broadcasts could be received, in black-and-white, by present receivers with minor adjustments, or none.

MacGregor Rites Today; Was Gardener

Funeral services for Angus B. MacGregor, who has been a beautifier of Greenbelt, Md., since its inception in 1935, will take place at 11 a. m. today at the Gasch Chapel in Hyattsville.

McGregor

Mr. Macgregor died Tuesday while being taken to Prince Georges Hospital at Cheverly. He had been ill with pneumonia for two days.

A native of Scotland, Mr. MacGregor learned gardening and landscaping at historic Scone Palace, where Scottish kings were crowned up to the thirteenth century. In 1914, the American financier, J. P. Morgan, convinced him to come to this country to tend his estate on Long Island.

When Tugwelltown, later rechristened Greenbelt, was launched as a Federal project in 1935, Mr. MacGregor came there in charge of the landscaping. As relief workers prepared the site, he scoured the area for native trees, shrubs and plants which could be used to beautify the area after completion, and set up a nursery of 10,000 of them. His Scottish conservatism, plus a sense of harmony, influenced him to use the indigenous growth as far as possible. He has remained on the job since.

A member of St. John's Episcopal Church at Mount Rainier, he also belonged to Masonic Lodge of Antiquity No. 11, New York City.

Survivors include his wife; a son, James C. MacGregor; two daughters, Mrs. George C. Daffan and Mrs. Stephen A. Miller; and five grandchildren, all of Greenbelt. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Sergt. Aubrey R. Jones

Marine Pilot Master Sergt. Aubrey Russell Jones, 35, husband of Mrs. Louis Fearnow Jones, of Santa Ana, Calif., and son-in-law of the Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Fearnow, of 3640 Kanawha st. nw., was killed in a plane crash December 14, according to word received here.

The accident occurred during bombing practice near the El Centro Naval Air Station at Carrizo, Calif. Sergeant Jones had served in the Marine Corps 14 years. He held the rank of captain during World War II, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism in the South Pacific.

Besides his wife and parents-in-law, he is survived by two daughters, Janet D. and Carol Sue, of Santa Ana, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Jones, of Moses Lake, Wash.

'Last-Ditch' Plea Wins Clemency in Stabbing Affair

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 21 (AP).—A "last ditch" self-defense plea won clemency today for 43-year-old Norval Hillery Crabtree after he pleaded guilty to stabbing his step-son.

Crabtree was sentenced to 60 days in jail, but the sentence was suspended and he was put on probation for a year.

The case grew out of a fight between Crabtree and his 24-year-old step-son, Eugene, at the Crabtree home in nearby Oldtown November 29. The step-son was stabbed in the abdomen and was hospitalized for 15 days.

Thomas N. Berry, the defendant's counsel, based his clemency plea on the so-called "last ditch" doctrine. Generally, this is a legal argument that a man engaged in a fight with a younger or larger man is entitled to use a weapon in a "last ditch" stand if he fears he may be killed.

Salvation Army Christmas Toy Center Is Opened

The Christmas spirit has brought unification to the Marines and the Army—the Salvation Army, that is.

The Marine Corps has come to the aid of the Army in the Christmas operation of transporting toys which are to be distributed to 7500 needy children.

Marine Corps trucks will carry 9000 to 10,000 gift toys from downtown collection points, civic and church organizations to the Salvation Army's toy center at 1330 New York ave. nw., which opened yesterday.

There, the Army's Women's Auxiliary members are sorting out the gifts.

Lieut. Col. W. W. Bouterse said that gift toys should be new.

Eligible parents will select toys from the center and take them home for Christmas, officials explained.

Besides the toy distribution, the Salvation Army will provide complete Christmas dinners for more than 1000 families in their own homes, Colonel Bouterse said.

Also, more than 3500 old and sometimes forgotten patients in nearby hospitals will receive a gift and a word of cheer from an Army worker, while 500 elderly pensioners will be guests at Christmas parties at 3 p. m. Friday at Salvation Army centers.

Salvation Army collection kettles in the downtown area have brought $5536, in Christmas funds thus far, while returns from a letter appeal have totaled $4181, Colonel Bouterse said.

The $9717 total is less than half of the $22,500 budget needed to carry out the Army's Christmas effort. Colonel Bouterse said the program is predicted on faith that Washingtonians will meet the need.

Gable and Bride Expected to Sail Today for Hawaii

Hollywood, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Clark Gable and his fourth bride, Lady Sylvia Stanley Ashley, reportedly were secluded on his ranch today for a day before they sail for a Honolulu honeymoon.

Actress Virginia Grey, the only girl who ever jilted the great Gable, said she hoped he'd find "the happiness he wants."

"He really was a lost guy for a long time," she said.

MISS LAVERNE MEGEE
. . . makes debut at Army-Navy Club

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

THE PRINCETON TRIANGLE CLUB boys swelled the stag lines at the debuts of Miss Sarah Sutherland and Miss Janet Lloyd yesterday.

The "Come Across" cast, which put on its show last night at Lisner Auditorium, attended the tea dance given by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sutherland for their daughter at the Sulgrave Club; then wound up a whirlwind day at the ball at which Miss Lloyd was presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Lloyd.

Miss Sutherland made her bow in an off-shoulder blush satin frock, its floor-length skirt fashioned of ruffled tiers down the back. She carried a fan of pink camellias. Mrs. Sutherland's gown was of pink crepe and she wore green orchids fastened to her shoulder.

Four of the debutante's closest friends—Nancy Alyea and Cynthia Comly who were classmates at Madeira and Anne Shoun and Helen Brennan of Atlanta, Ga.—are here for the festivities along with Miss Sutherland's sisters, Mrs. Robert L. Strong of Cincinnati and Mrs. James Coleman of Charlottesville, Va.

Mrs. Sutherland's guests from Georgia included Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Manget, Miss Mary Goodrum of Newnan; Mrs. Murdock Equen, and Mrs. Lawrence Willett of Atlanta. Miss Cornelia Strong of New Brunswick, N. J., also attended.

Carries Old-Fashioned Bouquet

IN A CHRISTMASY setting in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel, pretty Janeth Lloyd stood with her parents as almost 500 guests streamed in for her debut dance. Her frock was of ivory brocade made with bouffant skirt. The strapless bodice was veiled with a net stole. She carried a round old-fashioned bouquet of white orchids, ivory roses and blue forget-me-nots Mrs. Lloyd wore champagne lace, the stiff peplum edged in gold thread. Her flowers were white camellias.

In the receiving also was Miss Barbara Jane Scarlett of Baltimore, a debutante there last year, whose gown was of white net made with a full skirt edged in ruching. She wore white orchids pinned to the bodice.

Guests for the most part were young people, including a group from Baltimore and Gibson Island, Md., who were entertained at a buffet supper beforehand by Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd had a dinner party at the Carlton before the dance for 20 of their friends here from Baltimore and Gibson Island.

Miss Lloyd will go to New York on January 3 for two days of debutante fetes and will return to Vassar, where she's a freshman, on January 5.

Seriously In Love For The First Time, Young Divorcee Swallows Her Pride And Asks Man His Intentions; He Is Evasive

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a divorcee, 26, have a good job and recently I have fallen deeply in love with a very prominent man 20 years my senior. He has been married twice, both times unhappily, and when we first started going together he said he was falling in love with me and wished I could also love him.

I married at 18 and the marriage lasted four years, but it didn't work out because I didn't know what love meant then—and when I first knew Wales I was not in love either.

He has always been kind, considerate and polite and has introduced me to some of his fine friends whom he greatly admires; and when we are alone he is very sweet and loving to me, but in the company of his friends I feel rather lost, because he pays little attention to me then. He tells me to try to understand that he isn't the type to be demonstrative in public. But it's not that I want him to be demonstrative, it's just that I don't want him to ignore me (or so it seems) at such times.

She Lacks Courage to Quit Stalemate

WE'VE GONE together 18 months and about three months ago I asked him desperately what his intentions are. He didn't seem surprised. He said he could hardly see himself married, although he'd thought of it many times, and that if he were 10 years younger he wouldn't hesitate. I swallowed my pride and asked if he were sure he loved me. He said he might not be too sure, and that he was sorry if he had hurt me. I told him I had taken for granted that if he cared, we could have a fine future together.

He seemed very evasive about the whole thing and after that terrible evening I let the matter drop and he has been exceptionally kind. Later I tried several times to give him up, but I must lack the necessary courage. I truly don't know what's happened to me but it seems I've lost all my pride—and I cling to a little hope that if I hang on, he will some day change his mind.

Recently he told me that perhaps I would be happier if I went out with others, and I tried it a few times (wretchedly), especially to see if he might become jealous, but he didn't show any emotion. When I asked if it bothered him, he would say "Yes," but that's all. When we quarrel I am the one who calls first. He is kind when I do. I told him the other night that since I haven't the courage to get out, he should break off with me if I mean nothing to him. He is still around. I don't know what to do. Please advise me. Please. I. C.

Man Is Deeply Afraid to Love

DEAR I. C.: You don't mention having an affair, but the unhappy pitch of your increasing attachment to Wales and his defensive reactions thereto—especially in the presence of his fine friends—suggests that you are involved in a liaison with a seasoned playboy whose past record causes him to doubt deeply his ability to love any woman much or for long.

And although Wales is unsure of his feelings for you, doubtless he is a lonely man, as philandering persons usually are at heart—due to chronic evasion of real relatedness or deep emotional commitments. Thus it's conceivable that he would adhere rather jealously to you for sentimental sanctuary, even without intent to marry, until adventurous interest in a new feminine personality offered escapist incentive to cast you aside and pursue another illusion-of-love.

From what you say, Wales isn't wilfully cruel or latently hostile towards the opposite sex. Rather he seems gently behaved, although in a completely self centered way, in relation to you; and very likely his instability as husband and lover is linked to a neurotic bias as regards his mother,—some sense of injury involving frustration or humiliation that causes him to refrain, involuntarily, from full acceptance of a challenge to love with his whole heart and "for keeps."

If so, quite aside from Wales' senior age and class snobbery, which give him pause about taking you seriously, there is that psychological barrier he always carries with him like heavy armor into every sex relationship, which disbars you from reaching his spirit and coming securely to rest in his affections. Thus I feel that he would have to effect revolutionary changes in himself before you could find common ground, and indeed before he could be loyal to any woman,—and judging by the hints he gives, I rather think you'd be waiting in vain if you wait on him to make such changes for your sake. M. H.

Mrs. Grady to Sponsor Athens Style Show Here

Greek Word on Fashion Is 'Curve'

By Sally Swing

Paris, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—The importance of curves and other Greek influences on women's fashions soon will be shown in America, Mrs. Henry Grady, wife of the U. S. Ambassador to Greece, has revealed.

Mrs. Grady said she will sponsor a special showing of Greek costumes, both ancient and modern, in the United States and Paris this spring.

"Greek designers of today know what a curve is," Mrs. Grady said. "When it comes to fashions, they know how to emphasize the most important points of a woman. Their designs are exquisite."

Mrs. Grady said she hoped American women eventually will get as excited about Greek fashions as they do about Paris modes.

Mrs. Harry Truman, wife of the President, will open the United States tour of Greek fashions in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, early in March.

On March 22, the show, which features new Greek-made cottons, silks and wools will go to New York. It will go on to Dallas and Boston, winding up its circuit in San Francisco.

One or two models made by each of Athens' top 20 dress designers will highlight the show, which will include both local peasant costumes and dresses of ancient Greek periods, many of them brought out from dusty museum cases for the first time in several hundred years.

Although the show will feature costumes for day, evening and ballroom wear, one of the hits is expected to be a Greek-designed bathing suit consisting of a brief blue and white striped sheath, with a removable ballet-type skirt, modeled after the Greek soldiers' "evzone" skirt.

Mrs. Grady said her aim was to promote friendship and trade between countries of the Western world. Mannequins from local cities will be picked to model the costumes, she said.

Pudding Easy to Prove!

Desserts Say 'Merry Christmas'

By Lucia Brown

DESSERTS that say "Merry Christmas" in a heart-warming, old-fashioned way are Japanese Fruit Cake and Plum Pudding.

The Japanese Fruit Cake is a longtime favorite in certain sections of the South. Just how it got its foreign name seems something of a mystery, but we hear it was called "Tropical Fruit Cake" during the recent world fracas.

It's a delicious iced cake, with alternate light and dark layers. At Christmas in the old days, it was always included along with dark fruit cake and coconut cake in the collation passed around to guests. The following recipe is one treasured by the Hauser family of Georgia:

JAPANESE FRUIT CAKE

Cake Batter

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
3 cups flour
1 cup milk
3 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch salt

Cream butter and sugar together. Add well-beaten eggs. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add to mixture alternately with milk. Divide batter in half. Bake one half of it in two thin layers in a 375 degrees oven for about 25 minutes until done.

Dark Batter

To second half of batter, add:
½ cup raisins
½ cup nut meats
2 teaspoons cocoa
1 teaspoon all spice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon clove

Bake in two thin layers.

Filling

1 cup grated coconut
2 lemons, grated rind and juice
2 cups sugar
1 cup boiling water
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Boil sugar, water, and cornstarch together until sugar is dissolved. Add remaining ingredients and cook until thick. Use this to put the cooled cake layers together, alternating the light and dark layers. Cover with white seven-minute frosting.

Dickens Liked It, Too

WHEN YOU think of Christmas in Old England, you usually think of the kind pictured by Dickens, with roast goose and plum pudding. A fondness for this rich, fruity dessert—and many recipes for it—were brought to this country by its early settlers. An Old English plum pudding is pictured here, and this is the recipe for it:

OLD ENGLISH PLUM PUDDING

1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1/3 teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ pound seeded raisins
¼ pound figs, chopped
¼ cup citron, chopped
¼ cup candied orange peel, chopped
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 cup hot milk
¼ cup sugar
4 eggs, separated
½ pound suet, ground
½ cup brandy

Mix and sift together flour, salt, and spices. Stir in fruits. Soak crumbs in milk 10 minutes. Beat sugar into well-beaten egg yolks; add suet and soaked crumbs. Stir into flour mixture. Add brandy and blend. Turn into buttered 1½-quart mold. Cover and steam 3½ hours. This makes 12 servings. Serve with lemon sauce or brandy-flavored hard sauce.

Santa Is Early at Children's Hospital

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

LADEN with terrariums and dish gardens, members of the Bethesda Community Garden Club yesterday added their bit in making the lives of little tots at Children's Hospital brighter at Christmas time.

For over 10 years, the Bethesda garden clubwomen have shared their love for living greens with children of Children's Hospital by presenting miniature landscapes" to the wards.

This year, working with the chairman of the committee, Mrs. Anthony Gould, members started early in the fall to plan for their annual gift to the little patients.

While Mrs. Gould was traveling in Massachusetts, she spotted and was later presented with a great quantity of tiny sedums, a variety of herb. The nursery owner was so impressed with the gifts the Bethesda gardeners were making for hospitalized children that she insisted Mrs. Gould take a supply of these plants for the project.

Committee Creates 'Ever-Living Landscape'

ON NOVEMBER 17, 15 members of Mrs. Gould's committee met with her and in the space of four hours, 75 dish gardens and terrariums were ready for Christmas time. These greens were distributed to the various members for safe-keeping at their homes. If perchance a tiny plant died, it was replaced immediately so that the children would receive only living plants in their gardens at Christmas.

The dish gardens are in reality miniature replicas of nature with wild plants and ferns from the woods grouped around tiny glass to resemble pools. Little toy animals, bird baths and people complete the "ever-living landscape."

Terrariums, of which the club members made about 20, are different from dish gardens, according to Mrs. Gould. In making a terrarium, moss and two teaspoonfuls of water are sealed in a glass container with transparent tape. Terrariums keep for several months without rewatering, then another teaspoonful or so of water can be added for the needed moisture.

Hundred Children To Be Feted

ONE hundred children to whom Christmas might otherwise be a sad season will attend a gay Yuletide party on Friday at 3:30 p.m. at the Junior Citizens and Police Corps building, 720 Barry pl. nw. Hostess at the event will be the D. C. Chapter, Women's Association of Allied Beverage Industries.

There will be a decorative Christmas tree, toys, fruits and candies for all the tots. In addition the chapter will present two ping-pong tables and equipment to the Junior Citizens and Police Corps. Mrs. Ben Brown, chairman of the local WAABI's philanthropy committee, arranged the party.

Pre-Christmas Carol:

'Tis the Season To Be Jolly, Tra-La-Etcetera

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THINGS WE'VE LIKED LATELY: The electrified Christmas tree on the corner of 27th and Dumbarton avenue—the white sleigh drawn by white reindeer lit with bright bulbs, all outside a Wisconsin avenue store . . . the gold-sequin-trimmed champagne-colored net ballgowns worn by Ruth and Judith Imru, daughters of the Ethiopian Minister, at Sylvia Nabuco's coming-out dance . . . Mrs. William MacCracken's enormous, gold-encircled topaz which dangles from two oval topaz pins . . . Mrs. Alex Legare's tight, white-feathered toque . . . the heaps of beautiful bouquets and the pink carnation leis sent Marjorie Morgenstjerne at her debutante reception . . . Mrs. Morris Cafritz's black satin half-hat with a brace of black Paradise swooshing together a foot above her forehead, quite the loveliest lid of the decade . . . Mrs. Leslie Biffle's new blue evening gown which just matches her eyes . . . the Bermuda Bell on Mrs. Lauriston Hardin jr.'s Austin car . . . the eggplant taffeta Dior gown, complete with jumbo pockets and yards of stiffened skirt, which Mrs. A. Peter Dewey brought back from Paris . . . the black jersey gloves, fingers and sides edged with tiniest beads, made specially for Mrs. William C. Foster . . . the swell idea of honoring ladies who give their "all" (figuratively speaking) for foreign charities with decorations from the countries so helped (Italians dealt out three, after their successful bazaar) . . . Seeing Charles Dewey, the sole gent who still wears white gloves to a ball . . . Drew Pearson's suave footwork on the dance floor . . . the new bumpy dance called the Rasp (literal translation) which jiggles off those long, chandelier earrings and imperils the modesty of strapless gowns . . . the snug satin evening gowns with satin be-flowered bodices worn by Mrs. Arthur Fowler and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg (Mrs. F's in taupe, Mrs. V's in mauve) . . . the elegant rendition of creme brulee by Rosa Rodriguez, the Netherlands Embassy's Guatamalan cook . . . the scores of magnificent crystal chandeliers, appliques and girandoles scattered about Myron Hofer's new F street house—likewise bachelor Hofer's lobster Newburg nested in wild rice . . . Mrs. Robert Low Bacon's fur jabot, a single, throat encircling mink, cascading many tails . . . Mrs. Joseph Davies' tiara, a garland of diamond roses . . . the wonderful, wonderful smells at Christmas parties, partly compounded from scents of expensive perfumes, partly from flowers, partly from aromatic holiday greens—and partly the delicate whiff of alcoholic refreshments!

About Browning Christmas Turkey

In your column W. R. J. asks how to get such a pretty brown color on turkeys. May a novice in the field of cooking tell of a recent helpful experience? After more than 40 years in office, and knowing absolutely nothing about cooking, occasionally something takes root. I have never yet roasted a turkey, but did recently roast a 5½-pound hen, the first and only time in my life that I have ever roasted a chicken. And to say it was beautiful brown all over, moist, and tender, delicious eating is almost an understatement. And so simple; no watching the oven; no basting; just no trouble at all.

I watched a friend prepare a 12-pound turkey for the oven. After it was stuffed, sewed together and trussed, she rubbed a little salt on the outside, then with fat she rubbed the turkey all over outside—good. Taking an ordinary paper bag, such as groceries are delivered in but quite ample to hold the turkey easily, she greased it thoroughly inside and out with the fat, slipped the turkey in, tucked the extra fold under the front part, and set it in the oven. Put no water or liquid of any kind in the pan; no basting whatever is necessary.

She set the oven at 400 for one hour, then turned it down to 250 degrees F. for 4½ hours. She never even opened the oven to look at the bird until she took it from the oven and I have never seen a more beautifully browned bird. Brown all over, and so juicy and tender. I could hardly wait to get home to try it myself.

So I, with all my inexperience and with only one lesson, tackled the hen for Thanksgiving and the thrill of setting such a beautifully browned, tender chicken before my husband to carve was greater than the thrill of a first date in the life of a young girl! For the hen, I set the oven at 400 for about 35 minutes then turned it to 250 for about two hours. Be sure not to put any water or other liquid in the pan and do not open the paper bag to be watching the hen or turkey. If it has been well greased and the bag well greased inside and out it will be all right.

I am so thrilled when I get anything really nice that I am glad to pass the helpful idea along to any others to whom it may be of service. M. C. S.

I wish to thank both you and P. H. of Arlington who has also suggested roasting a turkey in a paper bag for delightful brownness!

Your reader, L. A., who asked where to find the words and music of "If Ye Would Hear His Voice, Harden Not Your Hearts" can find it in the oratorio, "Elijah" by Mendelssohn. Any music store carrying religious music would have it. P. R.

My husband and I are planning on buying furniture and furnishings for a one-bedroom apartment soon. We have definitely chosen Chinese modern as the style of furnishings we want, and we plan on buying all blond (not gray) finished woods. With these we should like to use rich browns and tones of brown, dark green with no blue cast, golden beige, some clear light green and either red or pink.

These last three colors are the problem. I prefer chartreuse to pale green, but that, I believe, will limit us to dark hunter green, will it not? I also prefer the clear bright pink tones, such as American Beauty, but my husband has a slight preference for Chinese red. Our china has pale rose, lilac and dark green predominating and other china and glassware pieces have some of those tones. I am wondering how the Chinese red would look with these? This may sound foolish, but we are both very sensitive to color and it is important to us that we have no ugly clashes in the house. Also, how would the touches of red look, for example, with pink roses in the room—and how with the brown? In searching for suitable draperies we have found that practically any material with a Chinese influence has red in it. Should we decide on pink tones, can these red touches be changed in any way by painting or by some other method? We have decided to await your answer before making any purchases. P. W. and J. T. W.

Since you specify that you wish to use greens with no blue in them, it would seem to me that you could use with equal ease and attractiveness either chartreuse or a pale true green. Bold, clear colors are characteristic of the Chinese decoration, so I'd suggest using Chinese red, not pink. Red is a better choice, too, because, as far as I know, there is no home method which can be satisfactorily used to change one color to another in a fabric—particularly a strong red to a pink.

You will possibly use the Chinese red just for accents so the small amount of rose and lilac in your china should not be a jarring note. However, for larger decorative pieces, I'd suggest you stay away from pastels, in flowers as well as decorations.

Here's a starting suggestion for using your colors in the house: Living and dining room—chartreuse walls, dark green rugs the same hue as the walls, but a darker value, a Chinese print as slip cover on divan and one hair, another chair dark green, drapes a golden hued fabric with no figure. Kitchen—tan walls, bright clear yellow curtains and brown accents. Den—tan walls, deep brown rug, figured drapes in brown tones perhaps with a gold accent. Bedroom—beige and green color scheme with Chinese red accent. Pale beige walls and drapes to match, green tumble twist rugs, green spread and Chinese red lamp bases.

With Chinese modern use clear hues and a minimum of figure to give an uncluttered effect. Time and space prevents me from being more explicit, but perhaps these few suggestions will be helpful. To further help you in working out your colors, you may wish to see a copy of a good home decoration book which has lots of pictures in color such as House and Garden's "Complete Guide to Interior Decoration," edited by Richardson Wright and published by Simon & Schuster, N. Y. You should have no trouble in finding a copy at either a bookstore or library in your town.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Christmas Vacation

To many parents, Christmas vacation is a mixed blessing. Of course, it's nice to have the youngsters out of school and at home. But there are so many things to do and the younger children, especially, get underfoot. Sometimes, too, they seem to be stumped for something to do and that's bothersome. Yes, we not infrequently long for the time when they'll be going back to school and things won't be so hectic.

A little family planning—children and parents together—will help make holidays harmonious rather than hectic. Sitting down together, listing the jobs that have to be done, deciding who will do them, planning some special occasions for fun and frolic—these will be the main items on the agenda of the Christmas vacation council.

This kind of working together is likely to do away with vague worrying about whether everything will get done. It will give youngsters a real feeling of belonging. There will be time for some real holiday fun.

You may be surprised at the way the junior members of the family will take hold if they have a share in planning. You can be sure, too, that they will have amazingly good ideas as to job organization and what will be good holiday fun.

Cominform Is Fomenting War, Western Socialists Charge

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Cominform is "openly fomenting war throughout one half of the world" in behalf of its Russian masters, organized Western Socialists charged tonight.

The International Socialist Conference—an organization of democratic Socialists—told its members that the Cominform is trying to worm into socialism with the old "united front" talk practiced by the prewar Communist International (Comintern).

This new order was issued to the Cominform at its recent meeting in Hungary, the statement said.

It told Socialists that "Communist Stalinism has nothing in common with socialism," and called the united front approach a "fraud." It asked workers to "expose the Cominform fraud for what it is—a fifth column of an imperialistic tyranny."

The Socialist stand was written by a subcommittee headed by Morgan Phillips, secretary of the British Labor Party.

"The total subservience of the Communist parties to the Soviet state is most clearly shown by the purges within every Communist party of Eastern Europe," the Socialists said.

"With the appointment of (Soviet) Marshal Rokossovsky a Polish minister of defense and a member of the central committee of the Polish Communist Party, a new phase of Russian imperialism has opened. The possibility that the Kremlin will install similar gauleiters in the other satellite countries cannot be excluded.

"The Cominform claims that it stands for peace and national independence. In fact, it is openly fomenting war throughout one half of the world, and in all countries except Russia it treats national feeling as a criminal heresy."

Falls Church Fears School Faces Chaos

Maj. Gen. William Rumbough, principal of the Fairfax County-operated Falls Church High School, anticipates that half-day sessions will be necessary next year, the Falls Church School Board was told last night.

John R. Miles, board member, reported Rumbough told him he feared conditions in the school next year might become "absolutely chaotic."

The city plans to build a 500-pupil, junior-senior high school of its own. Tentative plans call for completion early in 1950.

In other actions, the board:

Approved a boost in salary scale for substitute teachers in the Madison-Jefferson School from $6-$7 to $6-$10.

Directed Irvin Schmitt, Madison-Jefferson superintendent, to tell Fairfax Superintendent W. T. Woodson that the board does not think it should be expected to accept additional county students in the Madison-Jefferson second grade after class enrollment reaches 45, which it now is approaching. Extra students should be sent to the Fairfax County-operated Oak st. Elementary School until "equalization of the teacher-pupil load" is achieved, the board feels.

Virginia Woman Feted for Saving Ruhr Steel Plant

Mrs. Joan J. Crane of Wellington Villa, Alexandria, was honored by a German steel company yesterday for her help in saving its plant from Allied dismantling.

The directors of the August Thyssen Huette, big Ruhr steel plant at Duisburg, set up a 100,000-mark ($23,000) "Joan Crane Fund" to finance social work among plant employes. Mrs. Crane and her husband, John B. Crane, were honor guests at the ceremonies, attended by West Germany's chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adnauer, and members of his cabinet.

Mrs. Crane spent a year in Germany studying the dismantling problem. She wrote reports urging an end to the dismantling of German factories which were widely circulated in Congress.

Plant directors said her work was influential in bringing about the recent Allied decision to strike several big German plants off the list to be dismantled. The Thyssen plant, one of Germany's largest steel works, was among those spared. Crane is an economic historian.

Fox Hunt Upsets Yule Shoppers In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—There were no hounds, horses or red coats on downtown Market Street today, but Christmas shoppers had the time of their lives watching an exciting, genuine fox hunt.

Cries of "tallyho!" resounded on the crowded thoroughfare as the full grown female fox weighing 15 pounds, led its pursuers a merry chase for four solid hours before it was captured.

At one time, the fox tried to get into a theater but the doors were closed. Someone threw an overcoat on it then and the chase appeared over. But a child snatched away the coat and the hunt was on again.

Some women shoppers appeared sorry the fox had lost. Muttering "poor thing," they offered facial tissues to clean its nose.

No one knew where the fox had come from.

Most of the more than 50 huntsmen were taxicab drivers, who spotted the fox in their parking lot.

Haiti Plot Smashed

Havana, Dec. 21 (U.P.)—A plan to assassinate President Dumarsais Estime of Haiti has been smashed by the Haitian police, high diplomatic sources reported here tonight. Seven leaders of the plot were arrested at Port au Prince, the Haitian capital, yesterday, the report said.

'Ophelia' Fined

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—Movie star Jean Simmons was fined £5 ($14) today for buying six gallons of gasoline without ration coupons. Miss Simmons was Ophelia in Sir Laurence Oliver's film "Hamlet."

Cuba Charges Refugee Ran Aliens to U. S.

Havana, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Gregorio Simonovich, 44, accused of smuggling aliens into the United States and then betraying them to authorities, was arraigned today on charges of conspiring against Cuba's integrity and stability.

The Russian-born refugee claimed in court he was "double crossed," had been a "faithful" employe of the U. S. Immigration Service for 14 years and still worked for it.

A spokesman for the U. S. Immigration Service confirmed that Simonovich "has done jobs for us" but declined to elaborate.

Investigators said Simonovich was employed simultaneously by the Cuban secret police, acting as a stool-pigeon by informing them of drug shipments to the United States.

Cuban police said he collected fees ranging as high as $3000 a head to arrange transportation into the United States for aliens. He then reported information of their illegal entry to United States immigration officials in the embassy here and collected a fee for each person denounced, they said.

Federal officials accused him of being the "kingpin" of a huge smuggling ring operating in the Caribbean area.

Two Boys Found Dead In Trunk of Suffocation

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 21 (U.P.).—The bodies of two small boys were found today in a locked trunk. Both had died of suffocation.

Mrs. Vera di Sarro found the boys, David Wilson, 10, and his brother, Clinton, 11. She had been searching for the youngsters, her children by a previous marriage, since yesterday.

Police said the boys apparently climbed in the trunk while their mother and stepfather were out.

Palace Servants End Baroda Hunger Strike

Bombay, India, Dec. 21 (AP)—Fifteen palace servants of the rich Gaekwar of Baroda ended a 10-day hunger strike last night when the ruler began talks with strikers' representatives.

The servants struck for higher wages. More than 3000 industrial workers had gone on a one-day hunger strike yesterday to urge the palace help to start eating again.

Grand Central Music Raises Din of Protest

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—A group of enraged commuters made noise back today at music and sales talks which have been reverberating through Grand Central Station. One testified that they were "enough to drive you nuts."

But the New York Central Railroad, which runs the station, said the objectors are excited over nothing. Besides, added a railroad spokesman, the Central gets $93,600 for loud-speaking the ads—and needs every cent of it.

In part, the row is a duel between the railroad and Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker magazine.

Ross objected in print as soon as the station started commercial programs on its public address system several months ago. Some 400 other commuters objected, too. So the State Public Service Commission held a hearing today.

The railroad's assistant general counsel, Kenneth F. Stone, said, "a campaign by an adult comic book" had given the proceedings a comic opera flavor.

The programs at issue originate in the station itself and are not carried by radio. It's a private advertising venture to help defray station expenses.

Ross retorted that the ears of 500,000 daily commuters were being assaulted and that the advertisers were being "swindled."

"You cannot hear anything," he declared. "It's just a ringing in your ears. The huckster ha a foot in the door. If they get away with this, nobody will be able to read on any means of conveyance in the United States."

Stone asked Ross if his hearing was good?

"I am thinking," the editor replied, "of having an ear drum punctured."

"Did you advise readers of your magazine to make complaints?" Stone asked.

Ross said he didn't.

The lawyer then quoted from the November 5 issue of the New Yorker: "We strongly advise any person to protest or call the police."

"I beg your pardon," Ross said. "I must have read that in Grand Central Terminal."

Stone said a poll taken among some of the station's 500,000 daily patrons showed 85 percent like the programs, 3.3 percent don't care and 11.3 percent dislike them.

What's more, Stone said, commuters only hear the programs for two minutes or so morning and night.

And finally, he said, the New York Central is losing 48 million dollars a year so that "every dollar helps."

But the commuters didn't see it that way.

Leo Fish, a Larchmont insurance man, said the racket was "enough to drive you nuts."

A psychiatrist, Dr. Harold J. Harris, said the commuters' "suppressed rage and hostility" might give them ulcers.

Justice Dept. Probes TV Tie-in Sales

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Justice Department's antitrust division today reported it had begun an investigation of reported television tie-in sales.

A department official said there had been numerous complaints that retail dealers were being required to order unwanted phonograph record players and other items in order to get television sets that were in heavy demand.

William L. Maher, assistant chief of the Middle Atlantic office in Philadelphia, emphasized that it was strictly an inquiry so far. He said the division was trying to learn whether there had been violations of Federal antitrust laws, which prohibit such tie-in sales. Issuance of a subpena to a firm, he pointed out, merely meant it was being asked to furnish information that might be of value in the inquiry.

A subpena has been served on the Radio Corp. of America, which makes both television sets and record players. Maher said other manufacturers as well as distributors would be subpenaed.

The inquiry will cover both new types of record players—the one that turns at 45 revolutions a minute, developed by RCA, and the 33 1/3 RPM player developed by Columbia records.

Columbia does not manufacture equipment, but distributes 33 1/3 RPM players made for it by a Chicago manufacturer and licenses other firms to make them.

Christmas 'Round the World

The Yule in Scandinavia

By Richard M. Barr

(Copyright, 1949, by United Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Chapter Four

THE countries of Scandinavia have some of the gayest Christmas customs of any throughout the globe. In Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Christmas is the time of good cheer. Modern Christian customs are lightly tinged with remnants of old Viking paganism.

The holiday begins in Sweden on December 13, St. Lucia's Day. That was the day, in times gone by, when evil spirits were abroad, when the threshing must be finished quickly. Farmers carried candles and torches into the fields as a protection against the dark forces of the Devil's host.

Today, the daughter of the house awakens before sunrise. She dresses in a flowing white gown, places on her head a whortleberry wreath bearing seven small candles.

Then she goes down to the kitchen and arranges a try of lussikater, cookies baked in the form of a cat, with raisins as eyes.

She carries the tray from room to room, awakening all members of the family still abed, giving each of them a cookie. When you eat the cookie, it assures you of a long, happy holiday.

Nine Days' Cooking

AFTER breakfast, the womenfolk take over in the kitchen, for on that day the holiday cooking begins. Gingerbread goats are baked (in memory of Thor's sacred goats). Loaves of bread are kneaded in the shape of a boar's head. Headcheeses are prepared, and don't forget the lutefisk—a delicious sun-dried fish, boiled first and then served with spice and cream sauce.

All of this takes time, of course. Preparations go on for days, but by December 22—nine days after St. Lucia's—most of the work is done. Then you hear people humming the "Dunking Song." For December 22 is The Day Before Dunking Day.

Dunking is an old Christmas Eve custom in Sweden. The whole family gathers around the stove for the first course of dinner. On the stove a boiling pot of ham and sausage bubbles merrily, and colored streamers on the ceiling add gaiety to the kitchen.

Everybody gets a slice of wort bread, and dips it in the pot. Then he dunks again and again, for each dunk brings good luck. It also prepares his appetite for the smorgasbord.

Bowl for Jultmonte

The food is for the Jultmonte, a kindly, generous gnome, who lives underneath the house, and who brings good fortune. Next morning—wonder of wonders!—the porridge is gone. In its place, the good Jultmonte has left—toys!

In Denmark, there is a similar custom. The Danish Nisse, however, has in more ways the equivalent of our own Santa Claus. He wears a red robe and whiskers, might even be mistaken for a tiny Santa Claus, except for his wooden shoes.

The Nisse in Denmark are usually elves or gnomes, who come out only at Christmas. Where they stay the rest of the year, nobody knows.

The family must not forget their Nisse at the Christmastide. Before retiring on Christmas Eve, the children place a bowl of rice porridge outside the kitchen door. Next morning the bowl is empty—testifying to the reality of the Nisse. Only those dull people of little imagination claim that the cat eats the porridge.

Two Christmas holidays are observed in Denmark. There is Christmas Day—December 25—which is known as First Christmas. There's the day after, called Second Christmas. On both days, the churches hold special services, well attended throughout the kingdom.

The mother of the present King—Queen Alexandrine—began a custom that her husband and her son both continued. Her birthday was on Christmas Eve, and every year she paid a visit to the quarters of the Royal Guard at the Amalienbor Palace, in Copenhagen.

She would bring a present for every Guardsman, wishing each one individually a Merry Christmas. Although the Queen is dead now, and King Christian X has also passed away, the custom is continued by the present royal family.

Both Jultmonte and Nisse bear some resemblance to the American Santa Claus and to the Belgian Saint Nick. But all of these had their origin in the Sinter Klass of the Netherlands.

Spain to Holland

DECEMBER 6 is the day of Saint Nicholas in Holland. The day we know as Christmas—December 25—is only a special Sunday, when everybody goes to church and the children gaze in happiness at the kerstbooms. These are decorated fir trees which stand in almost every church, beside the altar.

On the afternoon of Christmas Day, Hollanders enjoy a hearty lunch of stewed rabbit, and then most of them take to the canals, for ice skating.

In the Netherlands, however, Sinter Klaas doesn't come from the North Pole. He comes from Spain.

Wearing a bishop's robe of brilliant red, carrying a gleaming gold scepter, he has a large, jeweled miter on his head. He is accompanied always by Black Peter, a tiny, mischievous Moor, who is the saint's aide, servant and friend.

Black Peter and the saint gallop over the countryside on a snow-white horse, whose name is Sleipnir. They stop at each home just long enough to drop a present or two down the chimney, and then they're off again.

Sometimes, if they don't have to return to Spain in a hurry, the good saint and his little aide attend a children's party. If the kids have been good, Sinter Klaas rewards them with candy. But if they've been bad, little boys or girls, he tickles them and threatens to carry them off in his big, black bag.

Tomorrow: The Russian Christmas that comes twice a year and the Latin-American Christmas where shoes are filled with straw for the burros of the Three Kings.

Detective Work Speeds Unaddressed Card

The card, to "Esther" from "Matilda," told of a death in the family and the time of the funeral. Postmaster Marlin S. Eckerd checked with undertakers and found the sender.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 21 (AP). The Martinsburg postoffice found time for some detective work on an unaddressed card which bore an obviously urgent message.

Friendly Enemy

Not always is an enemy . . . The one to fear or dread . . . For he may be the very one . . . To help us get ahead . . . His criticism may be just . . . And when we read the slate . . . We may discover we are wrong . . . And we deserve his hate . . . Perhaps we caused the enmity . . . Through what was said or done . . . Although in our opinion it . . . Was meant to be in fun . . . An enemy may really be . . . An angel in disguise . . . To whom in all sincerity . . . We should apologize . . . So let us not be vengeful now . . . But let us strive to see . . . The better side of one who seems . . . To be an enemy.

Hit-and-Run Good Policy On Ball Field, But Not in Taxi

The driver is Mack M. Teague of Temple Trailer Village, Alexandria, Va. One of his recent passengers, Mrs. Morton Siegel of 4832 New Hampshire ave. nw., reports that he's done a marvelous job of decorating his hack for the holiday season.

Incidentally, Mack is good copy, because he was manager and coach of the Temple Trailers baseball team, which had a very successful season.

Floyd Montgomery at Yellow tells me that if you want Teague, he'll put out a "Signal 2", to Teague's radio cab. Floyd says:

"I don't have a telephone number for him, because he's never had an accident since he's been driving for us, so I haven't had to make out any reports on him."

KID STUFF

"Here's a perfect example of the unshakable faith of a child," writes Paul C. James of the University of Virginia, down in Charlottesville.

"Last Saturday, our 4-year-old daughter, Barbara, was approached by the Santa Claus employed by the Charlottesville merchants. As he gave her some candy, Barbara looked him over carefully and then turning to me, said:

"'He has a mask on, Daddy, but he can't fool me. I know he's Santa Claus'."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Adorable kittens, Persian strain; housebroken, ideal Christmas gifts for children." (Overlook 2056.)

"Small 5-month-old female puppy; sweet disposition, lives in doghouse." (Fairfax 77-W-12.)

"Small brown-and-white spitz-poodle, very playful." (Johnson 3-3939.)

"Seven-week-old puppy, bright as a dollar, sharp as a tack, lovable as a bride." (Hillside 3100, extension 6104.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Robert C. Valentine, 6118 30th st. nw. A regrettable incident, to be sure, but not necessarily typical of drivers who have diplomatic immunity. I've encountered the same sort of offense from our domestic breed of reckless drivers. A fool is a fool, in any language.

Edith La Porte, 236 Massachusetts ave. ne.: I agree with you that it's funny. At least once a year I reprint my favorite contributions: The Zoo sign that lost children will be taken to the Lion House; the "Pat Your Hairdresser" sign; and the streetcar comedian who fixes up the Chambers ad with the extra line: "Try Our Lay-away Plan."

Capt. M. A. Cappiello, Bolling Air Force Base: An excellent poem, but far too long for this limited space. Thanks.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Pi Tau Pi Fraternity has collected enough food to give two large families a big Christmas dinner with all the trimmings—even including baby food for the youngest. I've been assigned to the job of finding the needy families, and wonder if you can help. Richard H. Frank 102 W. Woodbine st.
Chevy Chase, Md.

Dear Dick:

Mrs. Eva Birkenbilt of 31 Tuckerman st. nw. thinks I ought to tell you about the Christmas Bureau of the Community Chest.

It's a purely voluntary organization, sponsored by the Chest but receiving no financial assistance from it. Mrs. Birkenbilt and her fellow volunteers spend the entire month of December seeing to it that the gifts of food, clothing and money that come into this special Christmas Bureau find their way to needy families through various existing agencies.

They also try to arrange Christmas dinners for underprivileged children, in response to invitations from private families. This year they had an unusual request: an invitation for a single woman with no family. And they filled the order promptly.

Incidentally, the most pressing need right at the moment is for shoes for school-age children. It's hard to believe, but many boys and girls stay home from school for lack of adequate shoes; and anybody who can help is asked to contact the Christmas Bureau of the Community Chest (1101 M st. nw., Decatur 7330) before December 31. Bill

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Irving Berlin was at a dinner last week where he met John D. Rockefeller, jr., and wondered about the conversation-pleasantries with which to engage him. "I like your Christmas tree," he began, . . . "Oh, do you really like it?" beamed Rockefeller. "I was worried about it. I was afraid people might think it a bit too flashy" . . . Berlin assured him that it was a delight to the eye . . . "Thanks, and I'm so relieved," said Rockefeller, whose concern was as sincere as if the gayly decorated Christmas tree were in his living room instead of in Rockefeller Plaza towering almost to 100 feet.

The Playwrights Producing Co., whose members include Maxwell Anderson, Kurt Weill, Elmer Rice and Robert E. Sherwood, held their annual meeting the other day. Sherwood arrived at 2:30 p. m., and shook hands with his colleagues—but with his left hand, holding his right hand aloft so that none could touch it . . . "What happened to your right hand?" he was asked . . . "Something wonderful," Sherwood replied. "I was at Toots Shor's, where I was wished a Merry Christmas and my right hand was shaken by Joe Di Maggio himself."

Josef Israels 2d, now serving as an NBC correspondent in Europe, went to Oberndorf in Upper Austria to record a Christmas program at the chapel where the song, "Silent Night," was born in 1818. He watched the ceremonies—a choir and band, all wearing ancient dress, singing the greatest carol of them all . . . Israels then told the town officials how deeply the carol affects all Americans, and then he asked: "What can we do for Oberndorf, in return?" . . . "For our school," was the answer, "get us some Mickey Mouse films."

U. S. Policy On Formosa Is Debated

By Drew Pearson

Most important backstage debate over U. S. foreign policy now involves Formosa, the strategic island north of the Philippines that Japan captured from China in the war of 1895. One pledge the allies made to China in the recent war was that Formosa would go back to China.

MacArthur

But last month General MacArthur sent a triple-urgent cable urging that Formosa be claimed by us and occupied by U. S. troops for Japan. He warned that Formosa was a three-hour flight from Okinawa, two hours from Japan, and that the U. S. A. might as well kiss off all its southeast Asia program if it abandoned Formosa to Chinese communism.

Behind this cable was the fact that Chinese Communists are readying a giant flotilla on the mainland to take this island, last remaining stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists. Also behind MacArthur's cable is the fact that Chiang Kai-shek, immediately after V.J. Day, made the tragic mistake of putting Formosa under one of his most unscrupulous warlords. Result: looting, terrorism and 60,000 Formosans killed. Most residents of the island would now welcome the Communists. Their taste of Chinese Nationalism has been sour indeed.

Prior to MacArthur's cable, the Joint Chiefs of Staff had decided to abandon Formosa. But his cable bucked them up. As a result, they have now agreed unanimously, have recommended that Formosa be claimed as Japanese territory and that a detachment of U. S. Marines, now on Guam, be landed.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are supported by potent Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. And this is where the clash occurs. They are not supported by svelte but equally potent Secretary of State Dean Acheson. He points out that to occupy Formosa with American troops on behalf of Japan, after Japan's long record of imperial conquest against China, would make us the laughing stock of the Orient. Furthermore, it would alienate Oriental races all the way from Batavia to Harbin.

Denfeld Not Quitting

Two men who were in the headlines over unification two months ago had a final showdown last week. They were sincere, hard-working Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews and the man he kicked out as Chief of Naval Operations, popular Admiral Louis Denfeld.

Matthews called Denfeld to his office, and demanded to know definitely whether he was quitting the Navy. He pointed out that Denfeld had promised to give his answer by December 1.

Denfeld explained that he was having trouble making up his mind. At first, he said, 70 percent of his friends advised him to stick, but this ratio has now dropped to about 50-50. He had also been offered many civilian jobs—both in industry and politics. He had been invited, he said, to run for Governor of Massachusetts and for the late Congressman Bates' seat in Congress. But, he insisted, he wasn't interested in politics.

A few days later Denfeld wrote Matthews a letter rejecting the command of United States naval forces in European waters though he is still remaining temporarily in the Navy.

Death Better Than Reds

U.S. High Commissioner McCloy has reported to Washington that Otto Grotewohl, prime minister of eastern Germany, tried to commit suicide—because of the Russians. McCloy says Grotewohl and his wife tried to end their lives in Berlin after repeated arguments with Russian officers who boss the east German puppet government.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky visited Grotewohl in the Russian hospital outside Berlin this week and then ordered the Russians to put out the story that Grotewohl is suffering from the flu.

U. S. Diplomats Hounded

Counselor George Kennan has told Secretary of State Acheson that the United States may have to close down all its embassies and legations in eastern Europe. Kennan, the ace diplomat on Russia, says the restrictions placed on the American legation in Bulgaria are just the beginning of a Russian campaign to drive every American diplomat out of eastern Europe.
